ATTENTION HOUSEWIVES!

We are considering a plan to open a shop on the Hilltop for the purpose of selling women's and children's good used clothing. Many of us have fine dresses, coats, evening gowns, formals, etc., that we no longer have any use for. Our children may have outgrown some of their perfectly good clothing. OUR IDEA IS TO MAINTAIN A SHOP, WHERE YOU CAN PLACE THESE ARTICLES, TO BE EXHIBITED FOR SALE, ON A CONSIGNMENT BASIS.

If you make things at home—needle work, crocheting, or knitting, plaster plaques, or gift items, these also can be placed on exhibit for sale.

In case you would like to see such an outlet established on the Hilltop, please write or call at once, stating what suitable items you have to offer for sale in such a shop. If the response is good, we intend to begin at once, at a location already selected. Write immediately to Box 2, care of The Hilltop Record, or call RA. 1967.

Many Hilltoppers Attend Columbus Evening School

By Myron T. Seifert

Many Hilltoppers extended their educational opportunities this semester by attending Columbus Evening High School at Central High School three nights weekly between the hours of 6 and 10.

With a wide selection of courses, comparable to that of any high school in the city, Hilltoppers burn plenty of "midnight oil" in quest of a high school education.

Many attending Evening High are high school and college graduates who wish further training in a specialized subject.

For the most part students attending school here hold business positions in the daylight hours.

Ages of Hilltoppers enrolled this term range from 16 to 67.

Hilltoppers attending Columbus Evening School are:

W. F. Gauggel Speaker As Daughter Receives Honors

MARILYN GAUGGEL looks over the speech her dad, Fred Gauggel, made at a school assembly which honored members of the National Honor Society last Tuesday.

By Myrca T. Seifert

An honor, perhaps heretofore unparalleled in the annals of West High School, was bestowed upon W. F. Gauggel, class of 1919, and his daughter, Marilyn, January class of 1950, at National Honor recognition rites held at the Powell-av school Tuesday morning.

Both Mr. Gauggel and his daughter, Marilyn, the only member of the January '50 class to make all A's in her subjects at West High, qualified for membership in the school's highest scholastic and honorary society.

Miss Gauggel was publicly recognized for her scholastic achievements at the Tuesday morning assembly, while Father Gauggel was guest speaker of the occasion. (Incidentally, Mrs. Gauggel is also a West High graduate).

The ceremony opened with an instrumental prelude, "The Little Tin Soldiers", under the direction of Clair Barnard, followed by Principal I. F. Young's greetings to the parents in attendance. He then presented and lauded Marilyn for her outstanding achievements.

The choir sang two numbers, "Sweet Little Jesus Boy" and Oh What a Beautiful Morning".

Five girls, Ellen Page, Jean Huston, Barbara Pindell, Shirley Cline and Phyllis Planck, explained the honor groups in West High, with Marilyn Gauggel as M. C.

Aubrey Fisher, representing Scholarship, Charlotte Cranston, Service, Joan Deyo, Leadership, and Jane Batrell, Character, together with the five mentioned above, were installed into the National Honor Society by Mr. Young.

A trio consisting of Shirley Cline, Marilyn Gauggel, Barbara Pindell, accompanied by Ellen Page, sang "Go Down Moses". Principal Young introduced W. F. Gauggel, the speaker. Following the address, Ellen Page played a piano solo.

Felicitations and membership cards were presented to the newly elected honoraries by Principal I. F. Young and Vice Principal Blanche Kern.

"L" Society neophytes were also accorded recognition for their scholastic achievements and installed into the society. The assembly closed with the singing of the Alma Mater, led by Mrs. Edith White, the vocal music director of the school.

The newly elected "L" members were Marcia Brady, Katherine Lentz, Jim Lorenz, Phyllis Lowry, Walter Nickens, John Rockwell, Barbara Pendell and Jean Huston.

Lucky Day

Friday the 13th holds no fear for Claire Patterson, West High School senior. Friday is her 18th birthday and also the day of the senior prom. It will be a big day for Claire since she is a member of the ways and means committee of the senior class. Claire will also be one of the two student speakers at the January graduation ceremonies. Upon graduation she will take a job at the Columbus State School. She hopes eventually to enter a journalism school and go into newspaper work.

'Think This Over'

By William "Doc" Campbell

Caruso . . . Paderewski
Oley Speaks . . . Dr. Gladden

To see great people and especially to meet them, is surely a milestone in one's full life. I have always been a "hero-worshipper." Indeed, from about 20 years on, it became a fetish with me.

The first great man who faintly lingers in my memory is Caruso, the immortal tenor. Standing in the fifth balcony of the Metropolitan Opera House, I heard this incomparable singer. The aria was for "Rigoletto" by Verdi. All I can recall is his short, stocky personality (tenors usually have short necks and are plump; baritones, long necks and tall) his glorious voice in the upper registers—his tremendous volume and ravishing tone. What a singer! You must read his wife's (Dorothy Caruso) remarkable book. So pathetic in its last pages, but definitely true, it will move you.

Recently the "Met" performed an opera in a Saturday broadcast on the 21st anniversary to a day that Caruso sang it—his last. Three old ladies were interviewed between the acts and they were so happy to say they had heard Caruso, and I can proudly say, too, "I heard Caruso."

Paderewski is another name to conjure with. I first heard him play the piano when I was about 16 years of age, in Carnegie Hall, up three balconies—standing. He seemed so small and far away, all except his big, luscious tone. The only piece that I remember was his lovely "Minuet", and I stood spellbound as he held one important note (that most pianists miss). Again I heard him in his prime and at my early prime, in Memorial Hall, in the balcony but seated this time; dimmed stage lights, almost dark. What a program—varied, intense and exquisite. At the conclusion of the concert, my wife and I rushed to the stage entrance and saw him only a few feet away, under his limousine light. A massive mop of light auburn hair, like a beaming sunset, over a decidedly Polish face. He fought the idea of playing over the radio (did not want any machine to mar the result) until he capitulated at 80 years of age—fire gone, but still the great Paderewski.

Our own Oley Speaks, singer and composer of everlastingly enchanting songs. When I came to Columbus in 1907 one of my new friends "threw a party" for me to meet this distinguished composer, and Oley Speaks sat at the piano and played and sang for me his own "Road to Mandalay". What a personal thrill. Just the other evening I heard via television the great baritone, Leonard Warren, sing it again. Speaks' "Sylvia" and "Morning" will live forever in the repertoire of great singers.

Dr. Washington Gladden, international dovine, known better on the Continent for his books on theology and philosophy, former pastor of the First Congregational Church on E. Broad-st. I believe that his first church, as a young man, was in Brooklyn, N. Y., a Congregational church, and it was this church that I attended before my early 20's, when my father was superintendent of the Sunday school for 10 years. Dr. Gladden was a fighter for this (Columbus) community, ran for a seat in council, was elected and vigorously helped clean up this adolescent town. What concerns me more was that he married us in 1909, nearing 80 years of age. The ceremony, a very simple, private one, took place in the famous study of the old church, corner of E. Broad and Third-sts, with the celebrated cartoonist of the Ohio State Journal, Harry Westerman, as my best man. Well, at 10 a. m., no best man. We waited, say, 10 or 15 minutes. Then I got nervous—and busy! Phoned the Journal, two doors away, and he answered. "Great Scott, Bill, I absolutely forgot it! I'll be right over. The two white horses (hearse horses, week days) and carriage were waiting outside the church. After a small wedding breakfast, we took a train for New York City and sailed on the large steamship "St. Louis" for a two month honeymoon in England, Scotland and France.

Now, why all of these "great people' 'episodes? You know why . . . . it brightens our passing existence, it makes us feel important and it is something to gab about later. Don't miss the opportunity to meet or see (really) great people of your age and time.

"THINK THIS OVER".

CAROL KAUFFMAN was so engrossed in her reading the other night, this is what happened. She reached over for another bite of Hershey bar and what did she put in her mouth?! Her leather Lazarus credit holder! What were you tryin' to do, CAROL? Chew up your mortgage with Lazarus? Tough job!

MRS. BROBECK entertained her SPI class Monday. Wonder if they all wore SPY glasses? Knowing MRS. BROBECK the way I do, the only thing she would spy on would be her own soul. She's quite active over there at Glenwood.

Most of these television sets can be carried around. For instance, last Sunday the MURNANES had one for the night. The MITCHELLS (DOTTIES parents) brought theirs over for an evening's entertainment. This is the first step. Now if only they could talk them out of it altogether!

ANNE NELSON ordered her chicken dressed and cut up. Was she ever in a dither when she opened her package! It was a whole chicken. She pulled and twisted and broke it up somehow. She quotes: "I'm going to butcher the butcher that made me butcher that chicken the way I did." Wonder who her grocer is? He'd better hide out or she'll be "Wanted for Murder".

Erl and jack were out helpin' FLOYD erl up his car. Took four cans of erl (one for each wheel I guess). BERNARD had the front of the car jacked up high. He did a swell job all alone. Purrs like a kitten—not B. F., the car.

The SCOTTS, SHEAS and CALLIFS are glad they don't have to take turns driving their children to school any more. The big yellow bus picks them up every day now—the children I mean. But I wouldn't doubt it if the parents could learn a few pointers at school themselves, come to think of it. Seems the pupils nowadays can outsmart the elders in a few tricks and remarks.

Take for instance my grandson, eight years old, who came home to his dad one day and said, "Pop, see this pistol I found in your closet? I'm going to play with it. It will keep me quiet and out of mischief." Oops! What next will come out of the mouths of babes?

Sewing is an art, but the way my wife sewed on this button which isn't here! Seems it was missing off this shirt the last time I put it on. She blames it on the wringer. Says she needs a new one. In fact she wants a new WASHER!

Cheaper to buy a shirt! Saves time and money. See you folks next week!

Making a fool of yourself isn't such a bad mistake—if you have sense enough to know who did it.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

AUDREY and Kit were walking up the hill to the crossroads where they would leave one another, Audrey going down to the valley and Kit with still another hill ahead of her before she reached the lane.

There was north in the wind, sharpening the color and outlines of the rim of hills, but the October sun was still warm enough to temper the nippy air and they walked along slowly and unevenly, stopping now and then to choose a cluster of grapes or to pick an apple. Kit had already eaten three half-ripe Baldwins and her teeth ached from biting into their cold, hard tartness. She had persuaded Audrey to desert the school bus and walk home part way with her, and Audrey, who disliked exercise, had given in grudgingly. There was a feud on in the eighth grade. Ten of the dozen who made up the class were against Kit's choice for the Thanksgiving play.

"I don't care so much about their not choosing my play," said Kit, "but the 'Death of Bad Grammar' is so dull and there aren't half parts enough to go around."

"Oh, everyone knows that," said Audrey complacently. She was perfectly willing to give her advice to either side. "It's just that they don't want to do your's, good or bad. They want to pay you back."

"But what for? What have I done?" asked Kit, bewildered.

Audrey twirled her plaid briefcase behind her knees, catching it neatly with her other hand. "They want a change. You've been at the head too long. You get better marks in composition and you talk up to the teacher and she likes it, and you've written three plays for them already."

"I can't help it if I can do some things better than they, can I? Anyway, they don't like to do any of the real work, except to get the best parts and choose the costumes. And they're all way ahead of me in sewing class. I'm still on the long seam of that old nightgown while they're all finishing the neck."

"Sewing's an extra and doesn't count," observed Audrey shrewdly. "They used to pick on me when we were in the sixth grade and Ma had just gone off."

Kit recalled that rather bitterly comparing her loyalty to Audrey's variableness now. Today she was closely sympathetic. Tomorrow she might shake her head and shrug, "I don't care."

"And then there's your hats. They scream at those beaver things."

"I hate those damfool hats," said Kit grimly. "But my Aunt Fanny picks them out and sends them from Boston."

"Well," said Audrey, "there just is no class to a beaver hat with streamers."

"I know," said Kit miserably. "Black or brown brushed beaver for winter, leghorn with navy blue streamers for summer, varying each year only in the head-size and the length of elastic under the chin.

Stuck-up and smarty, Audrey said they called her behind her back while they ignored her to her face. It had all come so suddenly. Six weeks ago, they had deferred to her opinion, whirled her around in their tight little circle of animated whisperings and giggling.

She had talked it over with Marvell, and he had told her to hold her own. "Give it to them, let them stew in their own tepid juice a while. Then they'll come round of their own accord for juicy parts and you can run the whole shebang." But Marvell wasn't on the scene. She had to manage this alone. What seemed like a fine challenge to him was an uncomfortable strain to her who would rather conform than rebel. Maybe if she could get rid of those hats, be more like the rest of the girls, maybe not even bother with acting for a while...

Audrey went on talking. "They're only out after you. I had to take it for Ma, too. I gave Sophie a split lip for her nasty remarks when Ma ran off and left us."

"Did Poldi mind?" asked Kit, referring to Mrs. Stanewski's departure.

"She didn't have to face the kids in school and she's Pa's favorite, anyhow. She works out most of the time now—milking! Honestly, tying herself down to dirty work like that. How'll she ever have any fun?"

"She looks happy," ventured Kit who had always secretly admired Audrey's older sister. She rarely saw her, now, but she loved to get her dark, glowing smile.

"She lets me alone," boasted Audrey, "just as the kids do now."

They were almost at the crossroads. Kit was intent on her own puzzle and did not hear the car until it was nearly upon them. It was a dusty Ford and it tore between them as they sprang apart wildly, one to each side of the road. The driver yelled back at them but his words were lost.

"That was a damfool thing to do," panted Kit as they got into step together. "Marvell says two walkers should always stay together on the left side of the road."

"If you were me, you'd have to do penance for those 'damfools' you spread around," said Audrey enviously.

"It's not real swearing," Kit protested. "It's just like your saying 'fishcakes.' Who was in the car?"

"I couldn't tell. Maybe it was Furse. He's back again. Did you ever see him?"

"No."

"I did once, ages ago, when he used to ride with that great friend of yours, Miss Searle." Audrey drawled her name with dislike. "Do you ever hear from her now?"

"Yes, lots. She is in Ireland now and she hunts. She sent me some linen handkerchiefs last week and before that two pairs of colored suede gloves from Paris. That's class!"

"Kids don't wear colored gloves now," she said. "I never liked her, she was so stuck-up and after every man she saw—your father, even Pa. Ma said so."

"She was not!"

"She was, too!"

Kit shot to the other side of the road. "If you call her stuck-up, I am glad I am, too. She was a lady!" she finished triumphantly.

"That time at your first party, she treated me and Peter like we had worms and she carted us off to show us her horses and never did."

"It grew dark," said Kit, remembering the end of her birthday party and Nedda's comforting return.

"Well, so long," said Audrey, veering off to the left. "Who cares? She'll never come around again. Take a look at Furse's house and see if that was his car." She waved and started jogging down hill.

Kit swung along faster now that she was alone. As she climbed to the top of the rise in the road, the chimneys of Nedda's house appeared rosily, one by one. The big house with its magnificent sentinels of elms and maples stood so quietly, so patiently in the mellow sunlight that it caught at Kit's heart. There was no sign of neglect. A caretaker cut the lawn, swept the driveway, made frequent trips from town to see that the unboarded windows were never broken, that the drawn, black shades never slipped up. Its empty perfection was almost more desolate than decay. It teased you into believing that someone was already there—or would return any moment. It would be darker than ever inside, she supposed. It had always been dark and cool and dustless, screened by the great trees. She missed it all so passionately that it was like a pain. It stood to her for serenity and stability and she had never quite forgiven Marvell that he had closed this door. She never thought about this when she was with him—his talk, his games—his excitement were too contagious, too exciting. It was only when she was uncertain and lonely that she searched for some assurance of wholeness, which Nedda had mysteriously given her.

She turned away, the awkward thumping of the plaid bag accented each heavy beat of her heart. She tried to lift her spirit by making word patterns out of the rich varied pattern before her eyes. Marvell had told her that poetry was more natural to man than prose, but that men had fallen away from the wonder of it. It seemed to her that it took two to make the wonder, and one-half of hers was missing for she had no listener. She lengthened her steps to get home all the more quickly.

The road flattened out in front of Furse's and became as dull and commonplace as the house itself. It had an unfinished look about it still, the story and a half gray clapboard building set, not in a lawn, but in a roughly mowed pasture through which a rutted road had been cut. There were no big trees to shield it. It was set back several feet from the road. She kept her head straight on the road but out of the corner of her eye, as she passed by, she saw the Ford in front of the lean-to next to a big lumber truck.

Fellowship Practiced in Early Church — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 2:42-5:42.

After the Holy Ghost had come upon them, the apostles continued in close fellowship, owning all things in common.

Peter and John went to the temple where a man lame from birth was asking alms. Peter cured his lameness.

Seeing the lame man walk, all the people ran toward him. Peter and John to express wonder and amazement.

Officers of the temple, angered by preaching, took Peter and John to prison.

MEMORY VERSE—Acts 4:32.

Wisdom Must Be Coupled With Loyalty To God Group Is Told

"Wisdom has never been a guarantee against foolishness and scholastic wisdom without the salt of common sense and the pepper of life experience has often proved to be sheer foolishness," Rev. Norman L. Schreiber told members of the School of Religion of the Franklin County Council of Churches in their first meeting Monday evening.

Rev. Schreiber delivered the opening sermon on the subject, "The Wisest Fool". Schreiber said that King Solomon might well be called the wisest fool in the Bible.

"No man ever chose more wisely in his youth th Kingdom of God and righteousness," he said of Solomon, "yet none ever fell from a greater height to a greater depth. He dreamed well, but he was not faithful to his dream. He was wise, but with his wisdom became only a fool."

Rev. Schreiber advised the members of the school, "With noble dreams and wise minds must come a great loyalty to God."

Dr. Don Timmerman opened the school with the reading of the Litany. Robert Cather was the soloist of the evening and Harry Ford was the organist.

Registration for the schcol will be open again next Monday. It is hoped that the membership of the school will exceed 700. Enrollment at the first meeting was 575.

Rev. Schreiber, pastor of the Westgate Methodist Church, is the dean of the school.

Isn't it strange that so many folks complain about 20c per quart for milk and think little of paying $4 per quart for whisky?"

Kiwanis Club Winds Up A Big Year

We are a little late in saying so but we just can't let it go unsaid that the big Hilltop Kiwanis installation party held recently at the Fort Hayes Army and Navy Club was one of the best yet.

The club did itself proud and put a real finish on an already very successful year, with a party that was lively, entertaining and will long be remembered. The members of the committee in charge are to be highly complimented.

Short Notes: Harold Cunningham, candidate for county commissioner, is an enthusiastic campaigner, even to the extent that he was over into Delaware County last week trying to get some votes . . . Our boy Lee Koontz, who tried to wreck one of our metal saws by sticking his finger in it last week, may not be quite as adept at fiddle playing as he was . . . Flowers of the Week

A nice Rosebud bouquet this week to H. R. Birchfield; assistant superintendent of mails at the main post office, along with all his boys in that department. We have been dealing with them often in recent years and have always been accorded the finest of service. These men are doing a fine job and while they do not come in contact with the public so often we feel they deserve a special bit of recognition.

Floral Tribute Paid 11 Seniors By West Occident

Top seniors, whose activities to West High School, have loomed large during their final year, were publicly recognized at a school assembly held Jan. 11.

The school paper, The Occident, which sponsors presentation of flowers through courtesy of Rosebud Florists each month to deserving students, recognized these for their achievements:

Weight Crashes Through Hilliards School Floor

A door-weight crashed through the first floor to a basement classroom Thursday at Hilliards Grade School. The hundred-pound weight for a clothes-closet door in a first grade classroom on the first floor, broke through the floor and landed in the basement room where a third grade class was being conducted, when the weight's chain snapped.

No one was injured in the accident, Ray Moore, 2610 Eakin-rd, school principal, reported.

"We are checking," Moore stated, "the weights on the other doors, which are in almost every room. We will probably have to re-enforce the floors under these weights. The closet doors, with these weights, are on both the first and second floors," Moore added.

Dr. and Mrs. Hulett Solve Housing Problem; Remodel Own Apartment

DR. AND MRS. GUY HULETT relax in their recently completed third-floor apartment of the Community Hospital, which they operate at 721 S. Souder-av.

Yankee ingenuity was employed by Dr. and Mrs. Guy Hulett when they recently converted the third-floor attic of their Community Hospital, 721 S. Souder-av, into an apartment.

The doctor, who has offices at 2413 W. Broad-st, and his wife, did most of the work on the apartment themselves. The work, which consisted of carpentry, painting and laying lincleum, took them several months. They started last June and completed the job just before Christmas.

Even though the task was hard and took them a long time, they enjoyed the work. However, they've had their fill of it. They don't want any more jobs like this one. For instance, it took Dr. Hulett 30 hours to build a lattice door for the bedroom.

In remodeling the attic, the Huletts had a problem. Several iron pipes were congregated in one corner of the room. To solve the problem they boxed in the pipes and built a bar around them. They insulated the ceiling and walls with rock lath and then painted them with stucco paint. They also cut a sky-light in the ceiling.

The Huletts worked on the job only during their spare time on Saturdays and Sundays. Dr. Hulett estimates the material for the conversion cost them only $700, plus the furnishings. They, with a little help, did all the work except laying the carpet.

The home in which the Community Hospital is housed is an old building of colonial style. It was formerly the home of Judge David F. Pugh. In 1794, Congress set aside the land on which the house is situated for the Virginia Line, a regiment of the Revolutionary Army. It was known as the Virginia Military Lands.

Capt. John Overton, a veteran of the Revolution, was the first man to claim the land where Hulett's hospital is located. In 1823 the land went over to the Franklin Bank of Columbus. Much later, Judge Pugh, who was Dr. Hulett's Sunday School teacher at the King Avenue Methodist Church, owned the house and land.

The Huletts have owned the home for the past three years. Until the apartment was completed, they lived on the second floor of the hospital building. They plan to build a home to the south of the hospital. The attic apartment will then be used as a recreation room for the nurses.

DR. HULETT looks at a model of the Santa Maria, one of the ships of Christopher Columbus, that he built.

Charges Inefficiency

Henderson has previously charged that certain of the recommendations would result in neither economy nor efficiency and that veterans would suffer.

Henderson said that the bills he opposes would increase bureaucracy and waste the taxpayers' money by creating a new administration in the government, a new corporation, a new commission and 2068 new civil service boards.

Degree Team

The degree team for the initiation will consist of Robert Daggett, commander; Mario Smith, vice-commander; Dewey Stout, first vice-commander; W. L. Minnameyer, second vice-commander; John Martindale, chaplain; and John West, sergeant-at-arms.

Seeing the lame man walk, all the people ran toward him. Peter and John to express wonder and amazement.

Wisdom Must Be Coupled With Loyalty To God Group Is Told

"Wisdom has never been a guarantee against foolishness and scholastic wisdom without the salt of common sense and the pepper of life experience has often proved to be sheer foolishness," Rev. Norman L. Schreiber told members of the School of Religion of the Franklin County Council of Churches in their first meeting Monday evening.

Rev. Schreiber delivered the opening sermon on the subject, "The Wisest Fool". Schreiber said that King Solomon might well be called the wisest fool in the Bible.

"No man ever chose more wisely in his youth th Kingdom of God and righteousness," he said of Solomon, "yet none ever fell from a greater height to a greater depth. He dreamed well, but he was not faithful to his dream. He was wise, but with his wisdom became only a fool."

Rev. Schreiber advised the members of the school, "With noble dreams and wise minds must come a great loyalty to God."

Dr. Don Timmerman opened the school with the reading of the Litany. Robert Cather was the soloist of the evening and Harry Ford was the organist.

Registration for the school will be open again next Monday. It is hoped that the membership of the school will exceed 700. Enrollment at the first meeting was 575.

Rev. Schreiber, pastor of the Westgate Methodist Church, is the dean of the school.

Kiwanis Club Winds Up A Big Year

We are a little late in saying so but we just can't let it go unsaid that the big Hilltop Kiwanis installation party held recently at the Fort Hayes Army and Navy Club was one of the best yet.

The club did itself proud and put a real finish on an already very successful year, with a party that was lively, entertaining and will long be remembered. The members of the committee in charge are to be highly complimented.

Flowers of the Week

A nice Rosebud bouquet this week to H. R. Birchfield, assistant superintendent of mails at the main post office, along with all his boys in that department. We have been dealing with them often in recent years and have always been accorded the finest of service. These men are doing a fine job and while they do not come in contact with the public so often we feel they deserve a special bit of recognition.

Weight Crashes Through Hilliards School Floor

A door-weight crashed through the first floor to a basement classroom Thursday at Hilliards Grade School. The hundred-pound weight for a clothes-closet door in a first grade classroom on the first floor, broke through the floor and landed in the basement room where a third grade class was being conducted, when the weight's chain snapped.

No one was injured in the accident, Roy Moore, 3610 Eakin-rd, school principal, reported.

"We are checking," Moore stated, "the weights on the other doors, which are in almost every room. We will probably have to re-enforce the floors under these weights. The closet doors, with these weights, are on both the first and second floors," Moore added.

Dr. and Mrs. Hulett Solve Housing Problem; Remodel Own Apartment

DR. AND MRS. GUY HULETT relax in their recently completed third-floor apartment of the Community Hospital, which they operate at 721 S. Souder-av.

Yankee ingenuity was employed by Dr. and Mrs. Guy Hulett when they recently converted the third-floor attic of their Community Hospital, 721 S. Souder-av, into an apartment.

The doctor, who has offices at 2413 W. Broad-st, and his wife, did most of the work on the apartment themselves. The work, which consisted of carpentry, painting and laying linoleum, took them several months. They started last June and completed the job just before Christmas.

Even though the task was hard and took them a long time, they enjoyed the work. However, they've had their fill of it. They don't want any more jobs like this one. For instance, it took Dr. Hulett 30 hours to build a lattice door for the bedroom.

In remodeling the attic, the Huletts had a problem. Several iron pipes were congregated in one corner of the room. To solve the problem they boxed in the pipes and built a bar around them. They insulated the ceiling and walls with rock lath and then painted them with stucco paint. They also cut a sky-light in the ceiling.

The Huletts worked on the job only during their spare time on Saturdays and Sundays. Dr. Hulett estimates the material for the conversion cost them only $700, plus the furnishings. They, with a little help, did all the work except laying the carpet.

The home in which the Community Hospital is housed is an old building of colonial style. It was formerly the home of Judge David F. Pugh. In 1794, Congress set aside the land on which the house is situated for the Virginia Line, a regiment of the Revolutionary Army. It was known as the Virginia Military Lands.

Capt. John Overton, a veteran of the Revolution, was the first man to claim the land where Hulett's hospital is located. In 1823 the land went over to the Franklin Bank of Columbus. Much later, Judge Pugh, who was Dr. Hulett's Sunday School teacher at the King Avenue Methodist Church, owned the house and land.

The Huletts have owned the home for the past three years. Until the apartment was completed, they lived on the second floor of the hospital building. They plan to build a home to the south of the hospital. The attic apartment will then be used as a recreation room for the nurses.

DR. HULETT looks at a model of the Santa Maria, one of the ships of Christopher Columbus, that he built.

THE HILLTOP AND WEST SIDE will soon be serviced by a new and larger emergency squad car. Plans are to substitute this one-ton truck for the smaller one stationed at Fire Engine House No. 6, at Mill-av and W. Broad-st, where Emergency Squad No. 3 operates. The squad car will be able to carry two litters and a larger supply of oxygen. The truck is now being converted for its future use at the Fire Department's maintenance garage on Greenlawn-av. Johnnie Moon, a fireman-mechanic who lives at 1228 Deckebach-rd, in the Greenlawn Housing Project, works on the truck.

The principal speaker of the evening will be Bruce P. Henderson, commander of the Department of Ohio and the first World War II department commander of the legion. Henderson will speak on the portion of the Hoover Committee recommendations that affects veterans.

Charges Inefficiency

Henderson has previously charged that certain of the recommendations would result in neither economy nor efficiency and that veterans would suffer.

Henderson said that the bills he opposes would increase bureaucracy and waste the taxpayers' money by creating a new administration in the government, a new corporation, a new commission and 2068 new civil service boards.

Degree Team

The degree team for the initiation will consist of Robert Daggett, commander; Marlo Smith, vice-commander; Dewey Stout, first vice-commander; W. L. Minnameyer, second vice-commander; John Martindale, chaplain; and John West, sergeant-at-arms.

AMERICAN DEMOCRACY CAN BE PRESERVED BY RETURNING TAFT TO THE U. S. SENATE

Although Taft Is Conceded By Political Friend and Foe To Be One of The Most Able, Upright Men Ever To Hold A Senate Seat, -- Every Effort Will Be Made To Destroy Him By Those Who Would Make America A Totalitarian State.

It will be a grave reflection upon the intelligence of rank-and-file trade-unionists if they follow the dictates of their illogical leaders in their unwarranted attempt to unseat Sen. Taft in November, 1950. Taft is far more than a senator from Ohio. HE IS A NATIONAL ASSET, a strong, unbiased leader in these crucial times when the party in power lacks the leadership the world depends upon America to give.

For 16 years this country has been suffering a modified form of socialism and the present trend is more and more toward the type of government which has brought the once great British Empire to a pitiable state of weakness and insolvency. The Truman theory of creating prosperity by going broke through deficit spending is an example of this trend. The Truman plan to extend reciprocal trade agreements to some 50 nations, permitting their goods to enter almost duty-free, is hamstringing many American industries and may bankrupt them, thereby causing more and more unemployment . . . Government by bureaucratic directives is a far cry from the representative government by constitutional law envisioned by our country's founders.

All these false theories have been fought by Sen. Taft in the interest of ALL the American people. Taft's housing and education programs are forward steps for the good of all. His labor act is a boon to rank-and-file union members,--fair and equitable to Labor, Management and Public, but because it clipped the wings of a few greedy labor leaders they have done everything possible to bring about its repeal and to malign its co-author. President Truman was quick to use it in national emergency disputes and they wooed labor votes by double-talk about its repeal. His own Democratic-controlled Congress has refused to repeal it.

ALMOST SINGLE HANDED TAFT BLOCKED TRUMAN IN THE 1946 rail strike when he asked Congress for authority to draft rail strikers into the armed services, showing the difference in attitude of the two men toward organized labor.

Although deprived of his majority leadership in the 81st Congress, Taft has been most influential in keeping this Congress from being a rubber-stamp, me-too body, bowing to the demands of selfish pressure groups to the detriment of the welfare of all the people and the ruination of the traditional freedoms of the Republic.

Through 'thick-and-thin' Taft has fought the fight of the people utilizing his sound straight-thinking and good American horse sense. He repeatedly has jeopardized his own political aspirations by taking unwavering stands against visionary, money-wasting legislation initiated by starry-eyed leftists seeking only to perpetuate their own power at the expense of the people as a whole. HE IS ONE OF THE GREATEST AMERICANS IN THE HISTORY OF OUR COUNTRY.

We need more law-makers of the caliber of Robert A. Taft and to lose his experience, keen insight, integrity and 'intestinal fortitude' would be a catastrophe to Americans from coast to coast and lakes to gulf. Every citizen should analyze Taft's record in Congress and then analyze the groups which will fight him for re-election. The political party still calling itself the Democratic party doesn't want a strong man to block the socialistic dictatorship with which they would enslave us. Many labor leaders prefer a weakling whom they can control for their own selfish greed. It's up to each of us to decide what kind of an America we and our children want to live in -- a socialistic state or a Republic. If we prefer a free Republic . . .

WE MUST KEEP TAFT ON THE FIRING LINE IN CONGRESS

Give -- Help Stamp Out Polio

The plague, also known as the Black Death and Pestilence, has been one of the greatest mankillers in history. In the 14th century it killed 25 million in Europe and probably another 25 million in China and India. Now only one or two cases a year are reported in the United States. They are usually treated and cured with very little trouble. There are practicing doctors who have never treated a case of the plague, either bubonic or pneumonic.

Last year was the worst polio year on record. More than 40,000 cases of polio were treated at a cost of more than 31 million dollars. The polio death rate was way up too.

Yet the picture is not altogether black. Many doctors believe that in some form poliomyelitis is probably one of the commonest diseases, that it is usually so mild that the patient recovers without knowing he had more than a sick headache or a low fever, and that the lucky victim is then immune to attacks of the severe form of polio. If the strain of virus causing this form of the disease could be isolated, it may not be long before children could be inoculated against the disease.

Also on the bright side of the picture is the recent prediction that a cure, if not a preventative for polio, will be discovered within the next 10 years.

Forty-four universities and other organizations in the country are using March of Dimes Funds to clear away the mystery surrounding polio, trying to discover how the virus is transmitted, trying to find why polio is a hot weather disease although the virus can live a year in the deep freeze, trying to find why the disease has become more severe in the last 50 years, why its increase occurs chiefly in countries with high living standards.

The chance of these problems being answered is good, but the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is in dire need of money to continue research work. The high cost of treating last year's record number of cases completely exhausted funds on hand.

The treatment of polio is painfully slow and expensive. The convalescent period in some cases covers a number of years. Respirators, whirling baths, and other equipment used is expensive. Most families stricken by polio cannot afford to bear the cost of treating the disease. The average cost treatment costs around $7000 and it is not unusual for this amount to reach $6000. March of Dims funds are used, therefore, in the treatment of most cases.

The day is approaching when a cure of polio may be as rare as a case of the plague, but the winning battle is an expensive battle. Some of your neighbors are in the midst of a campaign to collect funds to fight polio. Your generosity will hasten the day when it can be reported: "Only one or two cases a year of polio are reported in the United States."

The annual election and installation of officers of the Hilltop Community Council rescheduled to be held last week at the Westgate Methodist Church has been postponed until the next meeting of the council.

All participating organizations are urged to send their representatives to this meeting, which will be held Feb. 8, probably at the Glenwood Recreation Center.

Cowboys To Meet Highly Rated South Team In Bulldog Gym Tonight

By Dave Miller

West's basketballers meet an always dangerous South five tonight in the South gym, with the host squad the definite favorite.

The Puppies, who have won nine out of 11 outings in the frays thus far this season, will be led by their high-scoring center, big six-foot six-inch Paul Ebert. The big pivotman, one of the best in the state, and THE best in the city, has scored 289 points in 11 frays thus far this season, for a 23.9 game average.

The big center's biggest night was a 40-point job against North for a new City League individual scoring record. On the next night, playing in non-loop competition, the big center hit the nets for 34 against Lima South.

Here is South's record to date, with Ebert's total points for that game in parenthesis following the score:

South, 95; Mifflin, 35 (28).
South, 79; Marietta, 35 (28).
Springfield, 59; South, 57 (21).
South, 74; Marion, 60 (20).
South, 71; North, 49 (40).
South, 78; Lima South, 55 (34).
South, 60; Lockland, 45 (43).
South, 35; Hamilton, 34 (9).
South, 78; Linden, 47 (24).
South, 86; Central, 53 (28).
Dayton Roosevelt, 50; South, 48 (24).

The Bulldogs' two losses have been to teams that have been beaten by teams that South has defeated. South defeated North, 71-49, but lost to Dayton Roosevelt by 50-48; a team that North beat, 48-45. Also, Springfield Edged South, and Central, an 86-53 loser to the Pups, defeated Springfield, 53-50.

So by that aforementioned West has as good a chance as anyone else Tuesday evening and in this game of basketball, anything can happen.

South, coached again by Pug Hood, has averaged 69.1 points per game. Their shortest man is 6 ft.

Central's 4th Period Drive Gives Pirates 59-41 Win; West's Frist City League Loss

By Dave Miller

A terrible fourth period spelled a sound defeat for West's Cowboys in their quest for their fourth straight City League win last Friday evening in a game played at Central. The final score of 59 to 41 explains it.

The Cowboys had tied the score at 39-all with seven minutes remaining in the game, but Central's flashy pack of cagers did a neat finish as they held our Cowboys basketless and proceeded to burn the nets for 20 points on their own.

West's Phil Young played his usual brilliant game, being high point man with 17 markers, in addition to playing a terrific game on the rebounds. Phil seemed to snare practically every West rebound, and of course had his usual good eye for the basket also.

The Cowboys jumped off in the opening minutes to a 2-0 margin, their only lead of the game on Young's push shot. Central then tied matters later at 4-all, and then slowly began to climb into the driver's seat, and, aided by some fancy shooting of their star center, Marvin Hairston, they hopped into a 14-7 first quarter lead.

Central managed to maintain that same seven-point margin at halftime, holding a 24-17 verdict at intermission.

However, the story changed its course in the third period and things were looking brighter for West's rooters. Central took a lead of 31-32 with 3:14 left in the third quarter, but Phil Young followed with three consecutive buckets, and Central's lead had been cut to 31-28. Things continued at this pace until Guard Bill Thrush of the Cowboys tossed in a hook shot and the quarter ended in Central's favor, only, however, at 37-39.

Forward Frank Carson of the Cowboys then sank a duo of free tosses, and it was a new ball game. With a minute elapsed in the fourth period, the score was knotted at 39-all.

However, Central's superiority of rebounds, accuracy on shots and great all around team play paid off in big dividends in those remaining moments. The Bucs outscored our Cowboys, 20-2 in that period. There's the difference.

West's reserves suffered a real heart-breaker, dropping a thrilling 29-28 verdict to Central's seconds. Harry Fenstmaker of Central dropped in a free throw to win the game for the Bucs with 23 seconds left in the game. Warren Stevens topped the locals in scoring with eight markers.

Hilliards Loses 47-38 In Upset Game Friday

Center Gail Manning meshed 21 points to pace Hamilton Township to an upset, 47-38, victory over Hilliards on the Hamilton hardwoods.

Hilliards led during the first two periods but wilted as the Hamilton cagers found their sights to knot the score at 32-32 after three periods and dropped out of the picture in the closing period. Hamilton's reserves made it a sweep with a 47-38 victory in the opener.

Burgess, Hoge and Oakley Win In 'Y' Church League

By Joe Hutt

The "Y" League resumed play, after a months layoff following the holiday season. Apparently the holiday rest did not do any good for the three losing teams Burgess ran over St. Paul to the score of 27 to 11. Hoge trampled the Church of Christ boys 41 to 18, and the Wildcats had a rough time as they beat the Highland Friends 26-20.

St. Paul's put up their best fight of the year, but didn't have the scoring punch as they lost to Burgess. Klein of Burgess and Hutt of St. Paul's were selected as top men of the evening. Carpenter of Burgess and Beatty of St. Paul's were high point men respectively with 9 and 6 points. The score by quarters.

Burgess	11	4	6	6	27
St. Paul	2	1	4	4	11

The second game of the evening was between last-place Church of Christ and first-place Hoge. Hoge, as usual, with their top flight team came out on top. Wahrer of Hoge and McNight of C. C. were voted outstanding of the evening. Wahrer was exceptionally good as he hit the nets for 17 points. Groomes of C. of C. was high with 7. The score by quarters.

Hoge	5	10	15	11	41
C of C	4	5	4	5	18

Oakley came out on top after a nip-an-tuck battle with Highland-av. It just wasn't Highland's night as they lost 26 to 20. Golden of Oakley, and Killian of Highland were voted outstanding by their coaches. It was a very rough and tough battle all through the game. The score by quarters:

Team Standings

Oakley	6	10	2	8	26
Highland	6	6	0	8	20
Hogs				3	0
Burgess				2	1
Oakley				2	1
St. Paul's				1	2

Invention of Printing Has Changed The World

Just over 500 years ago printing was born in the Rhine Valley of Germany when John Gutenburg put cut the first piece of printing done in Europe from movable type.

The impact of the invention of printing on the human race was greater than that of the atom bomb, the good done for mankind by printing has surpassed that of penicillin and other wonder drugs. Yet printing has become so commonplace and familiar that it is often disregarded. If printing didn't exist, only those rich enough to buy the rare hand-copied manuscripts would have any semblance of an education.

This week we celebrate National Printing Week. This is the week chosen because it is during this week that we also celebrate the birthday of Benjamin Franklin.

Franklin was one of the greatest statesmen and scientists of his age. He laid the foundations for our postal system, invented bifocal spectacles, established the first circulating library, and was the first to propose daylight saving time. Yet he preferred to refer to himself as "that humble printer of Philadelphia".

Franklin got his first experience in a newspaper shop at the age of 13, working for his brother James who published the New England Courant.

He also published the first foreign-language paper in the colonies, the Philadelphia Zeitung. However he is best known for the Pennsylvania Gazette.

The Gazette was probably the best paper of its time in the New World. It was a well rounded, newsy paper, livelier and handsomer than any of its contemporaries.

Franklin's effect on the colonies was also widespread due to the fact that he rewarded his better painters by setting them up in business as publishers and printers in other colonies. In this way he had a hand in the founding of at least half a dozen papers.

The power of the printed word is recognized by all today, whether it be a publisher wiring his photographer, "Give me the pictures and I'll give you your war", or an editor reassuring countless children with the words, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus."

It is fitting that we salute Benjamin Franklin, "the patron saint of printers", in this week set aside in recognition of the printing trade.

Heads Fire Safety Committee

D. K. Finley, 733 S. Hague-av, secretary of the Columbus Safety Council, has been appointed chairman of the Ohio Fire Safety Committee for Franklin County, W. T. Holliday, general chairman of the state committee, announced Wednesday.

When Ralph Gavin, 583 Edwin-st, inserted an ad in the Record Classified Section offering to do carpenter repair and cabinet work, he expected results. However, he was rather surprised to receive 11 calls in a single day from that one ad.

Such response is not uncommon for Record advertisers. Hilltoppers naturally prefer to patronize businessmen in their own community. Do you perform some service needed by your neighbors? The best and most economical way to let them know about it is through a small but mighty ad in our well-read Classified columns. How about it? New Rome Business Association Organized

D. J. Kunz Is First President; Members Adopt Constitution

A new organization to be known as the Rome Business Association was formed Tuesday evening in New Rome. Approximately 50 business men attended the initial meeting in the Rome Methodist Church. A constitution for the association was adopted and officers were elected.

D. J. Kunz, a real estate broker, was elected first president of the organization. Other officers are R. E. Harrison, of Harrison's Super Market, first vice-president; Herbert Riebel, farm implement dealer, second vice-president; J. I. Gates, Gates Milling Co., treasurer; Mrs. Harold Rings, Rings' Florist, secretary.

Elected as trustees of the organization were Robert Denman, radio and auto salesman; Harold Rings, florist; Morgan Murphy, proprietor of Murphy's Food Shop; and Howard Bowman, Bowman Bros. Construction Co.

President Kunz said that one of the early projects of the association would be to have sanitary sewers installed in the village. After that the group will attempt to get a city water supply.

Kunz also stated that the group would work for needed changes in rural zoning for the community. He stated that he favors the recommended changes that will be considered at a public meeting in the Rome School Monday evening.

Membership in the new association is open to all busines men in the area, and all of the residents in the area can join as associate members. Associate members may vote on all civic affairs questions before the association.

The area from which members will be accepted will extend west from New Rome to include George's Drive-In, north from there to Feder-rd, east to the Rome-Hilliards-rd, north to Fisher-rd and east to Phillipi-rd. From there the line will extend south to Broad-st and south on Georgesville-rd to Hall-rd, west to Galloway-rd and then north back to Broad-st.

Meeting date for the organization will be the second Tuesday of each month. Kunz says that plans are under way to incorporate the association.

Gerald McDonald To Be Reiss Campaign Head

Gerald McDonald, former fire department captain, 2497 Steele-av, has been named campaign manager for Emile Reiss, former Hilltopper and independent candidate for mayor. McDonald is now building manager for the Farm Bureau Co-op.

Reiss said today that a Columbus Clean-Up Crusade for good government would be organized in every ward in the city, with a broom as its symbol. Supporters of the crusade will wear buttons with a broom and crusader emblem.

One of the planks in Reiss' platform would be a reorganization of the police department along similar lines, he said. Reiss added that he has chosen a former army colonel to head the police department if he is elected.

Men Aid In Polio Drive

Four Hilltop men are aiding in the 1950 March of Dimes campaign this year, contacting businesses on W. Broad-st and Sullivant-av for their contributions.

Kiwanis International Head Lists 5-Point Plan For '50

J. Hugh Jackson, prominent California educator and president of Kiwanis International, today submitted a significant five-point community program to the Hilltop Kiwanis Club for its guidance in the year ahead.

In a message that was read by Phil Stout, president of the club, Jackson appealed to all Kiwanians to "demand efficiency and economy in the conduct of our government, whether at the national, state or local level."

Jackson, who is the dean of the graduate school of business at Stanford University, said that leaders in large cities and small towns must constantly devote their personal services to the strengthening of human and spiritual values.

His message was read in connection with the Hilltop club's observance of the 35th anniversary of Kiwanis International. Jackson's five-point program follows:

1. We must continue to serve our youth, the future citizens of our land.
2. We must work to strengthen and make more efficient the church, the home and the school.
3. We must emphasize to our peoples throughout our nations their rights and responsibilities as citizens of the United States and Canada.
4. We must work for understanding and greater cooperation between management and labor, that our enterprise system may be strengthened.
5. We must, as good citizens, demand efficiency and economy in the conduct of our government, whether national, state or local level.

Dean Jackson declared that Kiwanis International's 1950 administrative theme, "Aggressive Citizenship—Safeguard of Freedom", offered an outstanding challenge to all Kiwanians. He emphasized that economic and political freedom, individual initiative and personal integrity must prevail "over all sinister and clever proposals of those ideologies which are foreign to our Canadian and American way of life."

Before Dean Jackson's message was read, Stout briefly traced the history of Kiwanis International since its founding 35 years ago in Detroit. He described a number of its accomplishments and said the organization now embraces more than 3,000 clubs and 200,000 members throughout the United States, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and the Yukon Territory.

McComb Is Elected City Florist Pres.

Leo L. McComb, 351 N. Burgess-av, owner of the Rosebud Floral Co., was elected president of the Columbus Florists Association Tuesday night at the Grandview Inn.

Last year McComb was chairman of the group's City Hall Flower Show committee. He is a member of the Ohio Florists Association, the National Chrysanthemum Society, and the Columbus African Violet Society.

McComb is also a member of the Hilltop Business Association and the Hilltop Kiwanis Club.

West High Art Club Again Draws Up Charter; Artists Have Own Club

There is once more an Art Club at West High School.

Two months ago a list was posted in the Art Room for all who wanted an Art Club to sign. When over 50 people replied, a committee went to work to make the West High Art Club a reality.

A committee of five from the 9th period class (Roger Horn, Ralph King, Barbara Pindell, Tommy Roberts, and Gay Wade) went to work on the constitution which was passed unanimously by the student council with a few suggestions.

The first meeting was held before Christmas vacation. Mr. Teichert presided. The constitution was read and signed by 13 charter members.

A different name for the club was discussed and possible projects suggested. Barbara Pindell was elected to preside over the next and last meeting of the semester. The date of the next meeting was set for January 18 at 8 o'clock in the morning in the Art Room.

One does not have to take art to join the club. Anyone interested is invited to attend this next meeting.

Plans for next semester include an art exhibit of student work at the school, a trip to the art gallery and school of fine arts, guest speakers, informal parties, and a dance.

Some meetings will be held after school for those who can't come before. Dues are only 25 cents per semester at present.

Warning: New members must pass initiation.

Webber, former prosecuting attorney, and his wife, Mrs. Grace Thomas Webber, 2385 Coventry-rd, lived there many years. Mrs. Webber was a daughter of John Thomas. The land was once owned by Lucas Sullivant, Franklin County pioneer, in 1790. Hilltop youngsters used the home free during the war as a canteen. It was recently occupied by the Hilltop YMCA. The Socony Vacuum Oil Co. is the present owner.

By Myron T. Seifert

Teen-agers from all sections of Columbus will flock to West High School gymnasium Thursday, Jan 26, from 8:30 to 11:30 p. m., to take part in the Mardi Gras Carnival sponsored by the West High Modern Language Clubs, Spanish and French.

Elaborate preparations are being made to bring to the public an extravaganza of show and entertainment with Spanish and French atmosphere, under the direction of Leona Glenn and Mrs. Margaret Harold, advisers for the local modern language groups.

West High's musicians, under the direction of versatile Jimmie Hill, erstwhile West High drum-major and at present a member of the Ohio State University famous band, will add much to the musical atmosphere and color. Members of the Hill band, who will bring merrimont via music to the merry-markers, include Jim Hill, Jack Hagens, Joe Lord, Bill Grimm, Dave Camp, Ronnie Booth, Tom Heyl.

West High's Lois Neff will sing French songs; Mary Steed, celebrated dancer at the Hilltop school, will perform in her charming manner; and Seth Spalding, from Ohio State University High School's romance language department, whose reputation as a ventriloquist is well known, will amuse the fiesta guests.

Co-chairmen of the carnival are Sue Glass of the Spanish Club and Phyllis Ator of the French Club.

Other committees members working diligently on the project are: Ticket committee: Dave Cockfield, chairman, Pat Ward, Ann Haire, Donald McElwee, Paul Cochran, Nancy Moss, Sally Billingsley, Joe Janes.

Program committee: Jack Galloway, chairman, Doris Thomas, Lois Neff.

Decoration committee: Barbara Loelcher, chairman, Dick Wray, Roger Horn, Marilyn Gauggel, Kate Evans, Dick Briggs, Ed Baker, Barbara Pindell.

Food committee: Shirley Mielke, chairman, Martha Holiday, Nancy Shepard, Frances Eckelberry.

Concessions: Lois Jennings and Marcia Brady, co-cairmen, Ronald McDermitt, Ruth Hefron.

Admission is 50 cents per person. Proceeds from the entertainment will be used to purchase a recorder for the West High language department.

Cowboys To Meet Highly Rated South Team In Bulldog Gym Tonight

By Dave Miller

West's basketballers meet an always dangerous South five tonight in the South gym, with the host squad the definite favorite.

The Puppies, who have won nine out of 11 outings in the frays thus far this season, will be led by their high-scoring center, big six-foot six-inch Paul Ebert. The big pivotman, one of the best in the state, and THE best in the city, has scored 289 points in 11 frays thus far this season, for a 23.9 game average.

The big center's biggest night was a 40-point job against North for a new City League individual scoring record. On the next night, playing in non-loop competition, the big center hit the nets for 34 against Lima South.

Here is South's record to date, with Ebert's total points for that game in parenthesis following the score:

South, 95; Mifflin, 36 (28).
South, 79; Marietta, 35 (28).
Springfield, 59; South, 57 (21).
South, 74; Marion, 60 (20).
South, 71; North, 49 (40).
South, 78; Lima South, 55 (34).
South, 60; Lockland, 45 (43).
South, 35; Hamilton, 34 (9).
South, 78; Linden, 47 (24).
South, 86; Central, 53 (28).
Dayton Roosevelt, 50; South, 48 (24).

The Bulldogs' two losses have been to teams that have been beaten by teams that South has defeated. South defeated North, 71-43, but lost to Dayton Roosevelt by 50-48; a team that North beat, 48-45. Also, Springfield Edged South, and Central, an 86-53 loser to the Pups, defeated Springfield, 53-50.

So by that aforementioned West has as good a chance as anyone else Tuesday evening, and in this game of basketball, anything can happen.

South, coached again by Pug Hood, has averaged 69.1 points per game. Their shortest man is 6 ft.

Hilliards Loses 47-38 In Upset Game Friday

Center Gail Manning meshed 21 points to pace Hamilton Township to an upset, 47-38, victory over Hilliards on the Hamilton hardwoods.

Hilliards led during the first two periods but wilted as the Hamilton cagers found their sights to knot the score at 32-32 after three periods and dropped out of the picture in the closing period. Hamilton's reserves made it a sweep with a 47-38 victory in the opener.

Central's 4th Period Drive Gives Pirates 59-41 Win; West's Frist City League Loss

By Dave Miller

A terrible fourth period spelled a sound defeat for West's Cowboys in their quest for their fourth straight City League win last Friday evening in a game played at Central. The final score of 59 to 41 explains it.

The Cowboys had tied the score at 39-all with seven minutes remaining in the game, but Central's flashy pack of cagers did a neat finish as they held our Cowboys basketless and proceeded to burn the nets for 20 points on their own.

West's Phil Young played his usual brilliant game, being high point man with 17 markers, in addition to playing a terrific game on the rebounds. Phil seemed to snare practically every West rebound, and of course had his usual good eye for the basket also.

The Cowboys jumped off in the opening minutes to a 2-0 margin, their only lead of the game on Young's push shot. Central then tied matters later at 4-all, and then slowly began to climb into the driver's seat, and, aided by some fancy shooting of their star center, Marvin Hairston, they hopped into a 14-7 first quarter lead.

Central managed to maintain that same seven-point margin at halftime, holding a 24-17 verdict at intermission.

However, the story changed its course in the third period and things were looking brighter for West's rooters. Central took a lead of 31-32 with 3:14 left in the third quarter, but Phil Young followed with three consecutive buckets, and Central's lead had been cut to 31-28. Things continued at this pace until Guard Bill Thrush of the Cowboys tossed in a hook shot and the quarter ended in Central's favor, only, however, at 37-39.

Forward Frank Carson of the Cowboys then sank a duo of free tosses, and it was a new ball game. With a minute elapsed in the fourth period, the score was knotted at 39-all.

However, Central's superiority of rebounds, accuracy on shots and great all around team play paid off in big dividends in those remaining moments. The Bucs outscored our Cowboys, 20-2 in that period. There's the difference.

West's reserves suffered a real heart-breaker, dropping a thrilling 29-28 verdict to Central's seconds. Harry Fenstmaker of Central dropped in a free throw to win the game for the Bucs with 23 seconds left in the game. Warren Stevens topped the locals in scoring with eight markers.

Burgess, Hoge and Oakley Win In 'Y' Church League

By Joe Hutt

The "Y" League resumed play, after a months layoff following the holiday season. Apparently the holiday rest did not do any good for the three losing teams. Burgess ran over St. Paul to the score of 27 to 11. Hoge trampled the Church of Christ boys 41 to 18, and the Wildcats had a rough time as they beat the Highland Friends 26-20.

St. Paul's put up their best fight of the year, but didn't have the scoring punch as they lost to Burgess. Klein of Burgess and Hutt of St. Paul's were selected as top men of the evening. Carpenter of Burgess and Beatty of St. Paul's were high point men respectively with 9 and 6 points. The score by quarters.

Burgess	11	4	6	6	27
St. Paul	2	1	4	4	11

The second game of the evening was between last-place Church of Christ and first-place Hoge. Hoge, as usual, with their top flight team came out on top. Wahrer of Hoge and McNight of C. C. were voted outstanding of the evening. Wahrer was exceptionally good as he hit the nets for 17 points. Groomes of C. of C. was high with 7. The score by quarters.

Hoge	5	10	15	11	41
C of C	4	5	4	5	18

Oakley came out on top after a nip-an-tuck battle with Highland-av. It just wasn't Highland's night as they lost 26 to 20. Golden of Oakley, and Killian of Highland were voted outstanding by their coaches. It was a very rough and tough battle all through the game. The score by quarters:

Team Standings

Oakley	6	10	2	8	26
Highland	6	6	0	8	20
Hoge					3 0
Burgess					2 1

Invention of Printing Has Changed The World

Just over 500 years ago printing was born in the Rhine Valley of Germany when John Gutenburg put out the first piece of printing done in Europe from movable type.

The impact of the invention of printing on the human race was greater than that of the atom bomb, the good done for mankind by printing has surpassed that of penicillin and other wonder drugs. Yet printing has become so commonplace and familiar that it is often disregarded. If printing didn't exist, only those rich enough to buy the rare hand-copied manuscripts would have any semblance of an education.

This week we celebrate National Printing Week. This is the week chosen because it is during this week that we also celebrate the birthday of Benjamin Franklin.

Franklin was one of the greatest statesmen and scientists of his age. He laid the foundations for our postal system, invented the focal spectacles, established the first circulating library, and was the first to propose daylight saving time. Yet he preferred to refer to himself as "that humble printer of Philadelphia".

Franklin got his first experience in a newspaper shop at the age of 13, working for his brother James who published the New England Courant.

He also published the first foreign-language paper in the colonies, the Philadelphia Zeitung. However he is best known for the Pennsylvania Gazette.

The Gazette was probably the best paper of its time in the New World. It was a well rounded, newsy paper, livelier and handsomer than any of its contemporaries.

Franklin's effect on the colonies was also widespread due to the fact that he rewarded his better printers by setting them up in business as publishers and printers in other colonies. In this way he had a hand in the founding of at least half a dozen papers.

The power of the printed word is recognized by all today, whether it be a publisher wiring his photographer, "Give me the pictures and I'll give you your war", or an editor reassuring countless children with the words, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus."

It is fitting that we salute Benjamin Franklin, "the patron saint of printers", in this week set aside in recognition of the printing trade.

Heads Fire Safety Committee

D. K. Finley, 733 S. Hague-av, secretary of the Columbus Safety Council, has been appointed chairman of the Ohio Fire Safety Committee for Franklin County, W. T. Holliday, general chairman of the state committee, announced Wednesday.

11 Calls In One Day From Mr. Gavin's Carpenter Ad

When Ralph Gavin, 583 Edwin-st, inserted an ad in the Record Classified Section offering to do carpenter repair and cabinet work, he expected results. However, he was rather surprised to receive 11 calls in a single day from that one ad.

Such response is not uncommon for Record advertisers. Hilltoppers naturally prefer to patronize businessmen in their own community. Do you perform some service needed by your neighbors? The best and most economical way to let them know about it is through a small but mighty ad in our well-read Classified columns. How about it? Give us a ring today—we'll be pleased to help you phrase your ad. The number is RA. 1125.

D. J. Kunz Is First President; Members Adopt Constitution

A new organization to be known as the Rome Business Association was formed Tuesday evening in New Rome. Approximately 50 business men attended the initial meeting in the Rome Methodist Church. A constitution for the association was adopted and officers were elected.

D. J. Kunz, a real estate broker, was elected first president of the organization. Other officers are R. E. Harrison, of Harrison's Super Market, first vice-president; Herbert Riebel, farm implement dealer, second vice-president; J. I. President Kunz said that one of the early projects of the association would be to have sanitary sewers installed in the village. After that the group will attempt to get a city water supply.

Kunz also stated that the group would work for needed changes in rural zoning for the community. He stated that he favors the recommended changes that will be considered at a public meeting in the Rome School Monday evening.

Membership in the new association is open to all busines men in the area, and all of the residents in the area can join as associate members. Associate members may vote on all civic affairs questions before the association.

The area from which members will be accepted will extend west from New Rome to include George's Drive-In, north from there to Feder-rd, east to the Rome-Hilliards-rd, north to Fisher-rd and east to Phillipi-rd. From there the line will extend south to Broad-st and south on Georgesville-rd to Hall-rd, west to Galloway-rd and then north back to Broad-st.

Gerald McDonald To Be Reiss Campaign Head

Gerald McDonald, former fire department captain, 2497 Steele-av, has been named campaign manager for Emile Reiss, former Hilltopper and independent candidate for mayor. McDonald is now building manager for the Farm Bureau Co-op.

One of the planks in Reiss' platform would be a reorganization of the police department along similar lines, he said. Reiss added that he has chosen a former army colonel to head the police department if he is elected.

Kiwanis International Head Lists 5-Point Plan For '50

J. Hugh Jackson, prominent California educator and president of Kiwanis International, today submitted a significant five-point community program to the Hilltop Kiwanis Club for its guidance in the year ahead.

In a message that was read by Phil Stout, president of the club, Jackson appealed to all Kiwanians to "demand efficiency and economy in the conduct of our government, whether at the national, state or local level."

Jackson, who is the dean of the graduate school of business at Stanford University, said that leaders in large cities and small towns must constantly devote their personal services to the strengthening of human and spiritual values.

His message was read in connection with the Hilltop club's observance of the 35th anniversary of Kiwanis International. Jackson's five-point program follows:

1. We must continue to serve our youth, the future citizens of our land.
2. We must work to strengthen and make more efficient the church, the home and the school.
3. We must emphasize to our peoples throughout our nations their rights and responsibilities as citizens of the United States and Canada.
4. We must work for understanding and greater cooperation between management and labor, that our enterprise system may be strengthened.
5. We must, as good citizens, demand efficiency and economy in the conduct of our government, whether national, state or local level.

Dean Jackson declared that Kiwanis International's 1950 administrative theme, "Aggressive Citizenship—Safeguard of Freedom", offered an outstanding challenge to all Kiwanians. He emphasized that economic and political freedom, individual initiative and personal integrity must prevail "over all sinister and clever proposals of those ideologies which are foreign to our Canadian and American way of life."

Before Dean Jackson's message was read, Stout briefly traced the history of Kiwanis International since its founding 35 years ago in Detroit. He described a number of its accomplishments and said the organization now embraces more than 3,000 clubs and 200,000 members throughout the United States, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and the Yukon Territory.

West High Art Club Again Draws Up Charter; Artists Have Own Club

There is once more an Art Club at West High School.

Two months ago a list was posted in the Art Room for all who wanted an Art Club to sign. When over 50 people replied, a committee went to work to make the West High Art Club a reality.

A committee of five from the 9th period class (Roger Horn, Ralph King, Barbara Pindell, Tommy Roberts, and Gay Wade) went to work on the constitution which was passed unanimously by the student council with a few suggestions.

The first meeting was held before Christmas vacation. Mr. Teichert presided. The constitution was read and signed by 13 charter members.

A different name for the club was discussed and possible projects suggested. Barbara Pindell was elected to preside over the next and last meeting of the semester. The date of the next meeting was set for January 18 at 8 o'clock in the morning in the Art Room.

One does not have to take art to join the club. Anyone interested is invited to attend this next meeting.

Plans for next semester include an art exhibit of student work at the school, a trip to the art gallery and school of fine arts, guest speakers, informal parties, and a dance.

Some meetings will be held after school for those who can't come before. Dues are only 25 cents per semester at present.

Warning: New members must pass initiation.

All-American Dessert

By BETTY BARCLAY

Indians, 'tis said, taught our Pilgrim forefathers and mothers how to make Indian pudding. And from that day to this, Indian pudding, an all-American dessert, has maintained its popularity. Rich with spices and raisins, it is especially suitable for autumn serving, and this recipe based on nutritious wheatmeal makes a dessert that both family and guests will enjoy.

For a special dinner, serve this pudding dramatically, surrounded by colorful leaves, cranberries, bunches of grapes and nuts. It may be served hot or cold, in individual dishes or from one large serving dish.

Wheatmeal Indian Pudding
- ⅓ cup wheatmeal
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons molasses
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2½ cups milk, scalded
- ½ cup seedless raisins
- ½ cup cold milk

Combine cereal, sugar, molasses, salt, and spices. Add slowly to milk and cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add raisins and mix. Pour into greased casserole and bake in slow oven (325° F.) 1 hour and 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. After baking ½ hour, stir in cold milk. Serve warm with cream. Makes 6 servings.

As soon as Remington-Rand delivers their shelving the library will move (within a month, we hope). So our thanks for the patience of the many Hilltop families who have said they want Jimmy Rawlins Dancing Lessons for their children.

In the meantime, drop in and visit at our Worthington, Clintonville or downtown schools. We'll be glad to have you.

FARM BOY

The crowded street, ablaze with winking eyes,
Red, white, and green, and mad with speeding cars,
Left him benumbed and wishing he were home
To watch the heifers through the pasture bars.

So he returned; why miss the harvesting
To clutch at windfalls in a crazy dream?
Sweet was the sound of cow-bells in his ears;
Sweet was the whisper of his father's stream.

Mary Sloane,

STAY LITTLE ALWAYS

Stay little always, do not ever grow
Beyond the loving measure of my hand.
Already you have lost that soft pink glow
Which you brought with you to this strange new land.

Stay little always, do not turn your wide,
Blue eyes on this tall world beyond your reach.
Learn not our language, it is harsh beside
The little ripples of your wordless speech.

This was a moment's thought, idle and fleet;
There where the bud is, soon the flower appears.
But oh, you are so little and so sweet,
Where can I hide you from the rush of years?

Jessie Corrigan Pegis,

BOY VISITOR

Lay soft linens on his bed tonight,
Lay them smoothly for an honored guest;
Bring new candles, let their mellow light
Scatter shadows from his place of rest.

Guard his childish sleep; perhaps he treads
In dreams on heights untouchable to fling
His little world of long-tailed kites and sleds
To earth. Perhaps we entertain a king!

FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL

The wayward hair is brushed to unaccustomed place,
The dew-wet face that once belonged to babyhood and you
Is turned away. The eyes are star-shot; bright with dreams,
And fixed upon the limitless adventures there in space.

You must not weep and wail and play the utter fool,
For he is eager to be off—those feet would walk alone!
Fling wide the door and raise the hand in gay salute.
Your heart protests, but he is gone to his first day at school.

CHARACTER

An atom lies in universal man,
That is almost the shadow of a shade;
A receptivity that has been laid
Before him as a gift, when life began.
It sends us searching for the highest plan
Of sundrenace, in which restraint is swayed,
That it will pullulate—and thus we aid
The growth of character from atom's span.
Beside this, nothing in the world is great.
Of this, above all else a land has need—
The character of men decides its force;
And his bequest remains inviolate,
When at some time exampled a great deed
That sent men looking to a higher source.

Rena Winter Montgomery,

REALIZATION

SONG FOR IRON LUTE

Who can make those rigid lines
Dividing right from wrong—
Dividing love from lust, dividing
Laughter from song?
Who can make these fine distinctions
When even the peacock's back
Has blue that's green, and green that's blue
And violet that's black?
In every nation there is room
For wise men but we may
Look just as well upon the moon
Or hunt them in the hay, my dear,
Or hunt them in the hay.

Tom Boggs

AFTERTHOUGHT

I used to think, "Deliver me
From becoming set in a mold;
Just let me live my life and be free
Until I am gray and old.

Yet somehow, today I find my heart
Weary, empty and cold.
I think it must be so warm inside
For those everyday folks in a mold!

Ione Taylor,

PASTORAL

I saw five lambs faced all one way, and curved
Like a child's cheek, or back grown older,
As if they were drawn by the sweep of God's hand
To fit the curve of His shoulder.

Cookies—Tops With Teen-Agers

By BETTY BARCLAY

Have you ever known anybody who didn't love to go to the cooky jar — reach in — and pull out a handful of luscious cookies? Especially the high school crowd — a fact which makes cookies a definite "must" in families where there are teen-agers.

So here are three prize-winning recipes for cookies made with energy-giving cereals, to provide pep for all the many activities that fill the teen-ager's busy day. So easy are these to prepare that an ambitious young cook could make up a batch in a jiffy, herself, over the weekend — to have on hand all through the coming week for snacks, lunch boxes or for friends who drop in.

Grape-Nuts Raisin Cookies

1 cup milk
¾ cup Grape-Nuts
2 cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ cup butter or other shortening
½ cup light brown sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
½ cup coarsely cut raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla

Pour milk over Grape-Nuts and let stand about five minutes. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and spices, and sift again. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat thoroughly; then add raisins and mix well. Add flour, alternately with Grape-Nuts mixture, a small amount at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 15 minutes, or until done. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

Wheat Flakes Gingersnaps
(Icebox cookies)

1¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon allspice
¾ teaspoon ginger
½ cup molasses
½ cup shortening
1 cup wheat flakes

Sift flour once, measure, add soda, salt, and spices, and sift again. Heat molasses and shortening in saucepan until shortening melts, stirring constantly. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour gradually, mixing well; then add flakes and mix thoroughly. Shape into roll, about 1½ inches in diameter, and wrap in waxed paper. Chill overnight, or until firm enough to slice. Cut in ¼-inch slices. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in moderate oven (350° F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

Chocolate Nut Cookies

1¼ cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
½ cup sour milk or buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped nuts

Sift flour once, measure, add soda and salt, and sift again. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Stir in chocolate. Add sour milk and vanilla. Then add flour and nuts. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes about 3 dozen cookies.

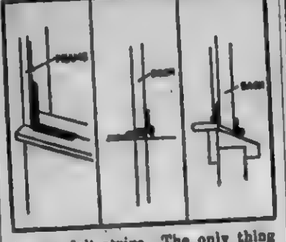
CAN DO
Baby It's Cold . . . Outside!



LOOSELY fitting doors and windows are an expensive nuisance to anyone during the winter. The chill drafts that seep in through such chinks in your house's armor will help run up an unduly expensive fuel bill and also make things generally uncomfortable.

The answer here, of course, is weatherstripping. It's an easy and inexpensive way to reduce cold air leakage and cut down fuel consumption.

Depending upon what kind of job you want to do, you can get either metal, rubber, felt or plastic weatherstripping. You'll find that all kinds are available at your favorite hardware store.

If you want metal weatherstripping, you can choose either aluminum, zinc or bronze, while the threshold strips for the bottoms of doors generally are made of brass. For a really high class job on your doors you may want to buy the kind of strips that are interlocking when the door is closed—one part being attached to the frame and the other to the door itself.

Although you have to be rather particular in installing the metal weatherstripping in order to get the right kind of fit, there is no trick at all to putting on the rubber or felt strips. The only thing to watch is that the contact edge of the strip you fasten to the bottom of the door extends the correct distance beyond the edge of the door. If it doesn't go out far enough there might still be an aperture through which cold air can enter, and if it protrudes too far beyond the bottom edge of the frame and possibly pull off when the door is opened and closed.

When you put on the stripping, use rust-resistant ¾-inch nails spaced about two inches apart.

For your windows it is best to apply stripping to both the inside and outside of the sash, particularly where the cracks are large. Use strips at least a half inch wide on the inside of the lower sash and five-eighths inch wide on the outside of the upper sash. One-inch strips should be used on the inside of the door frames; but remember—you don't need a strip on the hinge side. Place the strip on the bottom of the door so it will lap over the threshold.

If you do your weatherstripping right you will have a snug, much less drafty house this winter.

JUST in case you haven't heard of this trick before, here's how you can repair the loose joints in those dining room or kitchen chairs that have been wobbling pretty much lately.

Take the chairs apart carefully and scrape off all the dried glue from the ends of the rungs and other parts, as well as from the holes into which the rungs fit. For each end of a rung or other loose member, cut out a piece of an old rayon or nylon stocking that will fit over it. Use plenty of glue on the ends and drive the parts together tightly. The glue will soak through the fabric which will form a tight packing. When the glue is dry, trim off excess fabrics with a razor blade.

Your hardware store also sells steel slips, specifically intended for tightening up a chair, which can be used without glue. You may prefer this method as being less messy and tedious.

Sister: What shall we get Dad for Christmas?

Mary: I hear he's buying us a car; let's get him a chauffeur's outfit.

Ann: There's June. I understand she bought that dress by installments.

Joe: I suppose that's the first installment she's wearing.

Harry: What sorta work do you do?

Farry: I'm a dreamer—aren't we all?

Husband: What are these?

Wife: Biscuits. I made them myself.

Husband: All right; you eat them yourself.

Battling Cowboy Hoopsters Lose To Bulldogs 85-67

By Dean Miller

Any West High rooter who witnessed the Cowboys' game with the mighty Bulldogs from South in the Pups' gym last Tuesday evening, didn't go home with his head hanging, although West lost 85-67.

West was the first team that had scored 67 points against South, and it was the first time that the Cowboys hit that mark this year.

Alothough the final outcome was never in doubt from the first three minutes onward, the Pups and Cowboys were playing even-steven ball, but only after that humiliating opening three to four moments.

The Bulldogs' sensational, Paul "Stretch" Ebert, plunked in 33 points, usual night for him. However, he was held to seven points, and after committing three personal fouls early in the opening quarter, he began to take it easy both on the offense and defense. Ebert, standing 6'6" was so tall that he didn't need to jump off the floor to get any rebounds.

This same South squad swamped Central, 88-53; a team that defeated our Cowboys last week, 59-41.

Where South won the game was in the first four moments. Bob Strawser of the host five sank two staright buckets to give the Pups a lead thev never lost. Phil Young of the Cowboys sank a bunny, but then South followed with a barrage of points, 13 to be exact, before the Cowboys could fight back. The score stood at 17-2 and from there on in the fray, things went at a pretty even pace, with that advantage gained in the opening moments spelling the difference.

Young sank a free throw and three more markers a moment later to make it 17-6. After Strawser set, Young and Jack Keller of the Pups matched free tosses, and Bill Thrush and Strawser exchanged long shots as the first period ended in South favor, 22-9.

As mentioned before, South and the Cowboys started playing even ball after the first quarter. Thrush and Dick Ruh of the host five sank consecutive drive-in's, but Bob Nolan sank a buck and free throw as compared to Jim Rudolph's free throw.

South seemingly played great ball from then on but every time they scored, they were matched by our Cowboys, making things rather uneasy for Coach Pug Hood and his lads.

After Nolan's long shot made it 39-25 in South's favor near the end of the second period, Thrush and Rudolph followed with three points, and the half ended 39-28.

The dynamic pivot man, Ebert, returned to play the entire second half, after incurring those three personals in the first quarter, however, and doing all his scoring on tips wound up the evening with 32, bringing his league average to an even 31 per game.

The Cowboys experienced an uphill battle all the second half, and both teams were firing the ball through the hoop with unerring accuracy. The Cowboys looked very different. They were without a doubt "up" for that game, and were out to do all they could about that mighty South scoring machine.

Bill Thrush, little Cowboy guard, made every one of the South giants look mighty little with his unusual but brilliant knack of stealing the ball away from the Bulldogs, especially the bigger ones. He also hit 10 buckets. All of them were either long sets from the middle of the court, or drive-in pushes, after recovering a bad South pass for fumble. He and Jim Rudolph, Paul Ellingsworth, Jerry Johnson and Phil Young were outstanding.

The Ebert shot is easy. Any guy 6'-6" can do it. All he does is get a rebound or pass, and plunk it in. He doesn't even lift his toes off the ground. He's so big, but not awkward, that he reaches his long arms right over the lid, and cuts loose. Yours truly is not taking anything away from Ebert, but I'm just mentioning that if you've got an extra man around any place that is six-foot and a half, basketball is his game.

Ebert, naturally, took scoring honors with 32 points. Bill Thrush was runnerup with his 23, and Phil Young of the Cowboys plunked in 17.

In the reserve game, earlier flubs by the West's seconds spelled a 38-33 loss to South's Pups. The local seconds missed several easy shots throughout the early part of the fray, and it was impossible to catch South in the closing moments. Paul Thompson of West was high man with 12, with Will Brumfield's 10 topping South.

Gra-Y Hoop League Gets Under Way

The Hilltop Gra'Y Basketball League started last week at Hoge Memorial Church. There are six teams represented: West Broad School Flaming Arrows and Scarlet Buckeyes, from John Burroughs, Hornets and Little Bucks, from Highland School, Beagle Boys and Wildcats. The representatives from the "Y" who are coaching the teams are Jack Downing, Ralph Howard, Ken Bierly, and Averille Thorn.

The "Y" is providing these activities for the elementary school boys in the belief that it will be for the betterment of the community in the future.

The two teams to start the afternoon off were the Wildcats and the Little Bucks. The boys on the team were aware that they must win and gave the good old college try. The little Bucks won this game by one point, making the score 13 to 12. Watkins of the Little Bucks and P. Brown of the Wildcats were high point men, with eight points each. The score by quarters:

Little Bucks	3	0	10	0—13
Wildcats	4	0	8	0—12

The second game ended with the Beagle Boys running over the Scarlet Bucks 19 to 4. Kuntz and Schikk of the Scarlet Bucks were high on their team with two points each. Chappelear of the Beagle Boys was high with 16 points.

Scarlet Bucks	3	1	0	0—4
Beagle Boys	6	5	5	3—19

In the third game which was very close throughout the game, the Hornets eked out a very close victory over the Flaming Arrows. The score was 6 to 4. John and Jim Edwards of the Arrows were high with two points each. Smith, Spradling, and Brady were high with two points each.

Calling All ... Outdoorsmen

By One

Probably an outdoor column should be designed solely for entertainment; but with so much work needing to be done to protect our wildlife, I can't keep from climbing aboard the old soap box occasionally.

And now it is support of the new Fish Restoration Bill, a measure to be considered by the new Congress, that I am requesting all of you to give. The bill actually is a must in the wildlife picture.

This new measure is a follow-up to last year's Dingell Bill which was passed by Congress, then vetoed by President Truman. Just why the veto was invoked never has been fully explained for, certainly, the Dingell bill had the support of all conservation groups as ell as the endorsement of the nation's 14,000,000 buyers of fishing licenses.

Terms of the new Fish Restoration bill follow the same general ideas as advanced in the Dingell Bill. In part, this means that funds from the old excise tax on the sale of fishing tackle, now going into the general fund of the government, would be given the various states in ratio to the number of license buyers. The money then could be used for fish management.

There was little opposition to the passage of the Dingell Bill in Congress last year, and the President's veto came as a sudden surprise to all who had been following the bill through Congress.

And, with this in mind, immediate action on the part of all sportsmen will probably be needed to assure more favorable consideration by the President when the bill reaches his desk.

First and most important in the campaign to assure enactment of the Fish Restoration Bill is for every sportsman to write his or her local Congressman and Senators.

So how about writing now, telling your Congressman that you'd like to see the Fish Restoration Bill passed by Congress and signed by the President. If we all do this there is little doubt but that the bill will go through in 1950.

11 West Athletes To Graduate In January Class

The January graduating class has eleven boys who have earned varsity letters in their senior year. These eleven boys have accounted for eighteen varsity "W's" in their high school careers.

Jim Rudolph stands out head and shoulders above all the other graduating athletes. Captain of both the basketball and football squads in his senior year, Jim was outstanding in each sport. Jim earned two varsity letters in basketball and two in football.

He was a starting end on the championship West squad of 1948 and held the enviable record of dropping only one pass all year. Jim received mention on the all-city squads in both seasons.

In basketball he plays either forward or center. Although he also scores his share of points, Jim is an excellent "feeder" and sets up many buckets scored by his teammates. Jim is well-liked by his coaches, and it is certain that they will not be too happy to see him leave.

Jim Miller earned a varsity letter in track in his senior year. Jim started his track career as a pole vaulter in his sophomore year, but switched to the low hurdles when he found they suited his taste better. In this respect, Jim followed the footsteps of his older brother, who was a star hurdler for West several years ago.

Eddie Sensenbrenner, who is president of the graduating class earned a varsity football letter in his senior year. Eddie started at end on the defensive platoon.

A hard-working guard, Bob Thatcher, played rock-em, sock-em football in spite of his rather small stature for a lineman. Weighing only 150 and standing 5 ft. 9 in., Bob earned a varsity letter in his senior year.

A four-letter man, Walter Binkley was the most versatile of all the graduating athletes as he earned varsity letters in three sports: football, track and swimming (two).

"Bink", as he is called by his friends, was a 174-pound fullback in football, alternating with "Scoots" Golden on the offense and also played some defensive halfback.

He earned his letter in track by running in the dashes and relays; in swimming, he specialized in the 150-yard individual medly.

Jim Hamrick was the only baseball player in this group of graduating athletes. Jim was a pitcher and earned a varsity letter in his senior year. Jim specialized in slow, tricky maneuvers.

Charley Eppert, who goes by the nickname of "Flip" around school, was a hard-to-move, 210-pound tackle in football. "Flip" played almost entirely on defense in earning his varsity letter.

Another little guard, Bob Wilson, thrived on the rough contact in football. Bob played chiefly on the offense and pulled out of the line on many plays to lead the downfield blocking. Bob received a varsity letter in his senior year.

Bill McCrady earned two varsity letters in swimming and was one of the mainstays of the strong tank squad. Bill was the number one backstroker on the district championship team of last year.

Although ineligible in his senior year, Louie Lowry earned his varsity football letter in his junior year as a defensive end and tackle. "Loonie", as he is nicknamed, is planning on continuing his higher education at Findlay College where the coaches have shown an interest in his football-playing ability.

Bob Wood, the only varsity cross-country winner among the graduating athletes, is well known for his clowning stunts around school. "Woody" found time to contribute some mighty valuable points to the harriers in his senior year.

Mary: Why do they call ships, she?

Maggy: Because sailors think they can handle them.

He: May I take you to luncheon?

She: Yes, but let's make it lunch; I'm hungry.

Starling Jr. To Graduate Five Basketballers

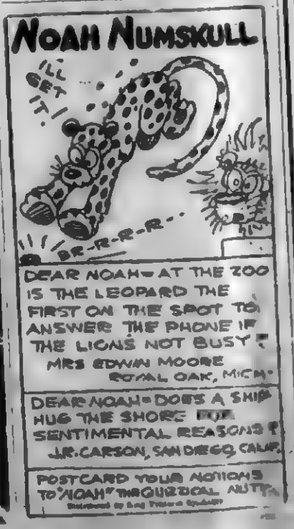
By Larry Parker and Don Robertson

At mid-term graduation Starling Junior High's basketball team will lose five of its players.

When Mr. Pace was asked if Starling had a chance after mid-term graduation, his reply was, "They have a chance but are not likely to get on top due to this loss."

Also when Mr. Pace was asked why Starling has lost two games out of three, he replied, "Because the other teams make more baskets."

The first string is as follows: Jack Fleming and Wayne Lee as guards, Gary Robinson and Bob Fiffick as forwards, and Jack Buck as center.



Jack Fleming and Wayne Lee will graduate as will Eugene Tingly, Howard Knoles and Ralph Scholes from the second string.

West Installs New Awarding System

A new method of awarding letters in athletics has been installed at West High School, in order "to prevent everybody and his brother from having access to a letter" and also to cut down on expenses, announced Coach Mack Pemberton.

From now on, an athlete will receive a letter for each sport in which he has earned one, but will not receive a second or third letter for the same sport in his other years on the squad. He will receive instead a certificate to show his participation.

JOE BRIGGS
Says:

A husband often shows his worst side to his better half.

Is only half of your home insured against fire?

Years ago, you paid a certain price for your home. Today, it's probably worth twice that price. Does your fire insurance reflect that increase? Is your fire insurance adequate to replace that home with a comparable one AT TCDAY'S PRICES? Let us survey your protection—no cost to you. Joe Briggs, 2596 Sullivant Ave. RA. 3194.

GIRLS LEARN BABY SITTING
By Kathey Murray

Girls in Miss Helen Gaughran's ninth grade home management class at Starling are learning how to be good baby sitters. They have read books, discussed them, and shared their own experiences.

Some of the problems discussed included the amount of wages baby sitters should receive, what mothers should tell them before they leave, and the rules they should follow.

This week they will practice the care of very small children with a doll that was made for this purpose. With this doll they will learn to dress babies, bathe them, the right way to pick them up, handle them, and do various other things for them. This course will continue for the semester.

WHAT DO YOU HATE TO LEAVE MOST AT STARLING?
(Interviewing Reporters—Shirley Carr and Yvonne Brewer)

Jack Fleming: I sorta hate to leave the basketball team at mid-season. The team will be pretty hard hit because five guards are graduating.

Wayne Lee: I hate to leave the basketball team, my teammates, Coach Pace, and my biology class. I'll be missing Mr. Rader and the way he explains his problems and the things that go on in class.

Phyllis Wenger: I'll hate to leave all the cute boys. I'll also miss working out the eighth grade love problems. I'll miss Mr Peck; he's so sweet. But I'll miss all of the teachers—especially Mr. Naylor's help in algebra.

Shirley Merritt: I hate to leave the real nice kids and teachers.

Glenn Stoll: I hate to leave the teachers. I hate to leave Bob Fiffick and all the other basketball players.

Janet LeValley: I hate to leave because it means I'll have to start riding on the bus and pay my own carfare. Yes, I'll really hate to leave—no foolin'!

He: Why is the land around a river rich?

She: I don't know.

He: Because it has a bank on both sides.

Beth: Isn't she the homespun girl?

Tom: Sure is. Spins yarns, sows her oats, dusts off your bank roll, drinks needle beer and puts a stitch in your back.

Emergency Squadman

FIRST THING EVERY MORNING, and after every run, Fireman Louis W. Cennamo, 221 S. Sylvan-av, upper left, checks the equipment on the emergency squad truck. In the absence of Capt. Harold Cunningham, 876 Thomas-av, who was injured in the line of duty, "Louie", as his mates call him, is in charge of the squad.

SERVING THE CHOW that he has prepared is Gene Scolieri, 2102 W. Mound-st, above center, who serves as cook at Engine House No. 6, at Mill-av and W. Broad-st, where the West Side emergency squad is stationed. Helping himself to a meatball is Lt. R. E. Raike of 250 S. Terrace-av, officer in charge of the firehouse. Receiving the spaghetti is Louis Cennamo, a typical emergency squadmen.

DAILY SCHOOL SESSIONS on first aid and firefighting keep the firemen on their toes. The men work one day and are off duty two days. In addition to classes and performing their duties in an efficient manner, the firemen are responsible for caring for the fire equipment and keeping the firehouse orderly. This keeps them busy during the day between runs. The "victim", upper right, for this first aid session is Bob Grashel, 282 N. Warren-av. Attending to his "broken" leg are Val Boehm, 44 Brehl-av, and Cennamo.

LEFT—THE WEST SIDE EMERGENCY SQUAD went on a typical run recently when it was called to aid an 83-year-old woman who had been hit by an auto. Cennamo and Paul Motts are shown pulling the lady out from under the car. The squad took her to St. Francis Hospital. She suffered a fractured skull and shock. Giving first aid to this woman, and taking her to the hospital are just part of the excellent service the emergency squad gives the community. The squad answers a variety of calls, from heart attack victims to kids who have swallowed buttons.

RIGHT—ALL IS NOT TOIL in the day of a fireman. In the evening, after duties have been tended to, and following supper, the men at Engine House No. 6 enjoy the programs on their TV set. Tuning in the program is Louis Cennamo; sitting back to watch the show is Elmer See, 824 Nashoba-av.

SONJA ALBERY AND RON GRANT will be the commencement speakers when seniors of West Junior High School graduate next Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Austrian Friends Made By Teacher

Rosina Jammernegg and Maria Jammernegg were recipients of the clothing packed sent by Miss Pauline Sparrow, West High teacher, through the Red Cross in the spring of 1946. Out of this act, a friendship developed.

Mr. and Mrs. Jammernegg and their daughter, Maria, live in a cottage in Steiermark, one of the most beautiful parts of Austria. Living conditions are fairly good in Austria but the people notice a scarcity of specials such as we enjoy. The Jammernegg's were able to grow vegetables in a greater quantity this year.

Miss Sparrow first heard from Rosina in October 1946. Mr. Jammernegg, a Russian prisoner, had just been released and was in poor health. The family was very grateful for the "Care" Package they had just received, and Miss Sparrow was amply repaid with thanks.

Miss Sparrow receives letters written in English and German, the latter most frequently. Mrs. Estell Bell or some other friend translates them for Miss Sparrow. She also has two pictures of the twenty-three-year old Maria and her class in school. Maria has been invited to visit Miss Sparrow, but Maria doesn't know if she will have enough money for the trip.

Miss Sparrow has a collection of beautiful Austrian stamps. Room 242 contributed $5 to Miss Sparrow's gift for Christmas 1948. Miss Sparrow bought fat to be sent to the Jammerneggs. She has shipped such foodstuffs as jello, chocolate bits, dried milk, and coffee.

Two flies were enjoying a promenade on the ceiling. One said, "Aren't those human things silly?"

"How do you mean?" asked the other.

"Well," said the first, "they spend a lot of money building a beautiful ceiling like this, then they walk on the floor."

What Other Editors Say

North Augusta (S. C.) News

We read somewhere the other day where the coffee growers down in Brazil didn't take too long to catch on to the "Raw Deal" technique of our Administration which maintains an artificial price on farm products while the surplus lay on the ground to rot. Under this plan John Doe and the Mrs. get nicked twice—once by the tax collector and again at the grocery store.

The coffee boys varied the method, but the end result was the same. Seventy-five cent coffee that was 39 cents to go with 75 cent spuds that should sell for 45 cents a peck if the price was not artificially supported with your taxes while the surplus lay on the ground to rot.

It just doesn't make sense. Now Congress is going to investigate the reason why coffee prices doubled in a period of three or four weeks.

It is our opinion that if we could only see some of the pantry shelves in our American homes we probably would find enough coffee to last a long, long time. It is an old American custom, probably born of the war, that when someone just casually remarks that something is hard to find the housewife rushes out and buys up several more than she needs and before you know it scarcity has brought about a price increase.

As far as coffee is concerned we believe that Brazil can do just about what our government does on farm prices—guarantee a minimum at the expense of the taxpayers in the countries where coffee cannot be raised.

We cannot see any reason why any special group of American citizens, such as the farmers, should be guaranteed anything at the expense of the taxpayer except the freedoms expressed in the Constitution of these United States.

We recognize the fact that we enjoy more individual personal freedom than can be found anywhere else in the world in spite of the crackpots in Washington and elsewhere who would change the guarantees set forth in a Constitution which has been in continuous use longer than any other similar instrument of government in our present world, and which has proven a bulwark against the very things our own government is sponsoring.

Maybe we can't do anything about coffee but our representatives can certainly do something about grain, cotton, potatoes, eggs and other products now being subsidized.

It seems ironic that we live in such a land of plenty and we resort to legislating scarcities.

Teaching Boys and Girls — Not Subjects Alone

It is certainly a beautiful sight to see young children coming out, full tilt, from a modern school building. It is even a more thrilling sight than to see them coming out from a modern "movie house". Why? Surely you can visualize the difference. The school curriculum, though sometimes severe, is not tinged with "shooting", and "scare-cat" suggestions. Yes! These primary grade school kids are full of zeal and life, but the teacher, if she is human and understanding, halts that mad impulse to "scrap" or "black eye" another. She encourages, during recess time, COOPERATION and FUN FROLICS —not "gangster methods".

However, the high school age presents quite another phase. Here we have the adolescent and his emerging into manhood. He apes grown-ups in almost everything (except those awful levis). He cusses, smokes, is arrogant, and important to whom? Only to himself. Later, he will laugh at his doings. Later he will "settle down", but IF and (a big IF) only he has acquired a sound foundation, first at HOME, then at SCHOOL.

Here is where a teacher of pure subject matter is apt to fail. They forget the immature age of their pupils. They (if new to the teaching profession) are tempted to teach their CHOSEN SUBJECT to the nth degree and lose the comradeship and cooperation of most of their pupils. What a tragedy to see some teachers go through the halls and have no "hello" contact with pupils. I know one woman teacher who is affectionately greeted all day long by pupils IN her classes and OUT, too, and she is a good teacher. Why? Because she makes a study of their inner souls—especially boys, impetuous boys who need that interest in their different or growing-up ways". Does she get cooperation when needed? You bet she does—100 per cent, too.

The other type teacher is a good teacher (so-called) but I fear loses that one-third of his class who yearn for notice and understanding and heart to heart talks. Yes! I know, for I have seen it fail so many times! Subject teaching is necessary, of course, but when you keep your subject "alive" for 90 per cent of your class, you keep your pupils "on your side" and are rewarded with true, personal fellowship! I would not trade my high school friendships for all the dollars in any bank. What do you parents think of it? Some teachers, I am sorry to say, do not seem to have the "mixing" personality. It is a deplorable situation, yet can be partially remedied if taken into account when entering the profession. It is not to be found in athletics, or physical education, or in boys' shop classes, or in art, music (dance bands), etc. Pupil personality study is the root of this task for it is to this industrial, scientific age and the marvelous variety of interests that most pupils react, especially the boys.

Girls, I think, like classical approaches, and to them Latin, English, home economics, dramatics, etc., are (so to speak) easy subjects. But the boy dislikes history and P. O. D., especially if made a dull textbook subject alone. Why not get busy and prepare to make your subject so engrossing and vital, using clever charts and modern color supplementary exhibits so as to hold the love and affection of your pupils, for if you lose their keen interest and participation, you FAIL TO EDUCATE!

Only about 10 out of every 100 pupils go to college. Why make all the rest "RESTLESS" because you don't prepare live, practical matter (camouflaged if need be) for their assimilation.

I heard a former assistant superintendent say, years ago, that the mission of true education is to OPEN THE MIND'S EYE, and today that still is essential.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

"I GAVE UP the idea then," Purse went on. "But Art kept after me. His family have orchards in the Wenatchee Valley out west and we used to argue endlessly over the taste of the eastern apple that was misshapen and the tasteless perfection of the western apple. He said it all came from the care—spraying, cultivating, grading, packing. Mass production, uniform care. Our apples were too bloody individual, he said. I wanted the taste, he wants the perfect specimen, and we both want a living. He has lots of fancy ideas, spraying by plane, maybe even by parachute, God knows. So he made me keep after Miss Searle. We finally met her in Paris."

"How was she?" asked Marvell curiously.

"Well, she was impersonal—reserved as always. But she was interested in a way. I guess it had never occurred to her that people made a living out of apples."

"No, I mean how did she look? Was she in uniform?"

Purse shook his head. "I don't think so. She looked—" he tried to remember something definite, but he could only see her long white hands busy with her knitting as she talked or listened to the two young men. "She looked more English than American," he finished, rather pleased with that description.

"Did you meet her brother?"

"No, we had an appointment at the headquarters of some Relief Mission for Children where she worked. She took her time about considering a lease, though..."

"Didn't she say anything about Kit—or me?" Marvell interrupted impatiently.

"Why should she? I didn't know you, then. Oh yes, she did say rather sardonically that she'd be able to keep an eye on me through your daughter with whom she corresponded regularly."

"You'd never guess, would you, thought Marvell, looking curiously at Purse, that she made a magnificent figure of a woman one summer afternoon.

"I don't think she'd have agreed to our proposition at all if Art hadn't told her his sad story."

"Who is Art?"

"Art Johnson. We were in the same company. He came from the west, as I said. We were separated when I was invalided out and we met again in Paris. I wanted to stay in Paris by that time and he offered me a cut in on his job—a commission salesman for some Oregon fruitgrower. We tried to interest the French in making strained apple juice the national drink."

Marvell laughed. "Sure it was funny," said Purse. "Miss Searle thought so too. She gave in after that. On a trial basis, so to speak—if we don't get going well in two years we'll lose."

They kept on drinking applejack and Purse ate some of the food. He had talked more than he had for a long time. He settled back in his chair again, letting Marvell's words flow over him, not trying to fish up the point of a sentence, as long as he didn't have to answer questions.

"How old are you?" Marvell asked him abruptly.

"I was born in 1896." He wondered why the attack was so direct.

"You've come back from another war," said Marvell. "I noticed that when I saw you in Boston and it sticks out all over you. If my father were here, he'd know what to say or what to keep quiet about."

Here it comes, thought Purse, give a cheer to the boys who have come home. They all get around to it. Not through their fathers so much, though.

"My father fought four years in the Civil War. He got engaged before he left, to my mother. They both lived in a little town in Maine. You wouldn't know the name. My mother used to talk a lot about how changed he was when he came back. She expected that, I think, just as she had expected a long engagement, war or no war. But what she didn't expect, or he either, was how their whole life changed, hers, too, the day he walked out of her kitchen a fine morning in June, 1861. She was baking soft molasses cookies, she told me, and they were just out of the oven so she couldn't pack any of them up for him to take along. That always troubled her."

At this rate, thought Purse comfortably, he won't get to me tonight.

"He was an apprentice to a tailor. He studied at night for the ministry. He'd got his eye on a good college and some money saved up and a long engagement. Well, he got the long engagement all right and a long war. And when he came back to get married and there wasn't any use to [illegible] after the ministry, so he went back to tailoring. Anyhow he [illegible] become an atheist. He wouldn't talk about that much, there wasn't anyone to talk to. He needed you just as you need him now."

He was walking up and down the room now and Purse was trying to figure out how old he would be if his father was, say, twenty, when he went to war.

"So he started out all over again with a grudge against society who had shoved their troubles on him, along with his own, and when he'd come back society told him to take a run and jump for himself. With a grudge, you don't more than keep it and yourself going. We were poor. And all my mother's hopes went into our future and my father couldn't have hopes as long as he stayed an atheist... We had our personal troubles of temperament and character and so on; we knew that. It was dunned into us, but we needn't have a grudge against the world unless we made it."

Purse wouldn't have minded hearing a little more about the apprentice tailor who left the village in Maine as a soldier and came back an atheist but still a tailor. The man appealed to him, but Marvell gave him no opening.

"Then it came my turn, I started out in a plumber's shop with my eye on a good college and the widening field of engineering. But there was no war. All I had to do was to get ahead. That had been driven into my soul by then. It was the age of rugged individualism. Make a name, make a fortune, every man for himself. If a man failed, he couldn't hold a grudge against society. He held it against himself."

"I haven't any grudge against anything or anybody," said Purse.

Marvell shook his head impatiently. "You're entitled to one after a war but that isn't why I am telling you this. I am just explaining what separates your generation and mine. If you told me about your experience in detail, I could never share it wholly. In another way, you and your time will never understand my grudge, my ways of fortune. But my father and you could have met each other on a common ground."

They had almost finished the apple-jack. Purse took a long stretch, preparing to go. Marvell started to refill his glass, but he drew it back. "No more, thanks."

Purse got up, but Marvell barred his way. "It's early. Have another drink. You know, it's funny about a grudge, what starts it going. It's always a little thing."

Purse sank back in his chair again. He didn't have the nerve to oppose him.

Upstairs Kit woke up with a start. She blinked against the darkness. How near morning was she did not know. Then she heard the voices again. They had never stopped. She sat up. What had they been talking about so long? She tingled all over, partly from curiosity, partly from the chilly air blowing in from the window. If she went down the back stairs that had been steeply cut into the wall when they had remodeled the house, she could come upon them unawares. Not until she pushed up the little brass catch of the door at the bottom would they hear her coming. She was on the next to the last step and could catch the words distinctly. This was even better. She sat down, covered her legs with her flannel nightgown. If the door should give way, she would fall headlong into the room at their feet. She touched the latch to make sure it was in place. It was Marvell who was speaking.

"It's the kind of thing that sticks with you always. It stood for the kind of life they led, so different from mine. The Barlows had a man-servant then, a Scotchman, McCready. He was a cut above a handy man, I tell you. He kept a small greenhouse extending out of the bay in the dining room. The way he fitted in was like everything else in that damn house—they depended on all kinds of curious ceremonies and tricks to make them feel important. They had to. Like McCready. He could shovel the walks, but never coal. He polished silver, but not brass. He drove Miss Elizabeth in the carriage, but not Mr. Proctor."

He means Uncle Proctor, thought Kit, and Mother! That's funny. I don't remember a greenhouse.

"You must have had it soft," grinned Purse.

"Soft! God, it was smothering. You had to fight for air, for freedom." Purse was startled at the vehemence of his cry. "Well, it's over now. I buried it—the whole thing all at once." Suddenly Marvell laughed. "Funny, I've never been to a Barlow funeral, as dead as they all are. I never will, now, because they are all dead."

Purse thought he heard a noise behind the door, where there was a closet or entry, at the other end of the room. There was something about this man that puzzled him—the whole set-up, in fact. Every now and then he got a spark which he felt was much more important than the man himself, but he couldn't quite make out what it was and he was too tired to puzzle it out now.

Kit steadied herself with an arm that trembled from leaning on it. What did Marvell mean? Were they all dead? Aunt Emily and Uncle Proctor, too? She couldn't understand his telling this stranger when he had never told her. They had shut her out completely, and she could never remember a time when Nedda and Marvell had done that.

She heard a chair scrape. Then Purse said, "I've got to be getting along home while I can still see. Thanks for—everything."

"All right. We'll have other times. And you must see Kit. She's always had an interest in Nedda's orchards, too."

"Maybe I'll be owning them—some day," she heard Purse say as they walked right past the door on which her nose was flattened.

Had Nedda's orchards gone, too? Then Nedda would never be coming back! She dug her heels into the wooden step. Oh, don't let it all change again, she prayed. She answered herself by promising fiercely, "I won't let anything change, you'll see." She was speaking to them all—living and dead. The stranger that had just gone and Marvell who had shut her out. Everything would be all right. Slowly, achingly, she crept upstairs.

Snow and ice took the monotony out of bus riding on the Hilltop this week. One bus slid on the ice going down the W. Broad st. hill and crashed through the iron fence and into a garden at the Columbus State School. Another slid on the icy street by the State Hospital and turned completely around, ending up on the other side of the street. The driver put the trolley on the other wires and went back out to Powell-av to turn around again and continue the trip downtown. Another bus, on the same day, was stuck in the snow and had to be pulled out by another bus.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS NEWS NOTES

Bethel No. 3 held its first meeting of 1950 Thursday night at Schmelzer's meeting hall. I was very happy to see a grand turnout on our side lines.

Our donations at Christmas to a needy family were so successful that the girls voted to adopt a family for the next six months.

From now on refreshments will be served after our business meeting. The committee is headed by Joan Bergman. Nancy Hogans, chairman of the sick committee, reported two on her list—Barbara Wandel cut her leg, and our associate guardian, George Roberts, who has been sick since Christmas, missed his second meeting since he took office eleven years ago.

Four celebrated birthdays: Mary Cummins, our pro tem, Darcy Crispin, a newcomer, Mrs. Dorothy Jesty, bethel guardian treasurer, and Mrs. Roy Lockwood, chairman of our ways and means committee.

Barbara Loechler, our librarian, gave a report on the biography of John Greenleaf Whittier and read one of his poems entitled "The Barefoot Boy."

We are planning a skating party coming up in March, but those details will come up later.

At our next meeting we will initiate 13 girls.

The sales tax committee for the next six months is composed of Irene Curl and Wilma Wrigher. Let's keep 'em busy by bringing in stamps.

That's just about all the news notes for now, so, until next time, remember your secret pal.

Smooth-surfaced silks such as flat crepes and satins, should be pressed while slightly damp; they should never be sprinkled. Rough surfaced silks, such as shantungs and pongees, should be ironed when dry, or they will become stiff and shiny. Too warm an iron will yellow silk.

The Stoning of Stephen

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 6:11-8:6. By Alfred J. Buerther

Grecians in the early church complained that their widows were neglected when daily rations were given out. To correct this seven men were appointed to see that the Greek women were supplied, and among them was Stephen.

Stephen was full of faith and power, and did great wonders and miracles among the people, and when certain men of the synagogue disputed with him, they were not able to resist his wisdom and spirit.

These men got others to accuse Stephen of blasphemy, and they stirred up the people, so the elders and scribes took him, brought him to the council, but as he stood before them his face was that of an angel.

During Stephen's trial he recited the history of his people and rebuked his accusers for persecuting the prophets, whereat, furious, they took him out and stoned him to death.

MEMORY VERSE—Revelation 2:10.

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

Did you say SHEA? Yes, FRANK and his wife are quite happy about it—and the children are having the time of their lives riding in it. The maroon matches the trim on their house. Yep, CHEVIES are good cars. If we wait our turn, we'll all get a ride in it.

What do I know about the Butler-av Sewing Circle? This group is also making a stab at bowling. This month they sewed at the FLOYD home. Some of the hubbies got together and chewed the fat as much as the ladies.

MARGIE CUMBERS' umbrella isn't much good now. Her son took her plastic umbrella and threw it on the bonfire to prove it wouldn't burn. (Mother had said it wouldn't) Larry proved it all right. But IT went to holes—and MOTHER flew to pieces. However, MARGIE says the umbrella wasn't much good, but at least it kept off the rain BEFORE—but now the rain would come right through.

WARREN almost had to be treated for shock. MR. LISBON was playing with his son's electric train, and the control box went out of commission—and as WARREN was trying to fix the wiring — his wife touched him with an ice cube and he thought he got shocked. He was shocked all right! Don't do that again, Amy!

Yep, my wife was over at the Stanley party at Oyers. BETTY had a nice little luncheon. 'Twas a funny thing. That broom holder was passed around three times before it got settled for possession. My wife wanted it so bad! I can't see why. She's got me using that broom all day long. She needs no hanger.

Two new dogs are keeping the burglars away. The GENE HERBERTS have another one—also the PAUL CAMPBELLS.

The COMPATORES will appreciate the weather they are having when they learn that since they left Columbus, we've had all this bad weather. After their six-month stay in San Antonia, they'll be back here when it's nice and warm again — we hope.

MRS. SNIDER, your WSWS group had a fine turn-out. You'll have to show us how to get the High Ridgers together at our meetings. The last time I went I didn't get there on time, myself, so I'd better not judge others.

You're looking fine again MRS. RICHARDS. Don't let it get you down. The next time you bump into a door turn on the lights FIRST — not AFTERWARDS.

RUTH ANN'S parents are quite proud of her. At 9 months the CARTERS were watching her walking toward them for the first time. That's really an early age! I suppost the future generation will be skipping the rope before they are two.

PORTER'S tree was ripped in the storm Sunday. One branch lunged into the ground and stuck there ready to grow again. "Can't get rid of that dead tree, it seems," said the Missus. Note: Tree excavators, don't all come at once.

India Missionary To Speak Here

Sunday at 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. in the Hilltop Community Church, 179. N. Huron-av, Rev. Roy Davis of the Oriental Missionary Society, recently returned from India, will deliver two missionary addresses.

Mr. Davis spent a number of years in India to which the eyes of the world have been focused for several years. Mr. Davis will be showing moving pictures in colors at the evening service. These pictures show India as it really is.

Former Glenwood Pastor Returns As Guest Speaker

Guest speaker for the Glenwood Methodist Brotherhood Tuesday, Jan. 24, will be Rev. Charles E. Turley, 1482 N. High-st, pastor of the Hilltop church from 1914 to 1918.

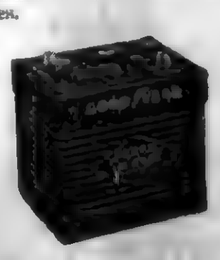
Following the Brotherhood dinner at 6:30, Rev. Turley will josh with his listeners in his inimitable manner and at the same time provide a diet of thought, which will linger long in the minds of the Glenwood constituency.

Widely known in the Hilltop locale, Rev. Turley, who retired from the ministry after a half century of service, has seen the Hilltop church grow to proportions as one of the largest in American Methodism, in which Rev. Turley has had no small part.

At an age when most folks go into retirement, Rev. Turley still is a dynamo of energy in the field of public speaking.

Youthful in spirit, vicarious in his interests, Rev. Turley in the parlance of one of his former parishioners is "one swell guy."

Leader of the Glenwood flock in the World War I years, Rev. Turley became military pastor at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, and near the close of his Hilltop ministry he became chaplain in the military service. He is an Ohio Wesleyan graduate.



Announcement of his appearance at the Glenwood Brotherhood banquet has been enthusiastically received

My Church

DEEP in my heart I know that the Church is of God. In spite of human frailties the church has brought blessings untold to all generations, including my own. That the church has made my community and my country a better place in which to live, to work, to establish a home, and to rear my children. That I would not want to live or die in a land where no church spires point its people heavenward.

I ALSO know that the Church continues to live triumphantly even when men and nations reject the church by indifference or open hostility.

IN this knowledge I gladly give myself to my Church and offer my loyal support by intelligent membership, regular attendance, generous giving, ardent prayer, and devoted service.

Presto--Magician Disappears

When Al Behrends appears with his startling illusion, "The Flight of Life", the Community Junior Theater patrons are in for a thrilling treat.

The climax of this illurion is so startling and unexpected that audiences garp at the development accomplished right before their eyes. The magician himself disappears and in his place is his lovely assistant, the magician later being discovered elsewhere.

It is baffling in the extreme and audiences all over the country have applauded it and acclaimed it as one of the most mystifying illusions ever produced.

Behrends will present this unusual entertainment along with other magic at West High School on Friday, Jan. 27, at 3:45 p. m.

On The Record

By Harry Franken

Hilltopics: Detective Bob Cooke was in last week from Canada with a half dozen venison chops. He leaves this week for Florida . . . The Buckeye Buckaroos made such a hit with the Hilltop Eagles that they have been asked to return this Saturday . . . Another sign of spring: Marian Jones reports seeing a snake in her back-yard at 98 N. Wayne-av . . . Lee Washburn has become one of our best reporters. He has a fire and an obituary to his credit in less than a week . . . Two hundred sportsmen took to the field and bagged two foxes in the Hilltop Conservation Club Fox Drive Sunday. Tally-Ho Men!

Water, water everywhere: The almost daily rain calls to mind the winter dry spell of just five years ago. West High School had to close early because the water shortage made it impossible to operate the boilers and heat the building. However 71 senior high pupils and 141 junior high pupils were able to graduate on time by having one boiler in operation and only the auditorium and administrative offices heated.

All the Hilltop schools were hit by the shortage, but they weren't the only ones. Vital war industries in the city were forced to close down, including the Curtiss-Wright plant. And word came from the mayor's office that we must cut down on water consumption by 30 per cent.

All of which proves that if it isn't one thing it's another, so don't forget your galoshes and raincoat. The weather man predicts the mild and rainy weather will last two more days.

Rainfall for the year has already reached a total of 4.66 inches. Temperatures yesterday were 24 degrees above normal.

Save your Christmas, New Year, and other greeting cards for Mrs. Young. You may drop them off at her home, or call her at RA. 5293. Mrs. Young will be happy to pick them up at your home.

Says Westgate Electric To Get County Contract

Franklin County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett said last week that the contract for the electric work on the new Children's Home must be awarded to the Westgate Electric Co., lowest bidder.

The commission for the home had awarded the contract to another bidder because the Westgate company uses non-union labor. Members of the commission said they feared a costly labor tieup on the $1,250,000 home if they awarded the contract to a non-union firm.

The bid submitted by the Westgate firm was $38,201. The next lowest bid was $41,467.

It's Collection Time

Hilltop Record carriers are collecting this week for customers who pay for the paper on a monthly basis. Collections are for the month of January. A card will be left each customer this month, to be receipted on future payments. Collections will continue to be made during the last week of the month.

Lt. Cressman, Would Be Flyer, Has 'Mo' Worry

Lt. (j.g.) Robert Cressman was a seagoing sailor with ambitions to become airborne. Today he is a land-lubber aboard the battleship Missouri, aground in the mud of Chesapeake Bay.

The 25-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesner L. Cressman, 119 N. Brinker-av, is a gunnery officer on the Missouri.

Lt. Cressman had put in for a transfer to the aviation branch of the Navy. He prefers flying to sea duty. And now the lieutenant—who graduated from West High School in 1942—is wondering whether the transfer will take place on April 1 as scheduled. So far, the battleship hasn't budged an inch.

The young officer served as an aviation machinist's mate during the war. In 1945, he attended officers' training school at Duke University, Durham, N. C., where he met his wife, Ida Mae. He was assigned to the Missouri in 1946. The couple and 3-year-old daughter make their home at Portsmouth, Va.

GROCERY ROBBED

WEST ALUMNI CONTRIBUTE

West High Alumni Association recently contributed $275 to the Hilltop school to be applied to the purchase of a recorder, Principal I. F. Young said today.

County Commissioners OK Village Annexation Plan

The addition of 16 homes to the village of Valleyview may mean the extension of the Hague-av bus line to serve the residents there.

Petitions for annexation submitted by a dozen home owners living just west of Valleyview have been approved by county commissioners. Opponents of such a step have 60 days to appeal.

Gale R. King, attorney for the petitioners, said the Columbus Transit Co. has promised to extend the Hague-av feeder line into the village if the annexation is completed. Th line now operates on Hague-av, from Sullivant-av to the north city limits of Columbus.

A technicality prevented earlier extension of the service. The northbound bus route if extended would have run in Valleyview—whose west corporation line is the center of Hague-av—but the southbound route would run in Franklin Township.

Such a route would have required approval of the Ohio Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

The new territory expected to be annexed lies just west of Valleyview, between the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroad tracks, west of Powell-av. PUCO approval is not required.

Harrison Denies Retirement Plans

Police Chief Frank L. Harrison, 2964 Wicklow-rd, denied he planned to retire after June 23. Reports that Harrison might retire in June at the end of 25 years service followed his examination by physicians at University Hospital Saturday.

The rumor also quoted Harrison as saying he had withheld ordering a new uniform pending a report on the medical examination. The police chief, however, denied this.

He said tests showed he was in good physical condition and that he planned to continue as chief. He has missed no time because of illness, Harrison said.

HEADS HOSPITAL STAFF

Dr. Lovell Rohr, 291 S. Brinker-av, has been named chairman of the general staff at Grant Hospital. He succeeds Dr. John Earl Briggs. Dr. Rohr is an obstetrician with offices at 1251 W. Broad-st.

Former Hilltopper Rescues Son From Blazing Home

Former Hilltopper Mrs. Robert Brockmyer Friday rescued her two-year-old son, Steven, from his blazing bedroom at their home, 438 S. 18th-st.

Mrs. Brockmyer, the former Frances Burns with her husband and son, is staying with her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Brockmyer, 446 S. Eureka-av, until their burned home is repaired. Mrs. Brockmyer said today the two bedrooms, bath and hall on the second floor were destroyed.

Steven and his mother were both painfuly burned about the face and head. The emergency squad took them to St. Francis Hospital. They were released after treatment.

Parents Were Grads

Both Robert, a paint sprayer at Jaeger's Machine Co., and his wife, Frances, graduated from West High School in 1940. Their son, Steven, celebrated his second birthday Thursday. His parents had planned a birthday party for him Friday night. They had invited 10 of Steven's playmates to the party. However, because of the fire, it had to be postponed.

Mrs. Brockmyer believes the fire, which caused an estimated damage of $825, was started in the bathroom from the heater she lighted to warm the room before giving Steven a bath. The blaze quickly spread to Steven's bedroom and nearly took his life. His mother heard the blaze from downstairs and saved him from the blazing room.

Says Glenwood Park Inadequate For Baseball

A plan was presented to City Recreation Director Nick Barack for the purchase of 24 lots on Wrexham-av for a new playground last week. Russell Drake, 213 Belvidere-av, presented the proposal, saying that the ball diamond at Glenwood Park was not large enough for even the younger teams.

The land in question was filled in recently by the city. It had formerly been used as a supply source for humus. Fred Kesseling, who owns two of the lots in question, had made a verbal agreement at the time to give the lots to the city when peat digging operations ended in August. The lots are listed on the tax duplicates at a value of $60.

The area is bordered by Belvidere, Lechner, Floral, and Dorsen-ava. The drive to have the area filled in was led by the Hilltop Community Council.

Barack said today that he had not studied Drake's suggestion completely. He said that if the department wanted to purchase the land, three appraisers would have to be appointed by the city to decide the value of the property.

Barack said he would present the proposal to the next meeting of the Recreation Commission, Feb. 8. Phil Stout, Hilltop attorney and president of the commission, said he had heard nothing of the plan and reserved comment until the commission makes a study of the proposal.

The Parks and Forestry division of the city has filled in the area of the land known as Kesselring's Swamp. Ray Dietz, superintendent of the parks and forestry division, has been ill at home and was not available for comment on the advisability of using the land as a playground.

Drake said that he did not believe the land was suitable for building.

High Ridgers Discuss New School Here

Plans for a new school building at Mound-st and Belvidere-av, were discussed at the last meeting of the High Ridge Civic Association. Other plans for the year were presented by H. T. Van Ness, president of the group.

Another guest speaker talked on the handling of juvenile court cases in the city and showed a 15-minute movie on that subject.

INJURED FIGHTING BLAZE

EVERYBODY'S HAPPY

Jim Lee To M. C. Band Variety Show

Jim Lee

By Myron T. Seifert

Ted Lewis has nothing on Jim Lee, 16, of 581 Clark-av, whose masterful rendition of the clarinet and whose MC showmanship is akin to the "Great Ted," himself.

Jim, his clarinet—and his piano—will be much in evidence as MC at the 11th annual West High Band Variety Show, to be sponsored by the Band Parents, Mar. 16 and 17, at the Hilltop school.

Coming from a family of musicians, Jim is a versatile "natural", playing practically any instrument in a band.

His father, Walter Lee, is a professional musician and teacher, while Mrs. Lee is likewise adept at the art.

Brother Kenneth, 1947 West High graduate and now a sophomore at Ohio State, played the trumpet for three years in the West School Band.

With only six months advance lessons on the clarinet, back in 1945, Jim learned the reed instrument quickly.

Starting the piano in 1942, Jim's remarkable mastery of the "ivories" makes him a favorite among teen-agers. His inimitable style—with all the dash of Frankie Carle and Larry Green—make him popular with the younger set.

Playing in many bands in the past years, he has also formed his own musicians into an organization.

His ability as MC is well known on the Hilltop. With a generous share of personality, Jim can inject a snappy note into any show.

Selected from a field of candidates, Clair Barnard, instrumental director at West High, had little trouble selecting the best MC for his March show.

In addition to music, Jim enjoys wrestling and football.

Hilltop Man Founds National Group For Dads of Foreign Service Veterans

R. M. "The Old Sarge" Hartman of 420 S. Harris-av, a Hilltopper for 54 years, has founded a national organization with headquarters at the Westway Post, VFW, 2393½ W. Broad-st.

Hartman founded the Dads organization of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and organized the first Dads post here on the Hilltop. The idea quickly grew, and soon there were a state and a national organization.

The purpose of the organization is "to make a place in the veterans' organization for the dads of all foreign service veterans" and allow them "to take an active part in the VFW."

"The Old Sarge" tells in his own words the history of the Dads organization:

"In the year 1943, the Commander of VFW Post 3863, known as Civic Center Post, located at 15½ E. Rich-st, in the City of Columbus, was approached by members of the VFW Drum Corps, with headquarters at that address, who asked him a pertinent question: "What's wrong with the Dads who serve the VFW in many ways, but who are denied membership, in any of its auxiliary organizations. Why not a Dads Post, sponsored by the VFW Post?"

"Commander Robert Swigert, a Spanish American War veteran and a member of the first VFW Post, being wise in the ways of organization, put this question to the VFW members, at the next VFW Post meeting and was instructed by them to appoint some Dad, who was a VFW member and eligible to the Dads, to serve as the organizer and to serve as the VFW representative in the Dads.

"Commander Swigert appointed his quartermaster, R. M. Hartman, to do the job and gave him a free hand in organizing it.

"In March, 1944, the first Dads Club was instituted by the founder, who served as election chairman, and it was he who instituted the Post and installed its first officers.

"In April of the same year, a state charter was applied for and received by the new organization.

"Being a new organization, of a new type, it was necessary for the founder to draw up its laws, from the laws of some existing organization and it was but natural that he drew up these laws along the lines of the sponsoring organization; he wrote in to them, a clear mandate, that the

WALNUT CHAIR

We walked your walnut groves
when springtime reigned,
When tender words hung on your trembling leaves
He whispered secrets I have long retained—
The constant love an answering heart receives.
More deeply carved into each shining day
Than our initials were upon your bark
Are promises he kept; none met decay,
As leafage of your woods, through all our dark.
Your summer gold along each treasured path
Is woven in the closeness we have had
Of living shared, of happy aftermath;
Our autumn souls are warmly,
safely clad.
Your absence from the grove has proved to me
How intimate a walnut chair can be.

TO LUCKY

They tell me you have gone away,
But I can still see eyes of grey;
And when I listen I can hear
Across the miles, but very clear,
A strange bird singing.

And so it was in days gone by.
Another Irishman rode nigh;
And as I watched from where I stood,
I seemed to hear through all the wood
A strange bird singing.

And so I think it will ever be.
Grey Irish eyes that smile at me
Will break my heart; and everywhere
That haunting song will fill the air . . .
A strange bird singing.

ORION

When the night is young and the heart is gay
And the wind blows cold, in a merry way
He strides with a vim and a curtain dash,
With his diamond sword and jewels that flash—

When the night is old and the heart is tired,
And the wind is hung where the stars are fired,
He walks very slow in the skies,
that blend
His scintillant garb with the robe of a friend.

Desserts In A Jiffy

Here is a dessert that is so easy to make a child can do it — and so effective to look at, so delicious to eat, that any hostess or junior hostess will be proud of it. It's the logical solution to the "What can I make in a jiffy?" problem. Not only the colors but the flavors of the prune purée and the orange rennet dessert go together beautifully.

For speed, economy, and deliciousness — try Jiffy Prune Rennet Desserts and see for yourself.

Jiffy Prune Rennet Desserts

¼ cup thick unsweetened prune purée
2 cups milk (not canned)
1 package orange rennet powder

Set out 4 or 5 dessert glasses. In the bottom of each dessert glass place a heaping teaspoon of prune purée. Warm milk slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When COMFORTABLY WARM, (110° F.) not hot, remove at once from heat. Stir rennet powder into milk quickly until dissolved — not over one minute. Pour at once, while still liquid, over prune purée. Do not move until set — about 10 minutes. Then chill. If desired, just before serving, garnish with whipped cream.

Taste-Tempting Cheese A Versatile Food

Cheese is one of our most nutritious and versatile foods. It deserves a place in every home as a household staple because of its usefulness in economical meal planning. When combined with a cream sauce, it makes a tasty sauce for vegetables and when included in escalloped dishes, the cheese acts as the protein food in place of meat, fish, or poultry.

Because there is no waste in preparing cheese for the table, it is a convenient and economical food to serve. Here is a delicious way to serve it:

Cheese Vegetable Timbales

2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup finely diced onion
½ cup fine bread crumbs
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup grated American cheese
1½ cups drained, cooked peas
2 tablespoons minced parsley
4 eggs, slightly beaten

Melt butter; add onion and cook over low heat about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add bread crumbs and milk and cook 5 minutes, while stirring. Stir in salt, pepper, and cheese. Add peas, parsley, and eggs; stir to blend. Pour into 6 greased custard cups. Bake in moderate oven, 325°F., for 45 minutes, or until a clean knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve with Creole Sauce. Serves 6.

Creole Sauce

2 tablespoons butter
½ cup sliced onions
½ cup diced, green pepper
1 No. 2 can tomatoes, (2 cups)
1½ teaspoons salt
Dash cayenne
Dash powdered cloves
1 teaspoon sugar
4 tablespoons flour
½ cup cold water

Cook onion and green pepper in butter, over low heat until tender, about 10 minutes. Add tomatoes and seasonings and simmer covered, about 15 minutes. Blend flour and water; stir into sauce. Cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Serve over timbales. Makes 1¾ cups sauce.

Hilltop Man Founds Vets' Dad Organization

ultimate organization's aim would would be direct affiliation with the National VFW organization and this became a reality in 1949. Ohio adopted the Dads a year previous, thanks to the efforts of Comrade Kuys of the VFW Post at Bryant, Ohio, for it was he who presented the Dads for adoption, on the VFW State Encampment floor, in that year.

"First president of Dads Post 1, Department of Ohio, was Glen Stokes and it was he who made the charter application to the state of Ohio, via an attorney."

"A clause will be found in the original charter that it remain in the possession of Post 1 and that State Headquarters would remain for life at Columbus.

"It should also be noted that all Post and State Charters, to date, have been issued from this original charter and that all states, other than Ohio, have signed written agreements, to use the name and laws, of the original founder, with the written understanding, that when that State Department is founded, they will join the Department of Ohio, in the National Organization.

"The year 1948 marks the year in which the Dads became a state department. Eight chartered posts sent representatives to the first Ohio state convention, at Columbus.

"R. M. Hartman again acted as the election chairman and it was he who installed the first State Department Dads officers for Ohio.

"The year 1948 marks the beginning of the National Department and at Salem, Ohio, temporary National Officers were selected to organize a National Department.

"The year 1949 saw the Dads achieve, first, national recognition as a sponsored organization by the VFW National organization; second, it saw our first National officers duly elected at Toledo, Ohio, with seven states being chartered in the national organization.

"Since the founder did write all the original Dads laws, appointed all the original Ohio State organizers, supervised the entire work of the new state department in its infancy, it was but natural that he step on some people's toes, but he did try to work in the best interests of the entire organization, often when the job seemed to be a hopeless and thankless task, giving of his own time and money in an effort to complete what he had been instructed to do by his VFW post commanders.

"I shall be happy to answer questions concerning the Dads organization.—R. M. Hartman (The Old Sarge), 420 S. Harris-av, Columbus 4, Ohio.

Bearded Bandit Robs W. Broad St. Bus Sunday

A heavily bearded bandit early Sunday held up a trolley coach operator and escaped with $87.80 after riding the bus several blocks, police said.

The operator, John Platt, 35, of 2495 Holmcroft-dr, told police the bandit boarded the bus at Brinker-av and Broad-st, rode several blocks to the line's western terminus and returned to Brinker-av.

There he drew a gun and demanded Platt's money. The operator complied and the bandit leaped from the bus and fled west in Broad-st. He was wearing service fatigue pants and a green jacket with a fur-like collar, Platt told officers.

Letters to Editor

Dear Sirs:

On behalf of the Columbus Post Office and myself, I wish to thank you for the tribute paid us in your wonderful newspaper and for the beautiful bouquet of flowers.

We appreciate it very much as most people are prone to accept good service, which is our motto, without any thought, but also prone to make most of any mistakes which we make.

For the Columbus Post Office I wish to say that this office is ready to cooperate with you at any time and we wish you many years of prosperity.

Very truly yours,
Henry R. Burchfield,
Assistant Superintendent of Mails.

January 19, 1950

Mr. W. D. Campbell
Dear friend:

I want to express my thanks for our fine article. "Education Frills Versus Education Thrills," in your THINK THIS OVER column of The Hilltop Record of January 5. This was a masterpiece and something that I was very happy to see because I have been especially interested in improving the music department of our school.

I realize that in order to put on an operetta it takes costumes, scenery in addition to royalty. Nevertheless, I feel it is something worthwhile. Nearly every junior and senior high school in the city has an operetta each year with a capacity house. The thing that disturbs me in trying to promote this project is the same thing that you brought out in your article, namely, lack of interest on the part of our community. You probably remember that the first year I came to West, we put on the "Gondoliers" for a one night production, and came out about $50.00 ahead financially. This year with our two night production, we actually lost about $75.00. I am not interested primarily in making money on operettas but I feel that it is a worthwhile school project that should be patronized better than it has been in our community.

Again thanking you for your interest in this, I am

Yours very sincerely,
Irvin F. Young,
Principal

Editor, Hilltop Record:

One of the finest Christmas parties ever held by the Hilltop Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has gone down in history.

Comrade Geddes and his committee worked hard on this one and even the old timers agree that it was one of the post's best efforts.

Comrade George Chambers, our first post commander, did his usual good job, as master of ceremonies, and that well liked state department adjutant-quartermaster, Comrade George Fetter, made old Santa blush with shame, for George went Santa one better and had the kids in an uproar.

The house custodian, Comrade Mack, did yeoman service in decorating the hall, assisting the committee of ladies and men in setting up one of the finest decoration setups we have ever had.

Our honored guests were the members of the Townsend Club and we extend our sincere thanks to each of them for lending their aid in making this the finest Christmas party ever.

Our invited guests were Hilltop children transported to and from the party by the post members and I feel quite sure that this party will long be remembered by them.

The usual toys, candy, etc., were distributed to each by dear old Santa (George) and he had a word with each of them, but only they know what it was, for as you know, George can talk Dutch like a Dutch uncle and may have addressed them in Dutch.

Our good comrade, J. Curtis Allen, came up with another of his high class photographs of the assembled group, the colonel was his usual efficient self, no lost motion and no time wasted.

After the presentation of gifts by Santa, a picture show was presented and again we were blessed with a fellow who had good pictures and the kind of equipment that shows good pictures. Our thanks go out to him and his equipment.

As usual, the kids got all stuck up with sweets, ice cream bars and all tangled up in pull toys of every description, some got stepped on and broke, tears were shed, but, child-like, it was soon over and the sun broke through again. They were all smiles and all tired out when it was all over. So were the old folks.

U. S. Guided Missiles May Soon Be Tried Over Atlantic

Work Begun in Florida on 3,000-Mile Proving 'Ground'

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Fantastic missiles of pushbutton warfare will be winging their way over the Atlantic ocean in the near future from an American base.

Work has begun at an isolated site at Cape Canarveral, Fla., by the Bahama route, on a military proving ground designed to make the United States pre-eminent in the field of guided missiles.

Washington

From this desolate and largely uninhabited site, now consisting largely of scrub palmetto and marshy savannas, giant missiles will fly through the air, tracked by radar and other secret devices, until they plunge into the ocean.

The project, known officially as the long-range proving ground for guided missiles, is a joint undertaking of the Air Force, Army and Navy for whose construction Congress has authorized $75,000,000.

When completed, it will provide a range of 3,000 miles extending over the ocean from Florida, largely over water, with observation posts located in British-administered Bahama islands.

A Defense department spokesman said there would probably be more than 100 long-range test flights a year. A target date of July 1, 1951, has been fixed as the time the proving ground should be ready for extensive guided missile tests, although limited tests may be made before then.

An observer at the launching point on Cape Canaveral will be able to watch the take-off of the guided missile, then detect its passage by means of special observing instruments. The missiles will ordinarily fly at much greater altitudes than conventional aircraft and will carry instruments to measure performance.

Extensive precautions will be taken to prevent accidents which might cause injury or property damage. The entire 3,000-mile length of the range will be under visual and radar surveillance during tests in order to avoid possible collisions with aircraft or with ships at sea.

There will be devices to control the flight of the missile continuously and should these "central devices" fail, the missile will be destroyed in the air before leaving the safe range area, or divorted from its course to land at sea. How this will be accomplished is a military secret.

When the missiles land the force of the impact will destroy them and they will sink to the bottom of the ocean. However, ships will be stationed at their termination to observe their fall.

Instruments will be located over the first 500 miles of the course to permit continuous observation of the missiles' flight.

Four observation stations, manned by scientists and technical personnel, will be built on the Grand Bahamas, Great Abaco, Eleuthera and Cat islands of the Bahamas under an arrangement being worked out now with the British and Bahama governments.

Plan Four Observation Stations

The new range is necessary because progress in guided missiles has outstripped the range of the existing White Sands proving grounds at Alamogordo, N. M. (Army-Air Force) and the Navy installations at Point Mugu and Inyokern in California.

The new proving ground will be a major step in the race now underway between the United States and the Soviet Union to perfect guided missiles against the possibility of future conflict.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

WITH THE ARRIVAL of Art Johnson, a big, dark man of rasping monosyllabic speech, Marvell spent less and less time with Kit. Companionship with men was a fresh thing to Marvell. Ever since he had come to Colcord, he had missed it. Except for the casual give-and-take in his work, he had moved in a dominantly female world—Kit, Nedda and Mrs. Crane. And he was also almost foolishly pleased with the way these young men listened to him, his advice, his decisions, his tall stories. He had the satisfying feeling that he was making more of his own life, which was pretty rusty up here when he came to think about it, through theirs. But after the first six months, he confided to Kit, "he didn't have much use for Art." Art had been disappointed in the smallness of New England compared to the length and breadth of Yakima Valley and after urging Furse to overshoot the mark in their initial outlay, he became discouraged and backtracked into puttering around with small fruits, poultry and dairy. Everything he began stood half finished because it never matched the impossible scale he had set.

"He's a half-wit," Kit agreed indifferently. She made it quite plain that Art and Furse had no interest for her. For that matter, she was non-committal with Marvell. He looked at her sharply. At fourteen she had none of the intensity she had had about everything as a little girl. Only, occasionally, when they read aloud together, did her responsiveness, which had been one of the most charming things about her, renew itself.

"What makes you think he's as mad as all that?" asked Marvell, trying to draw her out.

"Oh, he talks tough and big, but he looks and sulks like a baby."

"You wouldn't go into business with him, then? Now use your head, Kit. I want your impression."

"No, I'd rather have Pinty."

If it's as obvious as that to Kit, why doesn't Furse see it himself and get rid of him, Marvell fumed. Furse now had the set, driven look of a man who has gotten in too deep. But he was stubborn, as if he owed Art something for getting him out here, and he took the blame for everything, almost determined to be a failure before he gave himself a chance.

The break came with the fire. Marvell saw the glare from his windows. "That's Nedda's or Furse's," he cried to Kit.

"Let's go over, let's go over," Kit cried. If Nedda's house should burn... she shivered in apprehension. Mrs. Crane went along, too. The whole town always turned out for a fire.

By the time they got there, Furse's barn was as good as gone. Kit could smell the strong odor of burning flesh, for three cows had been locked in the stanchions. "They ought to make a law to have a door at either end of a barn," said Mrs. Crane. "It's inhuman to watch 'em burn like that."

"They was chickens there—that's what started it, an oil burner to keep the baby chicks warm," someone cried. "They won't get a cent insurance."

Kit stood back and watched the bucket brigade. Marvell was in it, now, and she could see Peter and Poldi in the line. Poldi must have been there from the beginning. Her dress was torn, her face was streaked with sweat. Audrey stood next to Kit, shrieking with excitement. "Poldi tried to save the chicks. Gee, she hates to have animals hurt." Kit wished Audrey would shut up. It was almost beautiful to watch Poldi move, quick and graceful, her shining face filled, not with anguish as Kit expected, but a deep compassion. She does so hurt anything or be hurt, thought Kit, and found herself fiercely wanting whatever it was that gave Poldi her strength for serene submission.

Kit drew away from Audrey and kept a watch for sparks that might blow over to Nedda's carriage house and sheds. She must not forget her allegiance. The smoke hung all around the blackened timbers as if to shut out the ugly sight of destruction. Marvell couldn't see Art anywhere. He, too, had been fascinated by Poldi struggling against the fiery shadows. Now she had been swallowed up. He touched Furse's arm. "Do you see Art or Kit?" he asked.

"I'm here," said Kit. "It's good Nedda's house is safe."

"But it might have gone," said Furse bitterly. "And yours, too. I'd better get out of here. I don't being anything but bad luck anywhere."

Marvell shook his arm. "The fire's out. We'd better find Art." This was Furse's chance, thought Marvell. Art's burned up his share, if he ever had one. Now he can break this partner stuff and hire him, and drive him and fire him if necessary. But he couldn't see Furse doing that tonight. He was hypnotized by self-pity, self-depreciation. Marvell could tell the signs. He grabbed Kit's hand. "I'll walk home with Kit. And then I'm coming back. I want to talk to you and Art. Tonight. Tomorrow won't do. Cheer up, kid. You're not licked yet."

Furse didn't move and now the smoke was lifting Kit could see the faces of the two men more plainly. The one, eager and excited, the other a mask where the sweat and despair and soot had left their mark. She sensed as she never had before the closeness between the two men. For a moment she was torn between irritation at being pushed along home and sympathy for Furse's lostness. She freed her hand and spoke decisively. "You needn't come now. I'll walk home with Mrs. Crane.

In Furse's raw, unfinished living room, Marvell waited for Furse to fix a drink. Everything reminded him of Art, the guns over the mantel, the gaudy covered mysteries and Westerns on the bookshelf, the dusty pile of dance records—cowboy songs and blues—stacked against the victrola. Furse came in from the kitchen with glasses and a bottle. He set them on the table and stood silently as if he, too, were aware of Art and were waiting for him to speak up. In that half second, Marvell heard the whispers of loneliness that permeated the house, the drip of water in the kitchen, the faint heart beat of a distant clock. The creak of an unseen chair. "Where is Art?" he demanded. He had the uncanny sensation that Art had left the empty room just before they crossed its threshold and that he would never come back.

"Sit down, he may have gone off to town. He wouldn't want to sit around grousing tonight, he'd want to forget it."

They sat opposite each other in worn leather chairs that had been left before the cold, dusty fireplace littered with cigarette stubs. It is like a wake, thought Marvell cheerlessly. Furse spoke. "This will set us back five years." He took a long drink. "I guess I expected that. That first day in Boston when you saw me going into Prentice's office, I shook all over. I thought, then, it was just the emptiness of returning from the war. Just a kind of nervous agitation. I'd been afraid before—for different reasons. Some of those fears were so small and others so enormous that I recognized them right off. But that day they all blended together into a kind of numbness, so that I wouldn't admit to myself the plain and simple truth that I could fail at this job, no matter how much I wanted to forget the boring agony of war, to spite my mother and make a new start. I knew all the time I was taking an impossible chance."

"Look," said Marvell, leaning forward. "So you've lost your shirt. But don't make it a hair shirt that you cling to like a martyr. You're too expectant of trouble, Furse. Everything you do, you allow a margin of failure. You can't win that way, that margin keeps getting wider, I know. You've got to act as if there was only one thing you could do—succeed. Don't keep Art on as an excuse, hire him or fire him. Don't keep thinking, well, if the apples fail, I've got the house. I can just sink back into oblivion and wait for old age to creep up. Make up your mind that you're going to buy Edith Searle's orchards some day and stick to it. You must have wanted to do this, or you'd never have started."

"I want to do it now," said Furse. "I don't know that I did in the beginning. You make a fight and a struggle seem the only worthwhile thing." He smiled for the first time that night. All the time Marvell had been talking, Furse had watched him intently. The light in the room cast shadows on Marvell's face that idealized his blunt features much as Furse's admiration did the man. He had been attracted from the first by his vitality, his cock-sureness because they were so foreign to his own cautiousness. Now he wanted to be like him and to make room for the model he was ready to discard some of the old images he had guarded closely for a long time.

"Do you know how I happened to come up to Colcord? Just before my father died, he told my mother and me that he had bought a country place. It had always been a dream of my father's. My mother and father never got on. She took a direct line of opposition to everything he said or did. She remarked at the time she supposed he was showing off, that it would be way beyond his means. We never saw the place until after he had died. My mother thought she could sell the estate, the mansion, whatever it was he had splurged on, for a fine price. You can imagine her disappointment and anger when she saw what it was—a weather-beaten, unworked farm."

"So you came up together to live on it," Marvell tried to see his face but it was in shadow.

"Yes, for about a year and a half before I went into the army. My mother hated the place so, and there was such little cash value in it, that she didn't argue long against my keeping it for myself. She went back to Indiana living on an annuity my father left her, which was above his means.

"When I had to come back to something after the war, I had this. Under the circumstances it seemed a godsend and it gave me a chance to make something of what my father wanted so. Oh, there were other things, too—Art's proposition, but the main thing was to make up for his loss which my mother didn't do."

Odd Fact

A three-year-old girl in London, England, had to have all her teeth pulled and was fitted with a set of false ones, which she will have to wear for seven years or more until all her second teeth come in.

Household Hint

A spot on furniture, such as a dresser, made by spilling cologne, may be removed by rubbing with oil and cigaret ashes if the finish isn't gone. Rub in a circular motion, then wipe off with clear oil and wax or polish, as you like. Shellacked woods are particularly susceptible to stains from cologne, as the alcohol dissolves the finish.

Puppies Prize In Rawlins Contest

As one pupil put it—"The Jimmy Rawlins Studio is going to the dogs." This apt, if ancient, cliche was brought on by three very life and lively puppy dogs that are the center of attraction in the Rawlins lobby these days.

The puppies are being given as prizes in the current "Valentine of 1950" contest for children.

Other prizes that are attracting the eye in the huge display include a bicycle, radio, record player, cameras, dancing shoes, wagon, skates, Correale make-up, 32-piece chinaware set, a loving cup, hose and theatre tickets.

The competition is based on new enrollments and is open to all young pupils of the Jimmy Rawlins Studios.

Now in its third week, the contest will close and awards made Valentine Day, Feb. 14.

INTERPRETING
(To a little friend)
"Here is a letter for you," he said,
This little boy of three.
Softly tapping upon my door
Handed a paper to me.

It was just a crumpled, soiled page,
But I could read it true.
The marks the wee fingers scribbled
Were truly "I love you."
Ethel Titus Worthen, in her book, MEMORIES

GOD AND I
I am part of the perfect Universe, vibrant with the pulsating life that sustains things.
This living, breathing, thinking Presence is the cause of my being. Because of it,
I am conscious of myself; through its love,
I am conscious of the rest of the universe;
inasmuch as it is all, and I am a part of it,
I have nothing to fear. This endless sea of life is at once Creator and Creation. I know that the Creator of such wonderful works knows its ultimate goal; and so, I am satisfied!

West Swamps Blue Lions In 70-52 Win

Judging from the last two games the Cowboys have played, it seems that the Hilltoppers enjoy playing away from home rather than on their home court. They have racked 137 points in those last two frays against superb opposition.

Jim Neff of the host five racked a push shot at the beginning of the opening quarter, and that was quickly matched by Ellingsworth's free throw. Phil Young and Neff matched tip-in's, and the same pace continued throughout the middle part of the first quarter, with Washington C. H. managing the upper hand the majority of the time. Ellingsworth put West ahead midway of the quarter, however with a side set shot at 12-11, and Jim Rudolph plunked in two gratis throws to increase the margin to three. However, Dave Sheilder, Jim Persily and Dick Archer plunked in eight straight markers for the Blue Lions to provide the latter with a rather convincing 19-15 first quarter lead.

After Rudolph and Archer of the host five exchanged bunnies, West started a drive that netted them with a lead they never lost. Bill Thrush sank a long set; Phil Young a bunny; Jerry Johnson a set; and Jim Rudolph an underhand beauty and free throw, which made the score in West's favor at 26-21, and from there onward, it was all West.

Rudolph, Young and Thrush sank six quickies near the end of the second period which pulled West from only a three point lead to a 36-27 margin at halftime.

In the third period, the Blue Lions pulled to within three points of our Cowboys on two occasions, once at 44-41 and again at 46-43 a few moments later, but Ellingsworth and Young of the Cowboys, who together scored the Cowboys' only buckets in the third quarter, were too much for Washington, and the quarter ended with West in a 48-43 lead.

As has been the case in the last three Cowboy games, the fourth quarter spelled the difference in the two opponents. After holding a mere five-point lead at the finish of the third period, our Hilltoppers racked in 22 points to nine for the opponents.

The Cowboys gradually began to become more dangerous, Washington's cagers, who have won only one game in 10 outings thus far this season, showed lack of experience and also were tiring quickly near the end of the fray.

Steve Lewis, Washington C. H. coach, was greatly impressed by the all-around scoring punch of the Cowboys. He said, following the fray: "I was very much impressed by Columbus West's all-around scoring punch. They had four boys who were "dead" from every place. However, where I think we lost the game was in losing our first string center via the personal fouls.

"Our replacement for Neff was caught off-guard numerous times by West's 21 (Young) and he was very inexperienced at guarding such a big boy."

Phil Young was top scorer of the fray with 22 points, racking in 10 buckets and two free throws. Phil, as Washington's coach explained it, caught his defensive man off-guard a great many times on beautiful fakes, and many times was all-alone for his shot, which he seldom missed. In addition, Young displayed his with all except one of their starters hitting the double figures in individual scoring, West High's basketballers walked off with a convincing 70-52 win over Washington C. H. and the latter's city last Friday evening.

The Cowboys played their best ball game of the year in the latter fray. In the South game, they looked terrific, but in the Blue Lions game last Friday they looked even better. They hit their highest score against Scuth at 67 Tuesday, but they even broke that in getting three more than that figure against Washington C. H.

After the win, in the locker rooms, Coach George Williams of the locals shouted as he entered the room full of happy fellows: "That's playing team ball."

Four of the starting five connected for at least 11 points apiece. Although Guard Bill Thrush and Center Phil Young led the parade as usual, they got some excellent assistance from Forwards Paul Ellingsworth and Jim Rudolph.

Thrush was runner-up in scoring for the Cowboys with 18, Ellingsworth had 12, and Rudolph, 12, all coming in the first half. Dave Sheilder topped the Blue Lions with 19.

In the prelim, West's seconds came back after being tied at 17-all at the halftime to win from Washington's seconds, easily, 44-30. Paul Thompson of the Broncos was high man with 18 points, with Russ Friend, Jim Lang, Bill South and Earl Potts getting five apiece to also lead the local seconds.

SHORT BITS: The Cowboy basketballers, four coaches and four managers were treated to a fine steak dinner right after the game at a fancy restaurant in Washington C. H. . . . The team also drove in a huge Columbus-Celina bus, with plenty of room for everyone . . . Jack Gammon, sub guard for the Hilltoppers, was the happiest guy in the dressing room following the game. He had scored five points, his first of the year.

Hilliards Loses 61-34 To Strong Mifflin Quintet

Mifflin's Cowpunchers continued their co-leadership with Worthington of the County League by overwhelming Hilliards, 61 to 34 in the losers' gym Friday night.

The Wildcats were never in the ball game but "held" Mifflin Center Mel Clemens to 18 points—it was enough to garner scoring honors — which brought Worthington's Bob Buell to within one point of tying him for the County League scoring leadership.

Clemens now has 139 points, and Buell has 138.

Hilliards allowed the Cowboy-seconds only one basket in winning the reserve game, 40 to 8.

Household Hint

When you buy plastic bowl covers, smell them to see that they have no odor—many (most) are odorless. If you have covers that have an oder, hang them outdoors daily for awhile, and wash them often. The oder will leave after awhile.

West To Meet East In City League Finale Weds.

By Dave Miller

West basketballers will conclude play in the first round of the City League tomorrow evening by playing host to an always dangerous East quintet.

The Cowboys enter the fray with a won-three, lost-two record in the City Loop, as compared to a won-four, lost one-mark for East in league play.

Things will be pretty much in a toss-up mood by game time tomorrow evening. The Cowboys dropped an 85-67 verdict to league-leading South, while East dropped a 49-38 verdict to the same team last Friday evening. However, don't get sold on East too soon. The Tigers played a stalling game in an effort to hold down South's giant scoring machine, while West merely tried to match the mighty Bulldogs from Ann-st.

Both teams have defeated the same opponents with the exception of one, that being Central. East downed the Bucs 41-38, while West suffered a 59-41 setback at the hands of the Pirates.

Two players, one from each squad, will be bidding farewell to City League ball in the game, also. Ted Hughes of East will graduate from East Broad Street School next Wednesday and Jim Rudolph, Cowboy forward, graduates tonight.

The visitors will be expected to play their usual brand of fast ball. Coach Paul (Bucky) Walters of East will probably employ Ted Huges and Bill Truss as forwards; Roland Harris at center; and Dick Linson and Romie Watkins at guards.

Three of these five are sophomores, all coming up from positions on last year's Junior High League pennant winners, Champion. The sophomores include Harris, Watkins and Truss, while the other remaining starter besides Hughes is Linson, who is only a junior, all of whom will go a long way toward building another good team at East in a couple of years.

Walters has some capable subs in Virgil Grimes, Ralph Webster, Jack Williams and Ernest Mackey, who will also be expected to see action.

West's coach, George Williams, has four of his starting five down without doubt. They are Forwards Jim Rudolph and Paul Ellingsworth, Center Phil Young and Guard Bill Thrush. However, the other guard is undecided, with sophomore Jerry Johnson probably filling the bill. He has been the regular at that spot most of the year, but he has been sick lately, and may not be able to start. Jack Gammon, who took his place at Washington C. H. last Friday evening, did a great job, and will be around for duty, also.

The probable starters:

East
F—Ted Hughes (C)	6'2"
F—Bill Truss	5'11"
C—Roland Harris	6'2"
G—Romeo Watkins	6'
G—Dick Linson	5'11"

West
F—Jim Rudolph (C)	5'11"
F—Paul Ellingsworth	6'0"
C—Phil Young	6'1"
G—Bill Thrush	5'9"
G—Jerry Johnson	6'0"

Public Lethargy To Blame For Many Crimes

Columbus police deserved to be congratulated on their fine work in nabbing three robbers Tuesday morning, probably ending the crime wave that has hit the city and county.

With a little foresight it would have been almost possible to predict the current wave of burglaries, Columbus is operating with a police force not nearly as large as Federal Bureau of Investigation statistics show is necessary for a city this size.

Police work is interesting; policemen work only 40 hours a week here, and they are reasonably well-paid. The lack of applicants for police jobs then must be due in part to the public attitude toward the police department. It is largely a public responsibility to make police jobs appealing to competent young men.

Another reason for the crime wave is the inadequate penal system in Ohio. The warden of the penitentiary has admitted this, and again the responsibility seems to rest with the public.

The population of the penitentiary is right around 4000. Conditions are so crowded as to make it nearly impossible to rehabilitate criminals there. Two buildings that should be used for training purposes in the penitentiary recently had to be converted to dormitories.

And as more men are sentenced to the institution, it means that room must be made for them by paroling other prisoners. This means that the small parole staff staff in the state just doesn't have time to do a completely effective job. Of the nearly 10,000 parolees of state's penal institutions in the past five years more than 2000 have been returned to the same institutions as parole violators.

This is the result of freeing men before they were ready for freedom, failing to rehabilitate the men while they are in prison, and a public attitude that makes it nearly impossible for an ex-convict to make a decent, honest living.

Prevention of future crime waves, then, necessitates adding to the prestige of the police force, building an adequate penitentiary (preferably outside the city) and maintaining enough parole and probation officers to carefully screen all parolees. We must also be willing to give these parolees a second chance, and not force them back into a life of crime.

Vice Principal At Starling Stresses Good Attendance

By Dolores Riddle

Good attendance is necessary for good school work. For this reason Miss Ina Ganson, vice-principal of Starling Junior High School for 24 years, has worked faithfully and well to build a high attendance record. It is to her untiring efforts that many pupils owe their school attendance, their eventual interest in school, and the final completion of their school work.

Miss Ganson's career began as a teacher in the Ohio Avenue Elementary School. Later she became a training teacher in the Columbus Normal School and then a teacher in Roosevelt Junior High School. In 1925 she became principal of Franklinton for one half year. Later in the same year she became vice-principal of Starling Junior High.

One of Miss Ganson's most thrilling moments at Starling was the time the school received a letter from Mayor Floyd E. Green of Columbus commending the school for its fine work in the community. She is also thrilled at each commencement when she realizes how much boys and girls have progressed during their three years at Starling. She adds "I would like to have more time with youngsters that are having problems, to talk things over with them, and try to understand their viewpoint. I am very happy with the association here at Starling. The pupils and faculty are a fine group to work with. Also I am very proud of the showing Starling teachers make in the community."

Miss Ganson's pet peeves are those who are careless and irresponsible.

World Day Of Prayer Planners Meet Friday

The Hilltop observance held last year at the Oakley Avenue Baptist Church was one of the many held in more than 10,000 communities in the United States. This year 90 countries will participate.

Details of the Hilltop observance of the World Day of Prayer will be announced in The Hilltop Record.

Police Link Safe Cracking Suspects With Hilltop Jobs

Four Captured In South Side Store Believed West Side Gang Members

Four safe-cracking suspects captured by police early Tuesday morning have been linked with at least eight jobs in the city, including most of the jobs on the Hilltop.

Detectives link the men with the following burglaries:

Lewis & Noon Coal Co., 76 N. Sylvan-av, $350 in checks and cash, Dec. 29; Jones Lumber and Coal Co., 87 N. Sylvan-av, $500, Dec. 29; Columbus Air Conditioning Corp., 320 Scott-st, three $1000 savings bonds, Jan. 14; Franklin County Farm Bureau branch, Hilliards, $1000, Jan. 5; Bob Strope's Auto Service, 2432 W. Broad-st, over $500, Dec. 31; Marble Cliff Oil Co., $50, Jan 9; Farmers' Co-Op Exchange, Galloway, undetermined amount of money, and Edward's Rexall Drug Store, 3036 Sullivant-av, $10, Jan. 12.

All were safe jobs except those at Galloway and Edward's Drug Store.

Two of the men were taken as they crouched behind the counter of a South Side store and another was arrested as he kept watch in an auto two blocks north of the store. A fourth escaped from the lookout car, but was captured later.

The four are Fred Grambo, 33, of 66 S May-av; Charles Marchand, 21, of 480 N. Eureka-av, William Cuckler, 38, of 3353 Valleyview-dr, and Daniel R. Charles, 19, of 1850 McKinley-av.

Police said they were members of a loosely organized West Side gang.

The capture occurred after James Enright, 53, who lives in a rear apartment of the drug store building, heard the thugs walking overhead as he slept in the basement.

Enright went to his first floor apartment and told his wife, Catherine, 52, to phone police. He returned to the basement after his wife made the call.

Detective Sgt. Herman Beck and Detective Albert Townsend approached the store, which is located on the northeast corner of Thurman-av and Jaeger-st, from the north.

Fox Drive Planned By Hilliards YF

Plans were made for a fox drive at the regular meeting of the Hilliards Young Farmers Monday evening. The drive will start from the Hilliards School Saturday at 12:30. Abe Sampson, chairman of the committee for the drive, says transportation will be furnished from there.

Shotguns only can be used in the drive. Proceeds from the sale of the pelts will go to the March of Dimes fund. All are welcome to participate in this drive.

'50 Outlook Given

The agriculture outlook for 1950 was presented by George Ganyard, county extension agent, at the meeting. Ganyard pointed out that many people are getting out of the poultry business and that now should be a good time to buy chicks. He also suggested that careful consideration should be made on the purchasing of new equipment due to lower income expected for the farmer.

Conference Delegates Named

Delegates were elected to the Young Farmers Conference to be held Feb. 3 and 4 at Ives Hall, Ohio State University. They are Ed Fladt and Abe Sampson. Albert Price is on the panel for planning a complete instructional program.

Harrison lost the wallet last Tuesday just after cashing his pay check. Riggsby, who has been "laid-off" recently, returned the wallet the same day.

5 Hilltoppers Ill From Eating Bad Creampuffs Here

Five Hilltoppers were stricken with food poisoning after eating creampuffs purchased from a local bakery. The City Health Department issued a warning and the bakery threw out 4000 puffs ready for delivery Wednesday.

Those ill from the allegedly spoiled creampuffs are, Mrs. Ruby Farley, 28, 281 N. Hague-av; her two children, Bruce, seven, and Dick, five, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Farley, 70; and James Leach, 40, 221 N. Eureka-av, driver of a bakery truck.

Dr. Joseph B. Drayer, deputy health commissioner in charge of food sanitation, said the creampuffs probably spoiled because of the damp and unseasonably warm weather.

All available department inspectors and nurses were sent Wednesday morning to all homes where the creampuffs were sold to warn buyers and make tests for possible food poisoning.

Mac's Super Market Affiliates With Red & White Group

Warren McDaniels, proprietor of Mac's Super Market, announced on the first anniversary of his opening of the store at 2006 Sullivant-av, that the store has become a Red and White affiliate.

The grand opening of the store as a Red and White market will be held this Friday and Saturday. McDaniels said that the savings made by mass purchasing with other Red and White stores will allow the store to sell goods at lower prices.

"THAT IS THE QUESTION"

"To be or not to be" is not the question. We are sure that it's 2-B. The question is "Do you think the increase in teachers' salaries will stimulate more activity and enthusiasm among the teachers?" To see how five Hilltop teachers answered this question, read the Roving Photographer column on page 2-B of today's Hilltop Record.

About Folks You Know

Goings — Comings — Doings Of Your Hilltop Neighbors

This unseason weather brings on an attack of pre-seasonal spring fever and seems to give us all a la-a-zy drowsy feeling. If we aren't puttering around in our garden looking for a spark of green, we're relaxing in the sun. And neither—by any stretch of the imagination—makes news for this column. Hence its brevity today. (But wait—regardless of sun, weatherman, and everyone's hopes, by the time this goes into print, it'll probably be snowing. It never fails!)

Mrs. Martha Merriman, 65 N. Brinker-av, is spending a couple of months in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pitton, 790 Racine-av, LiJean Euren, 3365 Parkside-dr, Bill Locke, 3365 Parkside-dr, and Lee Hardesty, 793 Racine-av, went to Cleveland last week-end to visit with Mrs. Pitten's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Locke, also of 3365 Parkside-dr, are planning a trip to their hometown in Pennsylvania this next week-end.

This warm weather brings on adventurous wanderings of the young. One small chap of about five was heard exclaiming as he walked down the street: "Gosh, am I glad! I know my way home, and here I thought I was lost!"

Germ Killing Vapor Dispenser On Sale Here

First in Columbus with the Glycolator—a furnace attachment for dispensing germ-killing vapors (triethlene glycol) throughout a home—is the Columbus Air Conditioning Corporation, 330 Scott-st.

The Glycolator treats the air and not the person, President A. T. English asserts. He reports that the vapors definitely kill airborne bacteria and thus are very effective in the reduction of diseases contacted from the air such as pneumonia, asthma, sinus, colds, tuberculosis, diphtheria, mumps, flu, scarlet fever, measles, and yet is harmless to persons.

Up to 20,000 cubic feet of air can be sanitized by the unit and positions on the dial permit selection of saturation points for various sizes of homes and buildings. Of interest to Columbus residents is the fact that the Glycolator is effective in eliminating mold, mildew and odors, says English.

Glycol vapors and their germ-killing properties gained considerable attention during World War II, after an accidental discovery of their power by air conditioning engineers in New York. Convincing tests were made at various military installations which proved the killing effect of glycol vapor on air-borne bacteria and viruses—while not adversely effecting humans in any way.

Scouting includes in its membership boys of all religious faiths and national origins.

Fred O. Sharkey Arrives At German Air Base Jan. 2

Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Sharkey, 393 S. Burgess-av, have received word that their son, Pvt. Fred D. Sharkey, arrived safely at Herzo Base, Germany, near Frankfort, Jan. 2.

Fred is a graduate of John Burroughs Elementary School and a former student of West High School. Prior to his enlistment, Oct. 15, he was an employe of The Felber Biscuit Co.

He was sent to Fort Knox, Ky., and received his basic training. He was then transferred to the Southeastern Signal School, U. S. Army, Camp Gordon, Ga., and on Aug. 2, graduated from this school, receiving the certificate for radio operators' high speed course.

He remained at Camp Gordon for an additional two weeks' training and schooling in instructors' techniques course and received an instructors' certificate and qualifications.

At the completion of these two courses in schooling Sharkey was then sent to the Army Security Agency School, Carlisle Barracks, Carlisle, Pa., and on Nov. 8, having satisfactorily completed this course of schooling and training, graduated from ASA School and was then sent to Vinton Hill Farms, Va., for additional training.

He was given a 16-day furlough home with his family and friends, Nov. 25 to Dec. 7, and returned to Vinton Hill Farms. He was then sent to Camp Dix, N. J. to await his shipping orders. On Dec. 23, aboard the U. S. Army Transport Gen. Alexander M. Patch, he sailed for Germany.

Fred reports he enjoyed the trip over, even though rather rough sailing with plenty of storms.

In addition to training in catching of dangerous criminals, the dogs are also schooled in gentleness, as this cat well knows. (International)

MEDITATION IN WINTER

Through scentless avalanche of snows
The splendor of a season flies—
Have farmers waited with still eyes;
And excited eyes?

In thin-walled halls, beneath loose thatch,
They heard sharp warnings of death;
They heard and grappled in the [illegible]
What had warm breath.

What did they see while the logs burned,
Warming the cold heart, soothing its ache?
What was the future their plight had taught
For the harvest's sake, for the Spring's sake?

Ah, time holds wisdom they can't [illegible]
As each binds heart to heart;
And bless the season's first spring day
With love-bound hearts' new part.

Father Emery E. Petho,
in his book, AS THE SWIFT SEASON ROLL.
(Bruce Humphries, Inc., Boston)

ON AN ARAB TEXT

I have seen Love in the tents of the shiek and the hamal; sackcloth it wove for the one, for the other, cloth of gold.
I have seen Life enter a khan gate rich with enamel; squalid the courtyard within and crusted with mold.
I have seen Doom let out into the dark like a blind camel; those it struck died, and those it missed lived to be old.

CAN DO
Window Cornices Add Beauty Inexpensively

IT'S EASY to build a window cornice. Not only that, a project to make cornices for your living room and/or dining room windows will add considerably to the attractiveness of your home.

In making a cornice, the basic unit of construction, generally, is a 1 x 6-inch face board for single wisdows or a 1 x 8 face board for double windows. You need only your commonest tools — hammer, saw and screwdriver. To do a neater, more exact job, however, you ought to have a miter box and miter saw in order to get your corners square. Any hardware store can show you these two items. You'll find, as a matter of fact, that mitering equipment is extremely handy to have for almost any exacting wood-working job you have to do.

The width of your cornice may vary in relation to the height and width of the window—the idea being to obtain a pleasing appearance by proportion. The cornice should be wide enough so that when draperies are pulled back they can hang without covering any glass.

If your window is 90 inches wide, for instance, the top board of the cornice ought to be about 42 inches long. The end pieces—6 inches wide—should be 6¾ inches long. The face board should be as long as the top board, plus 1¼ inches to allow them to cover the side boards on each end.

The sides of the cornice should overlap the top, and the face board should overlap the sides. Use either finishing nails or countersunk screws to assemble the cornice. If you prefer rounded corners to square ones, use a rasp, followed by plenty of sandpaper.

It is probably more convenient to hang your cornice so that it may be removed easily for cleaning. One way to do this is to drive two finishing nails in the top of the window frame, about six inches in from each side. Leave enough of the nail heads out of the wood so you can slide the cornice onto them. Next, drill holes in the top board of the cornice in positions corresponding to the nails. The nails and the sides of the cornice will hold the piece firmly in place.

LOOKED AT your tools lately? They ought to be sharp and shining. Although a top-quality oilstone and slipstones are of prime importance to every woodworker, these tool-sharpening aids often receive too little attention.

Sharpening tools can be almost a pleasure when stones, strop and oil can are mounted on a baseboard which is provided with a hinged cover to keep out dust and dirt.

If your oilstone has a wooden case, the lower part of the box can be nailed on to retain the stone. Other strips can be used to hold the smaller sharpening stones, and a recess should be cut into the base to hold the oil can.

Your tools are worth keeping [illegible]

West Wins Over East Tigers 55-53 In Overtime Fray

By Dave Miller

A determined crew of West High basketballers proved that "a team that won't be beat can't be beat" Wednesday night as they whipped East High's Tigers, 55 to 53, in a thrilling overtime fray played in the West gym before a screaming and wild mob of fans.

The game ended in a highly exciting pitch, with everyone going home happy over the well-deserved win of our Cowboys. The win knocked West and East into a second place tie, both having completed their first round of play with identical records of four wins and two defeats. Central, with a won-three, lost-two record at present will fight to tie for runner-up honors tonight by playing North in the latter's gym.

In the closing moments of the fray, with only six seconds left in the game, Teddie Hughes of East, playing his last game for the Orange and Black before graduating, missed three consecutive free tosses, with the score in West's favor at 50-46, and the game seemingly was over, but fate was still hanging around, as Hughes grabbed a pass from out of bounds, and threw in a right-handed push from the side to cut West's lead to 50-48, but it seemed for sure that West could stall the ball for only five precious seconds. However, Dick Linson, East guard, who hit from far out all evening, grabbed a bad West pass, and dribbled to mid-court, where he took a desperation long set, and as the gun sounded, the ball split the nets, sending the fray into an overtime.

From there, with nine seconds elapsed in the extra period, Hughes tossed in a left-handed hook, but just 15 seconds later, Phil Young, West's high-scoring ccented, plunked in a tip-in, and was fouled in the attempt. After a time-out, Young sang the gratis toss, placing West ahead at 53-52, and from there, after Paul Ellingsworth intercepted an aerial, the Cowboys attempted to stall the ball. Jim Randolph found an opening, and drove in for a lay-up, putting West into a commanding lead of 55-52 with 30 seconds remaining in the game. A few seconds later, Dick Linson of the Eastsiders sank a free throw, and after West stalled the ball the remaining 27 seconds it was a Cowboy victory of two points.

The game was the third overtime for the local basketballers this year. They lost to Grandview, 52-50 in their initial "fifth period" of the season, and in their other extra period fray, they took a 46-41 win over Linden.

The ball game, for the first two and one-half quarters was all East, but once the locals got started in the third period, East's towering cagers found the going rough in attempting to stop 'em.

The Cowboys took the lead for the first time in the ballgame in the midway portion of the third period at 34-33 on Phil Young's free throw. Romie Watkins of East sank a duo of free tosses, but Young followed with a tip-in to again give West their one-point lead, and Bill Thrush, again playing his great game for the Cowboys, followed with a tip-in.

Center Roland Harris of East matched side set shots with Thrush as the third period ended in West's favor at 40-37.

The Cowboys started out slowly in the final period, but gradually began to build up a commanding lead. After East's Ernest Mackey made a hook to make the score 42-40. Jim Rudolph of the Cowboys, playing his best game of his high school career, and his last because of graduation, followed in for four quick points, giving West a 45-40 lead, which they increased to 47-40 on Jerry Johnson and Jim Rudolph's consecutive free throws.

Linson and Hughes then got together for 10 quick points as compared to only a free toss by West as the regulation fourth period ended in a 50-50 tie.

Phil Young was high scorer of the game with 18, followed by 16 for Bill Thrush and Ted Hughes, the latter from East. Rudolph, playing his last City League game, dropped in 15 after being held to only six points in the entire first half.

The West reserves took a real thriller, winning a 422-40 double overtime game. Ted Fladt, of the West seconds was high scorer with 13, tipped in the winning basket with 20 seconds gone in the "sudden death" period.

Girls' League To Open at Glenwood

A girls' basketball league, sponsored by the Hilltop YMCA, will start playing at Glenwood Recreation Center within the next two weeks. The teams will be for girls of junior and senior high school ages.

Arrangements for the games are being made by Pat Matthews of the recreation center and Dick Downing of the Y. Games will be played on Saturday between 3 and 4 p. m. Girls interested in playing in the league should phone the Y, JO. 46411.

Paul Schlosser Quits Coaching Post At Mifflin

Former Hilltopper Paul Schlosser, football and basketball coach at Mifflin High School, resigned that position effective in June. He has made formal application for the post of athletic director and coach at Chillicothe High School.

Schlosser, a graduate of West High School in 1938, coached two championship football teams in his four years at Mifflin. A resident of the Hilltop until a year ago, Schlosser was named All-City halfback in 1937 when West won the city championship under the mentorship of Harold Wise, present coach at Ohio University.

Before spending three years in the army during the war, Schlosser graduated from Findlay College, and then coached the backfield there. He also coached at Arlington High School, Hancock County, before the war.

At present his basketball squad is sharing leadership with Worthington in the county league. In 1949 Mifflin was undefeated and untied, and won the county league football championship. In 1948 his pigskin eleven shared the county title with Hilliards.

half-dozen police cruisers converged on the area.

Townsend and Beck jumped from their cruiser and entered a side door which the thugs had jimmied open. Detectives Isaac Moore and Roland Hutzell entered a front door.

Just inside the side door Townsend, who was carrying a police special revolver, and Beck, who was carrying a shotgun, found Charles Marchand crouching behind a soda counter with a drawn pistol.

Both policemen cocked their guns, at which Marchand dropped his pistol and jumped up.

"I give up. Don't shoot," Marchand told the detectives.

Townsend started across the store when Grambo jumped up from behind a drug counter and surrendered with his hands in the air. He was not armed.

Sgt. Beck said they found two wrecking bars just inside the side door. Both men were wearing leather gloves.

At Stewart and Jaeger-sts, James Siders and Ralph R. Johnston spotted Cuckler in a parked auto. He offered no resistance. He was unarmed.

The police capture at 2:30 a. m. Tuesday came minutes after the thugs entered the pharmacy. There was no safe in the store

Juniors Edge Out Reserves 42-41 In Overtime Game

West Junior High's cagers did something last Monday that no West Junior quintet ever did before. We admit that the local freshman team has been breaking records right and left as of late, but this in the minds of West High followers rates as No. 1.

A traditional game around West is the battle between the West High reserves and the West Junior quintet, whether it be in a scrimmage or a regulation game.

The Senior High reserve teams usually have pretty easy sailing, but this year was a different story. This year, the junior high team beat an all eleventh grade team of reserves, 42 to 41, in a thrilling overtime game last Monday in the West High gym before a large crowd.

Bob Thornton, towering West Junior center, was the hero of the game. He sank a jump-push shot with only 30 seconds left in the game to clinch the victory.

However, the win was no lucky one for the freshmen. They led all the way, and only a desperation shot with three seconds left in the game, by Jim Lang of the reserves, sent the contest into overtime.

The fray was a highly exciting affair all the way, with West Junior holding a lead all the way until the waning moments.

Here's another strange fact. The frshmen were all talters than the reserves, all of whom, except Guard Kenny Anderson, are juniors in high school. Doug Clark, Bob Thornton and Roger Meyer all stood over 6'2", with Jerry Trabue, 6'1", and Guards Bill Haire and Dick Hutchison threatening six feet. The reserves' tallest man was Center Jim Lang at 6'1".

Lang, incidentally, was really the sparkplug of the reserve team. If the rest of the reserves had hit as they usually do, it would have been an easy win for the Fred Heischman-coached team. Pivotman Paul Thompson of the reserves, who is moving up to the West varsity next week, and who had hit 31 points in his previous two outings against South and Washington C. H., scored only seven points.

With 16 seconds left in the game, the reserves were trailing, 39-36, when Bill South of the seconds sank a free throw to narrow the margin to a basket, and then Lang received the ball out of bounds, whereupon Earl Potts, little Cowboy guard, sank a long shot from past mid-court, but the shot didn't count because the referee hadn't "touched" the ball after the free throw.

So Guard Ken Anderson tossed to Lang, who stripped a side shot, tying the game at 39-all and sending it into an overtime.

In the overtime, the reserves went ahead for the first and only time of the game on Ken Anderson's free throw, but that was quickly matched by Bill Haire's gratis toss that tied the score at 40-all. Thornton then clinched the decision with 30 seconds left. Bill South made a free throw to cut the margin to one point, whereupon the reserves lost the ball a moment later on a bad pass, thus conceding the victory, but not without a fight.

Jerry Trabue, playing his last game for West Junior before joining the senior high ranks, was high scorer of the game with 16 points, followed closely by the reserve, Jim Lang, who racked 15.

Calling All Outdoorsmen

If you found your favorite fishing water a bit crowded last year, there was a good reason. In fact, there were over 15,000,000 reasons.

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced last week that fishing license sales last year totalled 15,478,570 to set a new all-time high. Gross revenue hit $32,657,940, an increase of $5,333,396 over the previous year and also a new record.

Michigan again was the top state in sales with 1,110,109, followed by California with 1,030,109 and Wisconsin with 1,022,004. This was the first time three states passed the million mark. In 1948 only Michigan was above that top figure.

Other states in the top 10 were Ohio, 918,042; Minnesota, 862,822; Illinois, 783,073; New York, 690,462; Pennsylvania, 611,677; Missouri, 599,109, and Tennessee, 426,497. Indiana dropped out of the top 10 and Tennessee moved up for the first time.

California set the pace in gross revenue with $3,138,501, followed by Michigan, $2,102,347; New York, $1,884,408; Washington, $1,740,451; Wisconsin, $1,732,158, and Minnesota, $1,578,006.

A third record also was established last year with a total sale of 1,191,346 non-resident fishing licenses. This topped the previous high in 1948 by a big 202,508.

States attracting the largest number of out-of-state anglers were Wisconsin, 285,277; Michigan, 283,879; and Minnesota, 214,895.

Since the end of the war a new record for license sales has been set almost annually. Chances are, too, that sales for the current year will zoom ahead of 1949. However, there are some who are forecasting that the sales have just hit a peak and will now level off. We'll have to wait another year, however, to find who wins the argument.

The Boy Scout Movement is organized in 48 different lands and its world membership is 4,306,010 boys and leaders. More than half of this total are enrolled in the Boy Scouts of America.

The Second National Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America will be held at Valley Forge Park, Pa., June 30-July 6, 1950.

More than 40,000 Scouts and leaders are expected to attend the Second National Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America.

Rare Sacred Lily Blooms

A RARE SACRED LILY, a native of China, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Kaufman of 47 S. Warren-av. Mrs. Kaufman points to where the top of the plant was on Dec. 18. In three weeks it grew to seven feet, six inches. Its huge blossom last only three days during the winter. In the spring the bulb of the plant is put into the ground. In the summer, foliage from the flower expands to six feet in width, but does not bloom. Mr. Kaufman has had the plant for seven years. It grew to its tallest height this year. The bulb was only three and one-half inches in diameter. Now it is 12 inches around.

Mrs. Rama Waymire, 56 Powhatan-av, teacher at West Broad Street Elementary School: "The increase will definitely help stimulate the teachers. They are already buoyed up with the idea. Everybody likes to receive a raise in salary. The teachers will do all the more for the children. As a teacher, I feel honored that the citizens of Columbus have faith and trust enough in us to vote us a raise. I feel sure that more teachers will now take more training and participate more in the teacher work-shops."

"Balancing our income against the high cost of living is a most difficult problem these days. I think that the much needed teachers' raise will be a benefit, not only to the teachers themselves, but to the whole community. My sincere thanks to the voters of Columbus, who helped to bring this about."

Grace Smith, 550 Woodbury-av, teacher at John Burroughs Elementary School: "I know the raise will stimulate the teachers here in Columbus. It will be wonderful to get that 125, but I'm afraid it will not be sufficient, especially for the male teachers with families. I think teachers who have financial worries can't keep their mind on their teaching. I started teaching here at John Burroughs when it opened in 1921. Then I received one-fourth of what I'm getting now. However, it went much farther."

H. G. Trout, 100 Eldon-av, West Junior High industrial arts teacher: "In a long-range program, the new increase will greatly benefit the Columbus schools. It will benefit the taxpayer-parents by providing better teaching methods for their children. With a higher minimum salary, the system will get better teachers; attract more good, young people."

Mrs. Helen Snouffer, 428 Binns-blvd, teacher at Highland Avenue Elementary School: "The raise will enable and encourage more of the present teachers to take more professional training. And, too, it will attract more qualified people as teachers. Many new teachers are veterans with families, and are therefore in need of more remuneration. A relative of mine who is a teacher earned more money selling books house-to-house in the summer than she earned teaching school the rest of the year."

Arthur E. Buchanen, 145 N. Chase-av, history teacher at West High School: "I remember that the last time we received a raise, enthusiasm lasted for at least a year. There is no doubt this raise will help. There have already been indications of that. I feel sure the parents will realize a direct benefit. We teachers realize our salaries are slow to go up, as well as slow to go down."

A Rich Man's Home

"I Can Dream, Can't I" is the name of a popular song, but I, myself, have had many lovely dreams come true. Why not? I recall that as an art student in New York City, we artists, in groups, visited two great town houses of the immensely wealthy. At one of the Fifth Avenue Vanderbilt homes we saw, in part, a superb hand carved dining room, exquisitely beautiful in low relief in its wood tracery. I cannot remember the art gallery, on another floor. No private, personal rooms were seen, of course.

The other place was a great Norman architectural pile, almost like a Norman castle, transplanted to New York (now demolished) I believe at 72nd-st and Madison-av. What an establishment! We were whisked up about seven floors by private elevator to the roof (gabled) and there was this famous, fabulous studio. The Tiffanys (not the jeweler, that was his brother) made their vast fortune in fine fraville art glass of all kinds, but this marvelous studio had more than 100 genuine Oriental hand-made lamps of all descriptions hanging from the high vaulted ceiling, and mostly all lighted. It was a fairyland of enchantment! Then there were four great wood burning fireplaces in the center of this huge room, facing the four directions of the compass, all burning immense logs of sweet wood. You talk about "One Enchanted Evening" from South Pacific—well, I had "that evening" 50 years ago in 'li'l ole New York" but all the above thrills were with groups of students. Now I must tell you of my own personal dream, all for myself.

I have always wanted to see the interiors of rich people's homes. I did not care how they made their money, it was to see what things they bought and owned. Well, the president of one of my Chautauqua circuits, Loring Whiteside (aristocratic name) invited me for a week-end at his beautiful small estate of about 80 acres, outside of New Haven, Conn. I took taxi, for about 10 miles, and came to a low, rambling Colonial house set off the road, deep in lush hills.

Upon pushing the gong, the door was opened by a French maid, dressed in black, with a frilly French cap and frilly apron, etc. She was expecting me, but Mr. and Mrs. Whiteside were out horseback riding over the hillside. Taking my wraps and bag, I was ushered into a richly furnished, beautiful living room about 30x50 feet, a great colonial fireplace in the center of one long wall and a Renaissance, tufted-velvet davenport facing the fireplace. These davenports I saw in Radio City shops at $1000 to $1500 each (today's prices likely $1800 up). It was an extraordinarily artistic piece of furniture.

Now, before going on with more descriptions, let me say that Loring Whiteside was a rich man, not wealthy. He inherited about a quarter of a million dollars, but he was a cultured Harvard man, a perfect gentleman of about 30 years of age and, with his second wife, was a most gracious host. They had another week-end guest, a captain from West Point, so I had a truly regal time. The house was not too big, I would say: a large living room, library, dining room, many bedrooms, Egyptian decorated breakfast room and wonderful mechanical kitchens, the living room opening out to a great flagstone terrace and this on to gorgeous rose gardens.

My personal bedroom was in solid cherry, very much in pure colonial style, twin beds, etc. The maid service was perfect and unobtrusive. Back again in the living room, I asked Mr. W. many questions. As I was lecturing on "Better Homes" on his Chautauqua circuit, I could ask my friend a few personal questions about his artistic furnishings. His lamps, say, five, in the living room in pure silk shades were Tiffany ones at $250 each (money then); chairs, occasional, $300 each. He had about $30,000 in Oriental rugs, downstairs. The dining room had emerald green velvet drapes. His library, small but luxurious book bindings, shelves to the ceiling.

One notable piece in the living room was a $4500 Steinway Duo-art grand piano. I could play rolls of music or at a touch play any of my own selections. Its design was not like ordinary "grands"; it seemed more severely aristocratic, yet simple in its leading lines.

I cannot remember what was on the walls, but the living room windows were draped in huge, patterned, brilliant chintzes. As we chatted about this and that, I recall how like, though smaller, an English country home this place was, as Loring Whiteside leaned against his big, wide hearth. And all of this luxury, I hope, did not turn my head. These materialistic things are OK in their way, but riches in the MIND are so telling and so effective that when confronted with mere "money" values the CULTURED BRAIN can annihilate them with a blow more devastating than can be imagined. So, why not make your dreams come true (if only in imagination) and be sure you have the proper background to enjoy them deeply. My art training helped me, and my honest and good common sense parents gave me the "MANNERS" that stood me good in that rich man's home and lovely place.

"THINK THIS OVER."

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

"DID YOUR father ever know you took sides?" Marvell asked Furse.

"I guess not. It was their quarrel. He was a quiet, uncommunicative man. He was a Latin teacher in the public high school." His voice lowered and then he said more quickly picking up his thread of thought again, "Often when my mother argued with him, she'd stand in back of me, her hands on my shoulders, her nails digging into my coat, not as if I were her defense, but as if I were a drum on which she beat a triumphant staccato of dislike. When father turned away from her voice, her arrogant questions which she always answered herself, she would push me away and leave us both together. Perhaps he thought I took her part. I was never close to father, either. I remember certain things about him—he loved words, he used them with unerring precision. And quotations, odd broken sentences that seemed to warm him in that frozen atmosphere. 'Oh, Prince, the labor of it. Oh, Prince, what pain.' I do not know what that phrase called to his mind but he spoke each word as if he were long familiar with it. And another sentence—once in a friendlier mood he explained why he liked it, 'And go where your sad, sad heart is and speak to you in the night.' He never could remember the whole poem, he said, without starting at that line because the rhythm of it broke the pattern and started the whole thing in action. But then he was likely to add sharply, 'And what are you supposed to be doing now, Andrew' and become the schoolmaster again."

There was a silence for a moment and Furse said passionately, "I can't fail!"

"You won't"—said Marvell. "But not because you're fulfilling an old dream of your father's but because you have one of your own. You know, my mother used to talk to me the same way, only in a different language. I can remember it word for word: 'Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out ...or roots by the river, and shall not see when the heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green; and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit.' I used to feel uncomfortable at the name of the Lord, for my father took every occasion to take a swipe at it, but it means the same thing I've been saying—the dream, the confidence—no margin of failure."

He wanted desperately to convince him. It seemed to him that in some way his own salvation lay in Furse's conviction. He found himself trembling in his intensity. "You need two men to help you," he went on. "Art, if he stays, and you could use Pixy. He does the work of two and he'll take orders. You want the best equipment for the best production. You should build a storage plant."

"I'd have to sell the house and live in the plant," Furse grinned faintly.

"No," Marvell knew what he was going to do, now. "I'll lend you the money. Provided you hire Art, not split with him. Anyway," he felt it more strongly now, "I think he'll go. I'll set a good interest rate but long terms, when you've bought out the Searle orchards, you can pay me back."

Furse swallowed before speaking. "Why do you care?"

"I like to think I never made a mistake in judgment," Marvell smiled. "And you see my challenge is over, maybe that's why I appreciate yours. But I want to give you a chance I didn't get—at the right time. Most people wait till they die," he sighed bitterly, "when I got my chance it was too late to do what I wanted—" This is the last time I'll think about it, he promised himself. If only Elizabeth had shown her hand before she did, I could have licked Proctor right where I was.

Furse felt a new strength that filled him with exhilaration. Out of his respect and admiration he had only one question. What had Marvell wanted so much that he couldn't have got—even now? Then he remembered he was tied to the kid.

"What about Kit?" he asked. "I don't want to take anything of hers in case I should fail."

Marvell swore in disgust. "You won't fail! Don't worry about Kit. She'll get her own. I've got wonderful plans for her. I'm lucky there because I know what she wants. In a few years now, she'll be ready to set out straight as an arrow to her goal."

Marvell was right. Art left at the end of the week and Marvell never saw him again. That was the turn in Furse's luck.

Kit had just turned sixteen and Marvell felt a little uneasy with her. She seemed to have grown-up overnight and was almost maternally indulgent with him as he discovered when he wandered around the fringes of the birthday party celebrated by a group her own age. What puzzled him most of all was the narrow range of her interests—they were so—he hunted around for a word—domestic. She had never given any hints of this talent before, he reflected. As a child she had not set herself up in miniature housekeeping, nor dressed dolls, preferring flesh and blood actors in plays of her own making, riding with Nedda or alone, tramping and reading with him. Now she and the other girls in her intimate circle spent endless hours designing and sewing party clothes, planning and cooking for various entertainments. When he burst in upon them, their heads were always together in a secretive way. Their soft whispers or shrill giggles filled the house. By the extraordinary number of handmade gifts they exchanged — batik scarves, sealing wax lockets, painted trays, he concluded they were outvying each other in affectionate reassurances of friendship and yet he was sure they were spitefully jealous of each other at times and parted and wept only to make up the more sentimentally. It all seemed to him a waste of their shining vitality which glinted in even the dullest of them.

One night he came upon Kit in the front hall, fishing in the closet under the stairs where they kept their winter coats. She wore a scarlet cap and scarf that made her look like a seven-year-old.

"Where are you off to?" he asked in surprise. He had been planning to slip over to Furse's for a few hands of blackjack.

"The Unitarian Church. It's Fellowship night."

"Alone?" He would drive her down.

"Peter Stanewecki is going to take me."

"What's that Catholic going for?" He wished, too late, that his tone had been less sharp, but although he had finally accepted the giggling girls it came as rather a shock to think of her going out with a boy at night.

Kit stiffened and replied with the faint over-enunciation of words that comes with irritation. "He's going to drop me by, go to the garage to work awhile, and pick me up on his way home."

"Is he old enough to drive?"

She shrugged. "He's eighteen, he says, but no one asks around here."

He made no motion to get his though he knew she was waiting for him to leave before she did. "We don't read aloud much any more, do we?" he asked making it an invitation.

"We've read everything." He saw the towers of literature crumble in her restless eyes. "I have to go, anyway. There's something good tonight."

He wouldn't have stayed her but because she did not remind him that he himself had seldom had a free evening for the last year, he felt ashamed that he had questioned her. Oh, well, he thought, watching her pinch her cap into shape before the mirror, she needs companionship of that kind and age. But Peter Stanewecki, that golden boy? For Peter had grown into that rare thing, a beautiful man. All his mother's rich auburn coloring, starved a little in Audrey, had come to him crowning a perfectly proportioned body, tall and long limbed. If he's dazzling to me, thought Marvell, who like most of his sex resented a beautiful male, what will he be to Kit?

He did not want to meet Peter so he grabbed his coat abruptly and went out, brushing Kit's dark rose cheek goodbye, something he seldom did.

Later, at Furse's, watching him put away the table and cards, he was only half-listening to what he said. It had been an evening like many others, warm and comfortable, in the leather chair by the fire, the long drink at his side, the concentrated, sharp game, the desultory, private talk between men, later to branch out into the pet subjects each one held dear—economic theories with Marvell, practical figuring and planning with Furse. Every time he came to Furse's now he was impressed with the well-being of the place. You could almost hear the powerful wheels of his enterprise generating power. The room looked neater, more personal. Furse himself was more natural, ready for a joke or a serious argument. They exchanged advice, now, and pitched into town affairs together. Marvell had contracted for next spring, on a paying basis, the storage plant for Furse's finest crop of apples. But tonight Marvell found it a great effort to talk. He had a feeling all the important things to be said and done were behind them.

If you are not using the back burners of your stove while preparing a meal, keep them covered with inverted coffee can covers. This will protect them from becoming greasy and clogged from food spillages.

You can brighten up dark corners in living or dining room by hiding outdated floor lamps behind a handsome screen. The glow from this hidden source of light will add interest and drama to the room.

Looking Ahead

with JEAN WORREL

"Look," said an acquaintance of mine the other day, "I'm a firm believer in insurance. I think it's a wonderful idea for people who have their future plans cut and dried and who know just how they are going to be situated this time next year. But how can I choose the type of insurance that I should carry when my plans are all so indefinite? Why should I saddle myself with a policy that may be entirely unsuited to my needs in a year or so?"

"No reason in the world," I retorted, "But how would you feel about a policy which is really four policies in one, with five years allowed for deciding which one suits you best?"

"You can lead me to it," he said. "If there is such a plan I'd like to get in on it while I'm still young and healthy."

The Adjustable Policy is such a plan. For the first five years the assured is covered for the full face amount of the policy. At the end of this period he can choose a Limited Life Policy, an Endowment Policy, or a Whole Life Policy for a considerably increased amount. He can, if he prefers it, continue the policy on the Whole Life basis for the original face amount but at a much reduced premium. Thus at no additional cost, and without evidence of health, the assured can limit his period for paying premiums or have the policy mature to his own benefit, increase the amount of insurance or decrease the amount of his premiums.

Could anything be more adaptable? Why not obtain further details of this plan-of-many-purposes? Call me today. You will incur no obligation, and I shall be glad to be of service to you.

"Waa!" says BABY DAUGHTER HANBY! That was her first word as she came into their new house. She's a joy to her proud parents, MR. AND MRS. CHAS. HANBY. Congratulations!

The GENE HERBERTS also own a television set now. It's an Arvin. It keeps them up later than they'd like to be, but they figure it's worth it.

Speaking of television—I was down on Broad St. last week and as I passed the Bendix, automatic laundry, a man came out the door shaking his head, saying, "I've seen television before but I can't make out the type they have in there. The spinning makes my head dizzy. Wasn't tuned in right, I reckon."

"Eek! A mouse!" screeched HELEN DOWNEY. She found it in her wash basket in the basement. It couldn't climb out—kept scratching and slipping back down inside. So she covered the basket with a large flat piece of wood and ran upstairs. Her washing didn't get done that day. She waited until her husband got home from work that night, and he had to get rid of it.

Since we're on the subject of animals, I might as well tell on MARCELLA LANE. She just Harking back to the days when quite a number of tramps rode the railway trains, a woman who used to live near the water tank recalls one unkempt individual who grew talkative while sitting on the back porch eating a lunch she had given him.

"I don't suppose," she remarked, "that you know what good honest work is?"

"No, lady, I don't," he said, as he finished eating and stood up. "What good is it?"

GEORGE WASHINGTON, AMERICA'S REVOLUTIONARY WAR HERO and the nation's first president, was still living when this home, the Hilltop's oldest, was built by Lucas Sullivant in 1790. Andrew Jackson, famed general of the War of 1812, and another president, passed this house when he travelled on the National Road from Washington to the Hermitage, his home in Tennessee. Sullivant, founder of Franklinton, built the home 160 years ago. Two former owners of the home are still living. They are John Bentz, 93, New York artist and uncle of John Bentz, 62, 245 Wrexham-av; and T. E. Slocum of 26 N. Harris-av. Slocum lived in the house 40 years. The old home is being torn down to make room for a modern, three-story office and apartment building, with storerooms on the first floor. Donald F. Smith, Hilltop attorney, is the builder.

Little Charlie was coming home one Sunday afternoon with a long string of fish when he had the misfortune of running smack into the minister. Seeing that there was no excuse Charlie decided to meet the situation aggressively. He walked straight up to the parson, put on his biggest smile and said, "See here, Sir. Look what happened to these fish for nabbin' worms on Sunday!"

On The Record

By Harry Franken

"Fifty Year Club" New Record Feature

Nearly every week we talk to, or hear from, an old-timer who can remember back to when the Hilltop was little more than pasture land.

Several people remember when Hague-av was just a mud road, when a livery stable and blacksmith shop was one of the biggest businesses in the section, and a four-wheel "Dinky" connected the end of the Broad-st car line and the Big Four Railroad.

Even most of the younger residents can recall when transportation west ended with the car tracks at Hague-av, and some of our residential streets were wooded areas.

Beginning Thursday we are going to give our readers an intimate look at the Hilltop as it used to be. With the inauguration of our "Fifty Year Club," we are going to delve into the recollections of residents who have spent a half-century or more on the Hilltop.

You won't want to miss the interesting story of the first couple in our "Fifty Year Club."

Drive Safely: The opening of the new school term means that there will be 80 more children on the streets than last autumn. Most of the increase in enrollment is in the lower grades. Many of the new school children are first graders or kindergarten pupils who have had very little experience in traffic. They will be on the streets in the morning when traffic is the heaviest.

The increased number of children on the streets and the hazardous driving conditions of winter mean that every driver will have to be doubly careful to avert tragedy on our streets.

The deaths of Rosemarie Yeager and her mother shocked and saddened the Hilltop last weekend. We should all resolve to do our utmost to prevent such needless deaths.

Cunningham To Be Lions Speaker

The Hilltop Lions meet Thursday, Feb. 2 at 6:30 p. m., at Schmelzer's Restaurant. Harold F. Cunningham, farmer and Democratic candidate for county commissioner, will be the speaker.

Ground-Hog Day speaker, Cunningham, a raiser of hogs, will speak humorously on "The Farmer's Legitimate Gripes." Cunningham is a member of the Hilltop Kiwanis Club.

Wayne Ave. Woman Foils Purse Grab

Although knocked to the ground and cut over the right eye when her eyeglasses broke, a 76-year-old Hilltop woman managed to jerk her handbag out of the clutches of a purse snatcher Monday night.

Mrs. Margaret Berry of 44 N. Wayne-av, told police the robber grabbed her in the 2500 block of W. Broad-st. He fled on foot. Police took Mrs. Berry to Mt. Carmel Hospital for treatment.

Men's Class Plans Pancake Supper

The Tri Mu Men's Class of Glenwood Methodist Church will hold a pancake supper Thursday evening at the church. Serving will begin at 6:45. All present and former members of the class are invited. There is no charge.

Entertainment will be furnished by Keith Miller, accordionist, and by Ralph Hammit and Clarence Sherman of the Pleadors. Clyde Moore will be the speaker.

"Spike" Is Glad She ran That Ad

"Spike" is proud of his owner's good judgment. If you don't believe us, ask "Spike" himself. Who's "Spike?" Why, he's a very happy springer spaniel, who lives over at 49 N. Powell-av.

He wasn't so happy just a short time ago, however; you see, he was lost—quite lost. His mistress, Mrs. A. Browning, placed this "Lost" ad in The Record:

> Springer spaniel; black, white, male, 3½ years old. Child's pet. RA. 5154.

The ad was supposed to run three times—but that wasn't necessary. "Spike" was returned home by a Record reader after the first issue. Yes, sir, "Spike" is surely glad she ran that ad!

In case you haven't already learned from happy experience, Record Want Ads do much more than find lost dogs. Every classification is a potent result-producer, whether you want to sell your car, real estate, furniture, business, locate a good tenant, employe or offer a service. RA. 1125 is your lucky number—give it a twirl!

Propose Hilltop Recreation Center

Parents Group Submits Plan To Rec. Commission

A proposal for a new Hilltop recreation or community center has been presented to the recreation commission of the city by the Hilltop Parents Association.

Three members of the recreation committee of the club, Mrs. Elizabeth Shaw, Warren Carter and Mrs. Ora Benton, submitted the plan at a recent meeting of the Recreation Commission.

The following is the four-point proposal of the commission:

I. "We propose for your consideration that additional recreational facilities are needed on the Hilltop.

II. "We propose that a Hilltop Recreation or community center is the need because:

1. Three quarters of the year the playgrounds and play fields cannot be used.
2. The standards are a community center for every 15,000 people. The Hilltop has only one center, with a population of around 45,000.
3. Previous recommendation that the schools be used for community centers is unsatisfactory because: (a) Four-fifths of the time the schools' own programs require the use of the buildings; (b) The high service charge prevents the use the other fifth.
4. A Hilltop center is needed to promote better health (a well baby clinic, a day nursery, youth and recreation service and adult, parents' education). It can be used as a headquarters for social workers to promote better family and child care and aid to the dependents. A headquarters for a branch library because the Hilltop branch is being moved to the outlying area of Westgate.
5. The percentage of the population above 50 years of age shows a definite increase while the percentage below the age of 15 years shows a fairly consistent decrease. This trend is expected to continue. year round recreational facilities are needed not only for children and young people but for parents and adults. Columbus is a commercial and industrial city, and with the advance of technology, the use of machinery, adults have more leisure time. If adults and parents have more opportunity to think, study and play together, the secret of solving the many problems of the total process of human development of child society and young people would be solved. Growth does not stop at 20, but is continuous throughout life.

III. "The association recommends a possible site on Sullivant Avenue which could serve the area bounded by Whitehorne-av, W. Broad-st, Hague-av and W. Mound-st.

IV. "The Hilltop Parents Association proposes that the center have an interracial staff as people of all races can and will work together when the opportunity is provided."

At its last meeting the association agreed to sponsor the Hilltop Girls' Athletic Association basketball team in the Beatty Center Wednesday evening league. The report of the director of activities, Mrs. Rosa Triggs, was accepted and approved.

The group met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cook, 337 S. Wayne-av. The next meeting will be Feb. 21 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gentry, 410 S. Oakley-av.

Joe Knows A Good Deed If He Sees One

There are no reports of cures for which there are no ailments this week, but there is the story of a "robbery" solved in which the victim was unaware of his loss.

C. W. Wagner, 667 Wiltshire-rd, was called on last week by city detectives. They wanted to know if he had been robbed lately. He said he hadn't.

It all started when some inmates of the state school signalled a passing police cruiser and asked police if they knew Joe, or had ever seen all the things Joe had. Further investigation showed that Joe had quite a collection of paraphernalia.

In Joe's cache of mostly worthless stuff was a letter addressed to Wagner bearing a 1943 postmark. Inside the letter was the deed to the Wagner home.

Wagner said he had sent the deed to the Recorder's office when he bought the house and hadn't noticed that it didn't come back.

How the deed got in with Joe's souvenirs is still a mystery.

Family Away As Fire Damages Home

While members of the family were away Thursday night, a fire burned out the interior of the five-room, one-floor plan home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Boysel, 2745 Walcutt-rd, Hilliards, firemen reported.

Sheriff's Deputy Louis E. Riffle reported Chief Howard Michaels unofficially estimated the damage at "between $2500 and $3000." The fire was believed to have started in the kitchen, though the cause was undetermined, Riffle said.

Hilltop Mother, Daughter Killed In Traffic Accident

Father Listed As 'Fair' In Case Hospital

A Hilltop girl and her mother were killed Saturday in an automobile accident near Marysville.

Rose Marie Yeager, 16, died instantly from head injuries. Her mother, Mrs. Leona Yeager, died 10 hours after the crash in the M. Case Hospital, Delaware. Her father, Dane H. Yeager, is in fair condition in the same hospital. The family was en route to visit relatives in Delaware and Magnetic Springs at the time of the accident. The accident occurred when the Yeager car was struck from behind on a narrow bridge across Blue's Creek on State Route 4, six miles north of Marysville.

The driver of the other car was Clarence A. Backus of Marion. He suffered severe face cuts.

Mrs. Yeager died of fractured ribs, a fractured right hip, and severe shock. Her husband has a skull fracture and a broken hip.

Yeager, a shipping foreman for the Felber Biscuit Co., had driven for the company for 20 years without an accident, covering about 600,000 miles.

Miss Yeager was an only child. She was a stenographer at the General Electric Co. and was a graduate of West High School.

Friends of the family may call at the Jerry Spears Funeral Home Tuesday evening and until time of services, 1:30 p. m. Thursday. Services will be held in the Glenwood Methodist Church, Rev. Joseph Shellhaas officiating. Burial will be in Unionville, O.

Eastern Star services will be held at the funeral home Wednesday evening.

Book Donated By Club In Memory Of Lt. Hatton

Mrs. Edward K. Martin, 430 S. Westgate-av, representing the Gamma Alpha Beta Club, donated to the Hilltop Library a copy of "Crusade in Europe" by Dwight Eisenhower.

This book was donated in memory of Lt. Robert J. Hatton, Co. K, 30th Ind., 3rd Division, 7th Army, who was killed in action August 28, 1944, at Mountlimar, France.

A sister of Lieutenant Hatton, Mrs. Leora Hatton Betsch, 1177 S. Westgate-av, is a member of the club.

Sullivant Ave. Bus Extension Is Deferred

The proposed extension of the Sullivant-av bus line was put off by the Columbus Transit Co. Monday night during a meeting with City Council.

Spokesmen for the company said the expense of extending the trolley line 10 blocks, from Binns-blvd to Derrer-rd, would be too costly "until there is something more definite as to what the fare is going to be."

Oscar R. Hott, vice-president of the company, stated that the short extension would cost the company $43,000, and claimed its annual operating loss would be $19,500.

City Council President Henry A. Koontz put a counter-proposal to the company. He suggested that if the trolley lines are too expensive now, a gas bus should run from the end of the line to Derrer-rd.

Koontz, who lives at 485 Hilltonia-av, has asked the city attorney for an opinion on whether council can make the transit company extend the trolley coach line.

"There is definitely," Koontz declared, "a need for an extension. Last week, on a rainy day, I saw 18 people get off the bus at the terminal and walk west."

The transit company claims it is still losing $1000 a day, despite the recent fare increase.

First Crossword Puzzle Contest Ends In Flurry of Entries; Second Starts Today

With a flurry of last minute entries, the first week of the Record's big Crossword Puzzle Contest closed Monday at 5 p. m. Due to the necessity of checking all entries for corrections, winners will not be announced until this Thursday's edition.

The second puzzle of the five-week series appears on page three of this issue. Prizes for the three best entries this week will be a Cory Automatic Coffeemaker, a Westinghouse iron, and a Westinghouse waffle iron. In addition, this week's prize winner will be judged against the other four weekly first prize inners for the grand prize of a 10-inch RCA Victor table model television set.

Some confusion was evidenced this past week as to how to work out the puzzle. By way of explanation, there are 10 or more of the co-sponsoring merchants names worked into the puzzle each week. For example, the question for number 3 down in last week's puzzle was "For dual wall furnaces." By reading over the various ads on the contest page, you'll find that the Westgate Roofing & Heating Company features dual wall furnaces in their ad. Then since number 3 down is but eight spaces, the word "Westgate" is inserted rather than the full company name.

Another more difficult example from last week was number 7 down. The statement made was "Buy one at Seiller's" and the correct answer—"tie." This, of course, would be most easily arrived at by working out the adjoining "across" spaces.

As noted in the contest rules, it is necessary to submit a sales slip from at least one of the merchants whose name is in the puzzle the week — or weeks — you enter. In the case of Bordens Moores & Ross Dairy, a bottle cap is acceptable in place of a sales slip. For Seyfert's Potato Chips, send in the label from any Seyfert product.

When sending in your entry, remember that in case of ties or similar entries, the number of sales slips sent with the various entries will determine the winners.

Prizes in this week's contest will be a Cory Automatic Coffeemaker, a Westinghouse iron, and a Westinghouse waffle iron.

To be eligible for the contest which appears in this issue, entries must be postmarked not later than midnight Monday, Feb. 6. Address entries to the Contest Editor, Hilltop Record, 2465 W. Broad-st.

Hilltop Schools Enrollment 6987

JOAN AND JEAN KURLANDER are already to begin their school careers. They will attend kindergarten at John Burroughs School. The twin girls are daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Arnold B. Kurlander, 836 S. Eureka-av.

Up 80 Since Fall; Gains In Elementaries

Unofficial enollment figures for Hilltop schools reached 6,987 today, 80 more than the enrollment at school's opening last September.

Enrollment dropped off at West Junior and Senior High Schools. This drop, however, was offset by an increase in the elementary enrollment. West Broad Street School showed the greatest increase, from 839 to 884. St. Mary Magdalene had the largest increase among the parochial schools, going from 435 to 459.

A breakdown of the separate schools shows the following enrollments:

West Senior High	1003

Starling Junior High	1019
John Burroughs	1075
Highland Ave.	547
W. Broad St.	884

Money - Phooey We Got Millions Legion Says

We don't guarantee it, but members of the Camp Chase Post say they are going to give a lot of people the chance to become millionaires Saturday. Want to know more? Here's the text of a notice that came to the Record office today.

"Did you ever wish that you were a millionaire? What would you do? How would you react? Would you spend it or invest it? Here is an opportunity to learn the answer.

"Next Saturday evening, the members of Camp Chase Post No. 98 and their friends will experience the thrill at their annual Million Dollar Party to be held at the Post clubrooms, Burgess-av and W. Broad-st, starting at 6:30 p. m.

A buffet luncheon will be served and plenty of entertainment provided. The feature attraction will be the awarding of a Mystery Chest filled with beautiful jewels and other priceless treasure. A fabulous "Black Diamond" formerly owned by a wealthy Egyptian Maharajah will be given away.

"The committeemen in charge of this party have even risked their very lives in order to bring all of these jewels, gifts and money to the Hilltop for this big party. It's going to be a party you cannot afford to miss. Just think, you may become a millionaire for just $1. Reservations may be obtained by calling Dewey Stout, RA. 1589; John West, RA. 6512; Mrs. Ray McVay, Sr., RA. 4082, or Mrs. John Martindale, JO. 1795.

"Sorry, but no person wearing either a Navy Pea Jacket or a false face will be admitted at any price.

"Free 'spending money' for the evening will be provided in exchange for your real American dollar bill."

Warning Results In Forger's Capture

A check forger was apprehended Monday as the result of action taken by C. H. Campbell, druggist at 2766 W. Broad-st.

Campbell as secretary of the Hilltop Business Association, and secretary of the Central Ohio Academy of Pharmacy, sent out bulletins to members of these organizations describing two check forgers who have been operating on the Hilltop and throughout the city.

The alert to Columbus druggists did the trick. One of the culprits, who used six aliases, Monday was caught in the act at a North end drug store.

The other forger is still at large.

Kiwanis Speaker To Talk On YMCA Program In China

The Hilltop Kiwanis Club will hear Earle Buckley, YMCA World Services physical education expert, at the dinner meeting of the club Thursday noon at Schmelzer's Restaurant.

Buckley has recently returned from a four-year stay in China where he was secretary of the International Committee on Physical Education. He had previously served with the Canadian YMCA War Services Unit.

During his four years in China Buckley travelled extensively, making friends in all walks of Chinese life and on both sides of the present conflict.

He has journeyed through China by plane, train, bus, jeep, sampan, horse-cart, rickshaw, and on foot for tens of thousands of miles. In many cases his itinerary carried him in and out of cities and provinces just one step ahead of the Communists. His job during the first seven months was to visit many of China's [illegible] YMCAs, help them improve the quality of their programs, and to investigate the possibilities for extending physical education. Looking Ahead with
JEAN WORREL

Well, here we are smack in the middle of the atomic age. The world of yesterday is gone—already it is a thousand years behind us. For better or for worse we must go forward into a future that will be dominated by the colossus of atomic energy. It is difficult to foretell the direction—much less the shape—of things to come. Scientific apostles of gloom forecast the instantaneous disintegration of the world under the force of the cleaving atom. Other equally scientific prophets expect an era of plenty with mankind finally freed from drudgery by the harnessing of the mighty mite.

What will it ultimately be—destroyer or creator? We little people can only hope for the best, and perhaps take heart from the fact that the blinding flash that heralded the birth of the new era also presaged the end of a terrible war.

There is little that the average person can do to control the destiny of atomic energy. But there is something all of us can—and should—do for our future security, as well as for our present peace-of-mind. Life Insurance is the best protection against the proverbial 'rainy day'. Provide today for tomorrow. I shall be happy to discuss your insurance program with you at no obligation to yourself. Call me—or drop in—today.

New Spring Suits Feature Warm Colors, Interesting Detail

Suits are as sure a sign of spring as the first crocuses, and this year they will be about as colorful — yellow, green-gold, beige and all shades of red. You can have your choice of silhouettes, says fashion expert Hildegarde Fillmore, but whatever your choice, it is sure to have some of the new unusual details, like winged cuffs, flared lapels, and linked buttons. Writing in McCall's for February, she describes some of the new spring suits created by leading fashion designers:

"Take your choice of silhouettes: long or short, loose or fitted jacket, straight or full skirt. Look for unusual details: winged cuffs, flared lapels, contoured belts, dolman sleeves, bloused backs, link buttons, pockets, pockets, pockets. Look for checks: tiny, medium, big and bold. Look for color: yellow, green-gold, the whole red family from soft pink to vivid scarlet, beige, and of course navy.

"Checks, dolman sleeves, blousback, patent leather belt and hip pockets are five spring style notes on a worsted suit by Harry Willis. Gray flannel looks so young, so new, with deep white cuffs on three-quarter sleeves, by Connie Adams.

"Two suits by Handmacher: a suit of British tweed, its fitted jacket closed with link buttons, the flaring lapels faced with grosgrain; and a long-lined suit of yellow gabardine. Soft - focus beige gabardine is leather belted lightly padded under the pockets, by Etta Gaynes.

"A young bolero suit of checked worsted has deep cuffs, huge patch pockets on belted skirt, by Mr. Herbert. A red-and-navy checked suit of rumple-resistant rayon will make a happy traveler. Bias binding around the jacket is important detail by Simon Cohen. Fringe trims the shawl collar and squared-off hip pickets of a worsted tweed suit in tones of gold and blue, by Mr. Herbert."

Beauty Brushing For Short Hair

Keep your short hair glossy with frequent brushing, says Dolly Reed, who describes a special routine, in McCall's for February, for shining up your short locks and making your scalp healthy:

"Start at nape of neck, brushing upward with short, brisk strokes to stimulate circulation. Wipe brush often to remove oil and dust.

"Brush around hairline with quick, flicking strokes. The tiny tugs make your scalp tingle and remove make-up that may have strayed.

"Brush longer hair upward, lock by lock. Hold each strand straight up, roll bristles firmly against scalp at start of every stroke.

"Midweek cleanup: Pack rows of bristles with tightly twisted strips of cotton dampened with cologne. Brush hair as described above.

"Wash brush often, at least once a week. Add a few drops of ammonia to soapsuds and swish brush around in the solution.

"Rinse brush thoroughly. To keep bristles strong, shake brush and stand it on handle in a glass. Place it in a sunny window to dry."

Ether is produced by distillation of alcohol with sulphuric acid.

The double ring ceremony was performed on Jan. 13 at 7:30 p. m. at the Glenwood Methodist Church in the presence of the immediate families and close friends.

Before the ceremony a group of selected numbers was played by Mrs. Clyde Moore. "Because" and "With This Ring" were sung by Mrs. Robert L. Muncie. Rev. Joseph Shellhaas, pastor of the church, officiated at the candle light ceremony before an altar banked with ferns. During the ceremony Mr. Muncie sang "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, dressed in a blue-grey suit with navy blue accessories, carried a Bible bound in olive wood which came from Jerusalem. It was covered with white carnations and rosebuds.

French Dessert American Style

The famous French cooks have always been more proud of their creamy desserts than anything they prepare. Many of these delectable desserts are as simple to make as our American baked custards and owe their success to the liberal use of milk and cream and very slow cooking.

It takes good ingredients, in the proper proportions, and careful cooking, to make any food to perfection. It is the skillful blending of milk and eggs and flavoring, and the slow cooking that makes this famous French chocolat pots de creme, one of the best tasting desserts you ever tasted. The French use very little sugar in their chocolat creme, but we have given a choice in the amount for those who like a sweeter dessert.

CHOCOLAT POTS DE CREME

'Ingenuity' Is Fun Too

INGENUITY—Brother, that's a "four-bit word" if there ever was one! Actually, however, it's a simple word and it expresses a great deal as far as we Americans are concerned. We looked it up in the dictionary and it means possessed of cleverness or ability, skillful or prompt to invent—in other words, "using your head."

Now there have always been a lot of Americans who have "used their head"—and they are still doing it, too! For example, one great American, a Scottish immigrant by the name of Alexander Graham Bell, "used his head" and willingness to work, so today we have the telephone and we take it as a matter of fact. Another American, Henry Ford, "used his head", set up a small machine shop in a back-yard shed and worked night and day because he was determined to build an automobile that all of us could afford to own. Men like Louis Chevrolet, Walter Chrysler and others came along and today we have over 28,000,000 automobiles traveling our highways and streets.

Back in about 1807, a man by the name of Robert Fulton "used his head" and decided to use a simple steam engine to propel a canal boat—today we have river boats, lake steamers and ocean-going liners. Another chap sold peanuts, popcorn and candy, saved his money and "used his head". Yes, it was Thomas A. Edison, who invented the electric light bulb and scores of other things that made for better living. "Jeannie With The Light Brown Hair", "My Old Kentucky Home" and other wonderful songs came about because Stephen Foster "used his head". Great American poems like "Hiawatha" and "Evangeline" are immortal because Henry Wadsworth Longfellow "used his head." Two Minnesota brothers, William and Charles Mayo "used their head," became doctors and established the Mayo Clinic where thousands upon thousands of sick people have been treated and cured.

What are we driving at? Well, just this—all of these wonderful things, and many more, have happened because we Americans have always insisted on being free to "use our heads" under a system of individual, private, competitive enterprise. Today we have more good things and the finest living of any people on earth. Let's see how long it takes us to earn some of these good things.

Sure, we believe in profits—the same as the newsboy on the corner, Pop with his first potatoes, Mom with her marmalade for sale, or the corporation with several thousand average stockholders. We believe in profits because it makes for more business, more industry, more jobs and better living for everybody. Here's a good example of what we mean:

In recent years, a big corporation (owned by thousands of stockholders) spent over 20 million dollars (out of loans and profits) developing a product known as nylon. Now we don't have to tell you about nylon for you know that it is used in everything from tires to ties, shirts to slipcovers, hose to hair-nets, and water-hose to what-you-may-call-its.

Now here's the point—the manufacturer sells enough nylon to make a dress today for $1.92—a dress that sells for $40 or more. From start to finish, people are at work on this deal—scientists, stockboys, truck drivers, machine operators, railroaders, garment workers and sales people. Jobs, jobs, and more jobs! All of this adds up to more and better things for everybody. That's one of the reasons "it's fun to live in America." Let's keep it that way.

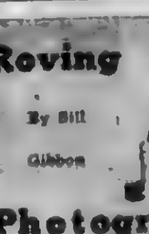
SKELETON KEYS

Roving Photographer

By Bill Gibbon



The question for this week is: "As you know, the A&P has been found guilty in our courts of violation of the Sherman anti-trusts law—of being a monopoly. Then, do you feel the government should carry out the penalty, which is to break up the A&P into smaller, independent companies? Why?" Your ideas for "Roving Photographer" questions will be appreciated.

C. A. Lee, 132 N. Chase-av, Railway Express clerk: "They should prosecute any of them that violate the law. A & P has been found guilty, therefore the government should take steps to break up the monopoly. None of the big corporations that have violated the anti-trust law ever went to jail. If you or I violate laws we don't get by with it. We end up in jail or pay a fine, or both. There are too many monopolies."

Mrs. T. A. Smith, 334 Columbian-av, housewife: "They (the government) prosecute anyone else if they are guilty. So then if the A & P has been found guilty they should penalize it, too. John D. Rockefeller, when he was president of the Standard Oil Co. about 50 years ago, was found guilty on a similar offense. The government penalized him, but it doesn't look as though it hurt him much."

Mrs. J. Woodland, 2429½ W. Broad-st, housewife: "Yes. They should be prosecuted and penalized, if they are guilty. And if the court has tried them and found them guilty, the company must be guilty. I think it would help the welfare of the people if any and all monopolies were broken up."

Melbourne Rinehart, 667 S. Terrace-av, dry cleaner: "No, I don't think the A & P should be bothered. They don't hurt anyone. I used to work for them and I know they have had practices. But I don't think they are a monopoly. I think the company helps keep prices down a little bit."

Letters to Editor

Mr. C. Carlton Hartley

Dear Carlton:

I wish to thank you very kindly for the beautiful flowers that you and the Rosebud Florists gave to me and to tell you that they were appreciated more than mere words can express.

You are to be congratulated on this fine gesture and, if it brings everyone who receives them as much joy as it brought to me and my family, you will be well repaid.

Thanks again.

Very sincerely,

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

"THAT STANEWESKI girl, Poldi, was a great help packing this fall. That was a good idea of yours. Now she wants another kind of job—I haven't got one but I understand she'd a milkmaid. Could you use her?" Furse asked.

"Why don't you make her a housekeeper?" asked Marvell without interest.

"I've got that old aunt of Mrs. Crane's coming in part-time. Aunt! She must be eighty-five—great aunt, I bet. But she can cook, and to feed Pixy well means an extra day's work."

"She's just a kid," said Marvell. "But when our cow freshens, I'll hire her to milk."

"Man, she's a beauty! Have you seen her lately? And she's no kid. That Polish type get started early. But in our wild generation," Furse grinned, "all the boys and girls do."

"Nonsense!" snapped Marvell. The thought of Kit out with Peter had increased his uneasiness hour by hour. He could have jumped out of his skin at Furse's casual remark. Never before had he felt so great a need of a sympathetic audience, someone to whom he could explain his bewilderment about Kit. Maybe this was the crisis of their life together, he thought. He remembered how anxious he had been for Proctor to take the responsibility of a seven-year-old. But he had taken it, he had given up his whole life to it and suppose he should fail now in this test from interdependence to independence? He realized that Furse was watching him curiously.

"I have Kit on my mind," he smiled in apology.

"So have I," said Furse. "I haven't had a glimpse of that daughter of yours in weeks. I want to talk with her."

"She's sixteen, now, just. That's a tremendous age!" Marvell laughed. He felt like a fool. "I don't want her to miss any fun, but I don't want her to get stalled..."

"They're nothing but kids, they don't stick to one another long enough to get into trouble. That Stanewski boy, though, could go right into the movies."

Marvell winced. So Furse knew about it. "I suppose the whole town has them going together."

Furse kicked the front log in the fireplace until the smoky ash spurted out. "No, I just ran into them the other afternoon." They had been coming out of the far orchard which bordered on the little meadow where the brook rose. Kit had looked pleased with herself. Peter's face had been dark with sullikness. Furse had laughed inwardly. They had given themselves so completely away.

"He's just a stupid waste of her time," Marvell exploded. "The next thing he'll want to get married. With the whole world in front of her, I'd do anything to prevent that."

"Don't let it give you a headache. She's too smart for Peter," said Furse with a yawn.

The sound of a motor, coughing as it idled out in the road, startled them. "Who could that be?" asked Furse, going to the front door. He stepped outside, closing the door behind him. A searchlight from the car swept up and down seeking the path to the house. He heard Kit's voice, low and clear in the mowless winter night. "Please go along, I'm stopping for Marvell." The car started ahead unwillingly. She ran up the lighted footpath to where Furse stood. "What? Walking home?" he asked teasingly, as if she had been a younger sister.

She looked up at him, two steps above her, outlined against the glass pane of the door. He looked pale and tall, with glints of color visible in his hair where the wind turned the edges toward the light. His tone angered her unreasonably as so many little things did now. And she had been so sure of herself, a moment ago, with Peter. Suddenly she felt insignificant and unwanted. She was often troubled by fickle new emotions, dark [illegible] blossoms that were hurtful and bewildering. In her uncertainty, she often turned against herself in resentment and anyone near to her suffered, too. Furse was dangerously near because of his hold on Marvell.

"Come in," he invited, holding open the door.

She went ahead of him, drawing her breath sharply in the hot, smoky room. Marvell said, "Hello, honey. Have a good time?" She nodded, and Furse, at her back, saw that her hair which was usually pinned into a bun had come unloosed. He picked up one of the pins that slipped to the floor and touching her shoulder so that she turned, he thrust the pin at her nose.

"It's awfully hot here," she said, replacing the pin in her hair. "Have you been generating a lot of extra heat by talking?" She smiled, very self-composed, her back still to Furse.

"Are you ready to go, Marvell?"

"What's your hurry," said Furse. "Sit down. I'll even make some cocoa. We don't often get this pleasure. Miss Kit." He carefully separated the two words, knowing she loathed Mrs. Crane's style of address.

She turned to him, her head a little to one side. It was all she could manage in the way of a patronizing air. "I always thought you preferred your bull sessions." The color in her cheeks and lips was heightened by the warmth of the room. She was tall and graceful, standing there, her dark hair falling loosely over one shoulder. Furse smiled at her suddenly. She's lively, he thought, and not a bit conscious of it, but she's self-conscious about something all the same. She's probably seen Bebe Daniels entertaining two men at once in last week's movies and can't remember just how it's done.

She turned quickly to Marvell. "Let's have a cup of cocoa. It will get us home in good shape." There was a sudden radiance in her face that startled Marvell. What had happened to her in this short evening? But she wasn't thinking of Peter. A moment ago Furse had irritated her with his teasing assault on her self-importance and she had ignored him. Now, a little heady after her experience with Peter, Furse's smile had challenged her in a new way. She wanted desperately to make him aware of her as Peter was—to impress him, and indirectly Marvell, with her newly discovered power. For some reason she didn't want to be left alone with Marvell. She followed Furse and stood in the kitchen door. She had dropped her coat and her red scarf was trailing behind her.

"Have you seen any good movies lately?" asked Furse, preparing the drink.

"Nothing but costume pictures. I just saw 'Scaramouche.'" She looked worried. "It had everything in it. Wouldn't it be awful if the movies killed off the stage just because of what you get for your money? Do you think they will?"

"Your father will tell you—he has the answer to everything."

"Yes, I know." She took the pan out of his hand. "Let me make it, please, and I'll serve. Do you want marshmallows?"

"I can never get the cocoa to dissolve," said Furse, turning everything over to her. "Yeah, we might as well have the works."

"The trouble with movies," said Marvell to Furse when he came back to the living room, "is that they magnify the visual details all out of proportion and the audience goes away dopey and stays that way for days."

Kit brought in the oily looking [illegible]

"I'll skid home if I drink that, Kit," pleaded Marvell, so Furse poured him another drink.

Kit sat on a leather ottoman, bracing her back against Marvell's knees.

"What sort of entertainment did you have tonight?" Furse wanted to know.

"Nothing like that. It is a kind of a layman's group, all ages. We talk of current topics. Why don't you come sometime?"

"I don't know anything except apples," replied Furse.

"That's an old subject with the church," said Marvell.

"And young Staneweski, did you get him in?" asked Furse.

"Peter never comes in, but I wish he had tonight. He wants to fly so badly and there was a man out from Boston who had been a flyer in the war. Major O'Donnell, did you know him?" she questioned Furse.

"I was in the infantry."

"He talked about the future of flying. I guess it is going to be everything. And then he got quite worked up about it and went on about the poetry of flight. He said you had to get the feel of the plane; in certain weather when the wind and the clouds were soupy, he said it felt like mashed potatoes."

They laughed with her and then Marvell said, "That doesn't convey a thing, Kit, and it's not poetry. Nobody but a baby under two years old and a drunken army cook ever felt mashed potatoes."

"You haven't flown, dear," she said, reminding him for all the world of Fanny.

"I think Peter's right in his choice," said Furse and then he added, "Some Sunday I'll take you both down to Squantum. There's a lot going on down there." He had no way of knowing how his indulgent tone maddened her.

Marvell got up abruptly. Why did the fool have to encourage the two of them? "If you're ready, Kit."

She got up immediately and Furse observed how docile she was.

"Just a minute," Furse said. "Before you go I want to talk about that piece of land."

Kit shrugged her arms into her coat sleeves, waiting for Marvell's reply. Then she realized Furse was addressing her. "What land?"

"That uneven cut of meadow where the spring rises at the edge of the woods."

"How did you know it belonged to me?"

"I asked Marvell and he referred me to you," he answered impatiently.

"Why do you want it?" Her voice sounded a great way off in her own ears and Furse's seemed louder than necessary as he replied, "Irrigating new land. We're branching out, this spring."

She had walked there only a day or two ago with Peter. At this time of year, brown and solitary, the odd-shaped meadow, yielding little by little to the encroaching woods, seemed more than ever a disguise for some lovely spirit. In the far corner was the silent, bubbled source of the brook mysteriously born out of the mossed rocks and rich damp leafy soil. To get to it, Furse's truck must cut an irregular hypotenuse from the edge of his pasture to the woods.

"You have a well," she said after a moment's hesitation.

"For the house. If you don't want to let the whole piece go, give me the right of way. You have no use for it."

Presidents Run Over West In 62-49 Victory At Marion

By Dave Miller

West High's basketballers put a brilliant fourth period comeback, but their earlier faults were the difference last Saturday evening as the Cowboys bowed to Marion Harding, 62-49 in the latter's city.

The game was a hard fought battle with frequent fouls being called on the Presidents for shoving under the bucket, and if the Cowboys could have cashed in those charity throws alone, they would have been the victors.

Cowboy coach, George Williams, "hit the nail on the head" as he entered the Hilltoppers' dressing room following the fray. He shouted out: "If we could have played that whole game the way we played that final period, there would have been no doubt as to the outcome."

That quoted statement, in a nutshell, was the story of the game, with the Cowboys having only 31 points up to the end of the third canto, but unloading with 18 vital markers in the final quarter.

The Harding five was outstanding. They had three boys that could hit from nearly anywhere. Forward M. Daum, bother, Jack Daum, and sub Center Dave Ludwig all came through when most needed, and it's a cinch that if Marion had been without any one of that trio, it would have been West's ball game.

Another main factor for the loss was the low scoring of West Center Phil Young and Guard Bill Thrush. The two, who usually hit about 20 apiece, were held to 19 points between them, Young getting 11, and Thrush only eight.

Young showed signs of tiredness throughout the game, and that's easily accountable. Phil has and will be the target of every opponent this year. South and East in two previous outings have put two men on him.

Ken Somerlot, Marion coach, explained the win as such: "Our boys were hot. That's pretty much the story there, and Columbus West couldn't stop our long shooting Merle Daum. We looked much different than we did against Ashland Friday, and I'm glad at just thinking of that." (Marion lost to Ashland, 67-42.)

In the first quarter, West's Young and Marion's Merle Daum exchanged hook shots to start off proceedings. However, Marion copped a quick lead a few moments later, and after a nip-and-tuck battle, the first period found Marion leading, 11-7. The Presidents' two Daum brothers, Jack and Merle, hit two straight fast breaks to provide the ultimate winners with a convincing 15-7 first period margin.

Things continued at the same pace in the second period with the Presidents' overwhelming our Cowboys, 18-6 in the period, and, thanks to a last minute drive by the winners Marion held a comfortable 30-13 lead at the intermission.

The third period was still a low scoring period, with both teams still "feeling" out the gym. The floor, in addition to West, was new also to Marion. The game was played in the Edison Junior High gym, while Harding awaits the finish of its new gym.

In the fourth period, it was touch-and-go all the way, with Marion again outscoring the Cowpokes, 19-18 in the period. However, the Cowboys didn't go down without a fight, and in a space of a few moments in that final quarter, they had the Marion rooters pretty much on edge with their deadly shots.

In the fourth period, Jim Rudolph's free throw made the score 44-36 in Marion's favor with 5:49 left in the game. However, the two Ludwig brothers, Paul and Dave, hit on consecutive pushes under the bucket. Jack Gammon, sub Cowboy guard who again played a neat game in the place of Sophomore Jerry Johnson, followed with two quick fast break shots, and Jim Rudolph hit a set to narrow Marion's margin down to 47-42 with 4:06 left in the fray.

Capt. Jim Rudolph, playing his final game of his high school career for the Cowboys, after graduating last Tuesday afternoon, topped the Cowboys in scoring with 18. Jim certainly finished his high school cage days in grand style, after getting 15 also against East last Wednesday. Phil Young was runner-up to Jim with 11, while Marion's Merle Daum had 18 for high scoring honors.

SHORT BITS: The Presidents' starting center, Paul Ludwig can be well remembered by followers of West's grid days of the past season. Ludwig was the boy that did everything but run our Cowboys out of the stadium last September, when Marion went home with a 20-0 win over our Cowboys with Ludwig scoring two touchdowns. Ludwig scored five points in basketball Saturday. Every boy but one on the Marion basketball varsity played on the football team last season, the only erception being Forward Jim Wolfe.

The West reserves were winners, 41-29 in the prelim. Paul Thompson, West center, was high point man with 13 points. The local reserves had quite a hard time of things for a while, leading only 26-23 at the start of the fourth period, but a final quarter upising in which they scored 11 points in consecutive fashion turned the tide. . . The West varsity is bring up two reserve players, Centers Paul Thompson and Guard Earl Potts, but both are mid-year men next January . . . The reserves will receive two additions, Jerry Trabue, West Junior star, who was second highest scorer in the City Junior High League before graduating last week will be around for duty in addition to Guard Walter Meredith, who recently became eligible to play in the reserve league. Meredith played on last year's junior high team, and has been "racking" high in the local church league as of late . . . The Cowboys will be idle until Friday when they visit Aquinas to open their second round play, with the Terriers trying to avenge that first round victory by West of 60-50.

Mooseheart Story Comes To Hilltop

The story of Mooseheart—"the City of Children"—will be shown at the Hilltop Academy Theater soon. It is scheduled to be shown at the Westmont Feb. 5-8, and at the Old Trail Feb. 9-11.

Mooseheart is much like any other small American community. It has schools, parks, playgrounds, a bank, department stores, factories, and wide streets with neat, prosperous looking homes. The unusual thing about Mooseheart is the youth of its inhabitants.

The city was founded 37 years ago by members of the Loyal Order of Moose. With the idea of providing orphans with more than cold charity, the city was established so that they "might grow up in homes instead of dormitories, wear bright clothes instead of uniforms, and know freedom as well as discipline."

John Nesbitt narrates the "City of Children" which was photographed around Mooseheart.

West, Hilliards Win In School Press Project

For their editorials, "Fight TB" and "Buy Christmas Seals", Miss Bowers and Miss Miller were presented "Huber the Tuber" cartoon books on tuberculosis, and certificates of merit. The newspapers of both schools, for which Miss Knerr and Mrs. Smith are faculty advisers, were presented framed certificates for "the valuable contribution . . . to the tuberculosis control program in Franklin County through participation in the 1949 School Press Project."

The program is sponsored by the City National Bank and Trust Company and will present students from Franklin County High Schools over a 13-week period each Sunday at 5:30. Students from West High will appear on approximately four of the 13 shows.

Mock is head of the newly-formed TV production agency handling "Youth Has Its Say" and other local programs. He is a former local newspaper man and has been associated with advertising and public relations agencies in Columbus in the past.

Action Taken On Park Lake Cleanup

A HILLTOPER WHO LIVES NEAR THE PARK surveys the polluted lake. The district health commissioner has called the lake a "definite menace to community health."

Work To Begin In Spring To Beautify Lake

Action to have the Westgate Park Lake cleaned up has finally started. City and county engineers after 10 years of bickering are, taking steps to stop pollution, reconstruct the lake basin, and re-landscape its shoreline.

Because of the park's geographical position, the city did not have authority to stop the pollution. West boundaries of the park are on the Derrer-rd which marks the city limits. Sewers pouring polluted water into the lake come from homes in the county, just west of Derrer-rd.

Illegal sewer taps used by some residents of the west side of Derrer-rd, carry the overflow of their septic tanks. The septic tanks dispose of only 25 to 30 percent of the sewage. State laws prohibit such connections.

Koontz Successful

When the pollution stops, and the clean-up work starts, City Council President Henry A. Koontz will have succeeded in his two-year campaign to have the park and lake improved. An end to the unhealthy system came when Dr. H. L. Mitchell, district health commissioner, ordered a stop to the illegal sewer connections.

Need Sanitary Sewer

A sanitary sewer up Derrer-rd would solve the entire problem, according to County Sanitation Engineer D. T. Mitchell. But he pointed out, it would be costly to Derrer-rd residents because only those on the west side could be assessed for the job.

Residents on Derrer-rd's east side tap onto a sanitary sewer traversing an alley to their rear.

MRS. LEONARD SQUEO OF 402 DERRER-RD, a resident of the east side of the street, which is in the city limits, holds her nose as she looks at the place where a storm sewer, illegally used as a sanitary sewer, pours into an open ditch. The ditch drains into Westgate Park lake.

RESIDENTS OF THE EAST SIDE OF DERRER-RD, which is in the city, have to endure this condition of half-treated sewage flowing in an open ditch in their backyard. City sewer engineers intend to cover the ditch this spring, but they cannot stop illegal use of the sewers beyond the city limits.

Hegenberger Approved As Dist. Scout Commissioner

The recent nomination of Elmer Hegenberger, 106 Binns, as district commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, representing the Southwest District, has been approved by Central Ohio Council executive board, according to Fred J. Milligan, Columbus attorney, who heads the Scouting organization in Central Ohio.

President Milligan stated that the executive board has heard the reports of the Council's six operating committees. Activities covered in these reports include: Organization and Extension, Leon C. Roy; Advancement, Dr. Bland L. Stradley; Leadership Training, Claris Adams; Health and Safety, George O. Doyle and Finance, Charles A. Jones.

Plans for the celebration of the 40th anniversary of the founding of Boy Scouts of America include numerous events throughout 1950, with special emphasis on Boy Scout Week, February 6-12.

A Report to the Governor's meeting will be held in Columbus Saturday, Feb 11, when all the councils of the state will be represented and on the following day, Boy Scout Sunday, the Central Ohio Council will hold its Eagle Court of Honor at East High School at 2:30 p. m. Dr Bland L. Stradley is in charge.

Scout Executive L. R. Bucher and Assistant Executive Frank Hess have revealed in a report sent to the National Office of Boy Scouts of America, that there was an encouraging growth in Scouting in Cental Ohio during 1949. The gain in boys for the calendar year was 18.7%. A total of 9,335 boys and 3,745 volunteer leaders was enrolled at the beginning of the 40th anniversary year.

Efforts are being made to meet the quota of 200 Scouts and 18 leaders by the Feb. 15 deadline for the Second National Scout Jamboree which will be held at historic Valley Forge, Pa., June 30 to July 6. Dick Larkins, OSU athletic director, heads the Jamboree committee, with Dr. Edward Chapman as assistant chairman.

Anniversary events will continue through February with the annual Central Ohio Council meeting and banquet at the Southern Hotel, Columbus, Tuesday evening, March 7. Scott Krauss, Council treasurer, has been named as chairman of the annual banquet arrangements committee.

OBJECTS TO CAB STAND

County Treasurer Newton A. Thatcher, 2966 Crescent-dr, Tuesday complained to City Safety Director C. C. Bill McCrady, West Grad, Aims For Medical Career

Bill McCrady, 17, who sported the highest scholastic average of the 41 boys in the January graduating class at West High School, is now setting his sights a little more firmly on his lifelong ambition to be a doctor. Bill, who graduated Jan. 24, is planning to enter Ohio State University in a pe-med course in September of this year.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin B. McCrady, 178 S. Roys-av, he first decided he wanted to be a doctor when he was only three years old and hasn't changed his mind since. At that time, he asked his parents for the first toy he ever requested which was, appropriately enough, a doctor's kit.

Bill may come by his fascination with things medical partially through environment, since his father is a pharmacist at Ohio State University. The most practical experience he has been able to pick up along the line of doctoring or allied fields was last summer when he worked as a lifeguard at the swimming pool at the Columbus Country Club.

Much to his credit, in addition, is the fact that his high school curriculum was top-heavy with courses in math and algebra and, worst of all, Latin (through Virgil, no less!). Proficiency in these two fields, you will recall, is a prerequisite for success in the field of medicine.

High school days weren't spent

Katherine Fee Becomes Bride of Jack Hoover

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hoover

A double-ring ceremony united Miss Katherine Fee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fee, 23 Chicago-av, to Mr. Jack Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hoover, 43 Chicago-av. The candle-light ceremony was performed at 7:30 p. m., Jan. 20, at the Broad Street Church of Christ, with Dr. Floyd Faust officiating.

The altar was decorated with fernery and palms and baskets of white gladioli and mums.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white skinner satin with princess lines, tight bodice with tiny covered buttons from a peter pan collar to the low pointed waistline. The collar and cap sleeves were edged in seed pearls. She wore long cuffed gauntlets. The full skirt was worn over a hoop and terminated in a cathedral train. A tiara of seed pearls and rhinestones held in place her veil of imported illusion. She carried a prayer book topped with two white orchids and a shower of white hyacinth.

Mrs. Harry Fee was matron of honor for her sister-in-law, wearing winter green satin on princess lines, with a high turned down collar, cap sleeves and a fishtail back on the full skirt. She wore matching gauntlets and carried a semi-colonial bouquet of yellow carnations with talisman rose center. A tiny spray of the roses was worn in her hair.

Junior bridesmaids Joyce Hoover and Jean Parker wore American Beauty satin with high round necklins, cap sleeves, a wide girdle effect at the waistline topping a hooped skirt, and gauntlets to match the dress. They carried semi-colonial bouquets of white carnations with a red rose center and repeated the roses in a tiny spray in their hair.

Flower girl was Caroline Vickers in green taffeta with a matching halo band in her hair. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Ring bearer was Phillip Tyne.

Walter Davis served as best man and seating the guests were Frank Brown and Richard Cassidy.

Hostesses for the reception at the church were Mrs. Walter Davis, Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. Carl Baker, Mrs. John Davis and Mrs. Richard Cassidy. For the occasion the bride's mother wore cinnamon crepe with a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Mrs. Hoover wore royal blue crepe with a pink rose bud corsage.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Central High School. The bride is associated with the RKO Palace Theater and the bridegroom with F. & R. Lazarus & Co.

After a short wedding trip the couple will live at 159 W. Park.

Lauds Scouts For Work In Conservation

H. A. Rider, chief of the Wildlife Division of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, last week praised members of the Boy Scouts of America for their interest and activity in the conservation and restoration of natural resources, particularly wildlife.

In conjunction with this commendation, Mr. Rider urged field men in his division to continue to increase their cooperation with Scouts everywhere. He especially praised the troops and their leaders for their work in connection with the division's game management and propagation program.

Members of the Scout organization in Ohio, comprising some 97,101 youths in 3,608 units of Cubs, Scouts and Explorers, will mark this week of Feb. 6 to 12 as Boy Scout Week. Their conservation projects in recent years have included every phase of conservation and restoration of such natural resources as wildlife, forests, soil, water and minerals.

REA-BOW ASSOCIATION NEWS

Petitions Filed For City Water Supply Are Approved

Prospects of city water for Rainbow Addition seem nearer. Sanitary engineer's office has notified George W. Wolfe, president of the Rea-Bow Improvement Association, Inc. that their petitions for city water for the Rainbow Addition contain sufficient names for the county to proceed with a hearing. This association has sponsored and filed this petition bearing signatures of 85 per cent of the property owners in the area.

This is one of the many of the community impovements sponsored by the association. Last spring storm sewers were installed. This project took three years' work. In December 1949 the new Rea-Bow Hall was completed.

Jack Young, Midland-av, has been named athletic instructor for the Rangers. He is a former amateur and professional boxer. He is in charge of all sports and will give boxing instructions each Monday night.

Emmerson Miller will instruct the boys in wood work and other art crafts for the boys in Co. "A".

Leslie Walters is in charge of Co. "A" of the Rangers, the youth organization sponsored by this association.

Mrs. Thelma Irvin is in charge of Co. "B", the girls who make up the Rangerettes. This group meets each Wednesday evening for sewing instructions, taught by Mrs. Irvin and ladies of the association.

Both companies of the Rangers meet the first Monday of the month for instruction in close order drill, first-aid and other subjects. This meeting is under the leadership of George W. Wolfe, director of juvenile activities at Rea-Bow Center. It is planned to show movies and serve refreshments at this meeting.

Each Saturday night the association sponsors a community social. A member of the association is appointed as M.C. each Saturday night by Wolfe. There is round and square-dancing, songs by Alice Brokamp and JoAnn Kidd, Johnny Warden the guitar player, and Everett Gallagher, the violin player, sings the Rea-Bow news at ten o'clock.

Birthday donations each Saturday night go into the Christmas fund that pays for the children's Christmas party each year. Last Saturday night a collection was taken up for "The March of Dimes" and turned over to the March of Dimes chairman in the community.

No intoxicating drinks are permitted on the premises and no admission is charged.

Tuesday, Feb 7 is the regular monthly meeting. It will mark the Youth anniversary of the association. The Founders Day party will follow the meeting and there will be special entertainment.

The board of directors of this association comprises George W. Wolfe, lifetime president, Ernest B. Kidd, Mack Flynn, Alice Brokamp, Ilene Miller, Leslie Walters, Elenora Wolfe and Clara M. Kidd.

'Rhyme, Rhythm, Song' Is Band Variety Show Theme

The Band Variety Show, sponsored jointly by the West High instrumental music department and the West High Band Parents Club, is scheduled for Mar. 16 and 17 at the Powell Avenue school, Mrs. Cline, president of the Band Parents group, and Clair Barnard, instrumental director, announced today.

"Rhyme, Rhythm and Song" will be the theme for the traditional show in March, and plans and rehearsals well under way foretell that the extravaganza this year will be among the top entertainments on the Hilltop.

More than 250 students will take part in the snappy musical revue, and Director Baranrd, after witnessing various performers, has come up with a wealth of talent that borders on the professional.

The orchestra will probably open the program with three or four selections.

Always a favorite musical organization with the Hilltop, the Junior High band will follow the orchestra. The Junior Band will play several lively marches, a rhumba, and a favorite familiar melody.

Highlighting the first part of the program will be the Senior High Band, to open with "Band of America" March. The various musical sound effects that one would hear walking through the forest will be heard in "Forest Echoes", a favorite with the band members.

The galaxy of stars includes many notables among West High students in the entertainment field in Columbus.

Tom Heyl, who plays eight musical instruments, has had parts in previous shows at West pertaining to music in the last four years. He has helped to arrange the music for the show.

Pat Culbertson will bring to the show a different type of instrument, the vibraphone. Pat has been the West Junior Band majorette; she is also a twirler in the Senior Band.

Lois Neff, who held a lead in the operetta, "Bittersweet Anne", will sing "Some Day My Prince Will Come", taken from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs". Lois has appeared with many bands on radio and television.

Sue Hardy, Nina Bates and Louann Reeves will sing novelty songs based on the nursery rhyme, "Blind Mice", as their first variety show appearance.

Joanne Olpp, Lavonne Beard and Shirley Mielke, all seniors, will do some snappy harmonizing.

Mary Steed, who is a professional tap dancer in her own right, and a veteran of the Variety Show for many years, will appear again this year in a solo that will please all.

Carole Cristee will do an acrobatic ballet with the ease and grace of a Broadway star.

Mary Lou Tilton and Virginia Cockerill will sing humorous numbers and Ann Crockfield, Onda McPherson and Donna Theisen will sing "The Good Ship Lollypop".

Sue Keller, Delores Moriva Sonya Albery and Barbara Bell will do specially arranged tap routine.

Katherine Seeds, who has been dancing 11 years, participating in variety shows, amateur shows, radio and special dance jobs, will do a solo in the variety show entitled "Little Jack Horner".

Donna McKnight will do a solo tap dance.

Pat Manus will lead a chorus line of tin soldiers and will also do a baton solo in this act.

Sue and Kay Glass, old veterans of the variety show, will be a specialty in the finale. They will do a ballet.

There will be several added comedy groups.

All Board of Education Employees To Get Free Chest X-Rays Here

By Myron T. Seifert

The Board of Education recently approved chest X-raying for all employees. This service is to be furnished by the Columbus Tuberculosis Society without charge to the employees or to the Board of Education, Supt. N. G. Fawcett said. The Board authorized this action on the basis of a plan to be developed by the superinendent of schools, the school physician and the secretary of the Tuberculosis Society.

Since the Columbus Tuberculosis Society is unable to make its X-ray equipment available for a long period of time until late in the fall of 1950, a plan has been developed whereby the equipment will be located in each high school building for a period of one week. During this period chest X-rays will be taken of all senior high pupils and all employees in that area who wish to participate.

The week of October 23 the equipment will be at West High School.

The following regulations are to be carried out, Supt. Fawcett said:

1. Chest X-rays for high school pupils and employees will be taken at three-year intervals providing the service can be supplied by the Tuberculosis Society without cost to the students, employees or the Board of Education.

2. All employees appointed after November 10, 1950, will be urged to have chest X-rays taken before employment begins.

3. X-rays by family physicians within the year preceding October 1950 will be accepted in lieu of participation in the program according to the above schedule.

4. All information on chest X-rays will be confidential. The report will go directly to each participant. Any active case of tuberculosis will be followed up by the Controller's office.

5. The school health department and the administrative staff will cooperate with individual participants and the Tuberculosis Society when treatment is necessary.

6. The Tuberculosis Society will render a summary report (not including names) to the public school health Department and to the Superintendent of Schools.

"Every employee in the Columbus Public Schools is urged to examine his responsibility in relation to this service and to act accordingly. It must be remembered that we are working with the lives of young boys and girls and that we have a responsibility for their health and welfare," Fawcett added.

Action Taken

It is a city sewer line and they are just within corporate limits. The Derrer-rd lots are long and deep. Average frontage is 120 feet and sewer costs would be about five to seven dollars a front foot. That, Mitchell said, makes assessment fees prohibitive.

However, Mitchell doubts that septic tanks are the answer, even with filted beds. These are devices installed beyond the tanks to filter the treated flow. Together, the two devices accomplish 50 per cent treatment, he said.

10 Years Pollution

Westgate residents have suffered the dangers of the polluted lake for 10 years. Part of the lake's pollution was halted by installation of the Josephine-av sanitary sewer in 1948, but Derrer-rd sources remained.

Westgate Lake, meanwhile gathered more moss and slime. The water became blacker each year. And a body of water built as a thing of beauty became ugly and abandoned.

Start In Spring

City workmen will begin work next spring on the lake. They will clean it, install a crushed stone bottom, stone and concrete sides, and landscape its surroundings. Superintendent Diez said a "fishing pond" will be built in the lake's east basin.

The lake's upper portion, he said, will be bridged and made into a lily pond. Small fry anglers will cast their lures in the lower portion.

Group Holds Bible Classes for Children

Children for Christ, Inc., sponsored by the American Council of Christian Churches of Columbus, holds week-day Bible classes for children in various parts of the city.

Once each month an all day meeting is held for giving of reports and also making material to use in their classes. This meeting is held primarily for teachers, but all are welcome.

This month the meeting will be held Thursday, Feb. 9, at the home of Mrs. C. E. Caughey, 820 N. Park-st, at 10 a. m.

"Cancer" Is Topic

Dr. Charles Hendricks will speak on "Cancer" at a meeting of the Westmont CCL Monday, Feb. 6, at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Paul Leighninger, 2909 Fremont-st. Mrs. Leighninger will be assisted by Mrs. Emmit Martin.

It was Westerville's eighth triumph as against four defeats, while for Hilliards the loss was No. 13, with only three games marked up on the right side of the ledger.

The Westerville reserves also emerged victorious in the preliminary game by a count of 46 to 32.

at the books entirely, however. Bill was a trumpet-playing member of the Marching and Dance Bands at both West Junior and Senior High Schools. He managed to pick up a few bucks on the side too by playing occasionally with some local dance combos, including Al Longstreth and his ochestra.

He was secretary-treasurer of the Hi-Y club during his junior year at West.

Bill's athletic-spectator interests were widespread in high school, taking in both basketball and football. His forte as a participant, though, was again in swimming, where he was awarded two letters in his junior and senior years at West and was District Backstroke Champion in 1949.

In addition to swimming, Bill's main hobby is amateur photography. He has his own darkroom at home where he develops, prints and enlarges pictures.

Bill is a member of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church and is active in the choir there. He was honored at the time of his graduation by being requested to deliver to the congregation of the church the same address which he gave as the student representative of the senior class at the graduation exercise, titled "Living or Existing."

Only other activity with which he is now affiliated is the United States Marine Corps Reserve, whose meetings he attends each Wednesday. Bill is at pesent working at Herbert's Market, 3575 W. Broad-st.

TRUTH

The new truth calls the young of heart

The old truth guards her ageless calm,
Her rippling classic rube attests

WHERE NO FEAR IS

You may not pluck one little feather

15 Minutes to Go!

By Betty Barclay

DON'T bat an eye next time your husband arrives home and says, "Let's have a quick dinner and catch an early movie," (and it's bound to happen on a night when you were late getting in from a shopping tour or an afternoon of club activities). Just say, "Fine! Let's!" Only be sure that between now and then you have put a package of pre-cooked rice on your emergency shelf, together with a can of mushroom soup and one of tuna, and that you have tucked this recipe away where you can find it. Then, dinner in a trice and off to the flickers!

Creamed Tuna and Mushrooms with Rice

1 package (1⅓ cups) pre-cooked rice; ½ teaspoon salt; 1¾ cups water.

1 can (10½ ounces) condensed mushroom soup; 1 can (7 ounces) tuna, drained; ¼ cup milk.

Combine pre-cooked rice, salt, and water in saucepan. Mix just until all rice is moistened. Bring quickly to a boil over high heat, uncovered, fluffing rice gently once or twice with a fork. (Do not stir.) Cover and remove from heat. Let stand 10 minutes.

Heat soup in saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly. Add tuna and milk; continue to cook until thoroughly heated. Place hot rice on platter. Cover with tuna mixture and serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Looking Ahead with JEAN WORREL

"I believe in insurance," a man said to me the other day.

"That's fine", I said. "I wish everyone were like you."

"Yes," he went on, "I'm sold on it. I've covered my house against fire for $4,000; I've covered my car for $1,000; I've covered my furniture for $3,000; I've got some nice antique stuff, you know."

"Do you reckon you'll be able to replace the damage if you have a fire," I asked.

"Just about," he said. "And, by the way, I've got a life assurance policy, too".

"Splendid," I said. "And, if it's not being impertinent, how much life assurance have you?"

"Five thousand bucks," he said proudly, grinning all over his face.

"And you reckon that will replace the damage if you die?" I asked, perhaps a little grimly.

Of course, my friend had made a common mistake. When thinking of his house, his car, his furniture, he quite properly figured their value before he insured. But when it came to his own life, he just thought that $5,000 looked nice on paper. It was better than nothing, of course, but it didn't take him long to realise that he was worth more than "five thousand bucks."

You too, are probably worth more life assurance than you now carry. Think it over — then give me a call. I will gladly discuss — in confidence — any problems concerning your life assurance arrangements.

SUN LIFE OF CANADA

Hilltop Record 50-Year Club

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baird Recall When Hilltop Was Just Pasture Land

Early Resident Built Many First Homes

TWO OF THE OLDEST HILLTOP RESIDENTS are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard E. Baird, 154 N. Burgess-av. Mrs. Baird was born on W. Broad-st, in the present State Hospital grounds, 74 years ago. Mr. Baird came here 54 years ago to build a home for his uncle. They become the first members of the Record's 50-year Club.

Seventy-four years is a long time to live in one community, but Mrs. Lilly Baird, 154 N. Burgess-av, has enjoyed every minute of it. Born on the State Hospital grounds just at the top of the hill in a little house which has long since gone from the scene, Mrs. Baird remembers when the entire Hilltop was pasture land.

Her husband, Leonard, is no newcomer to the Hilltop. He came here 54 years ago from Athens County to build a house for his uncle, the late Charles Randolph, a grocer. Baird liked the community, stayed, married the former Lilly Michaelis, and built nearly 75 Hilltop homes, among which were some of the first.

Mr. Michaelis, a builder, too, brought his family here to Glenwood Heights, as the area was known then, some seventy-odd years ago to help construct the State Hospital buildings. During this time Lilly was born to the Michaelis family.

Built Home In 1896

Baird built his first Hilltop home for his uncle in 1895. In 1896 he met Lilly and they were married in the first Hilltop church, the Highland Avenue Friends Church. Shortly afterwards Baird built a new home for his bride at 123 N. Eureka-av. Since then he has built several other homes for his family, but it is ironic that the home they own now was built by someone else.

Baird constructed the present Born Funeral Home for the late D. B. Ong, early real estate agent who laid out large portions of the community. The Allen and Spears Funeral Homes are landmarks of the early days on the Hilltop when it was a farmland. Both houses were the residences of rich Quaker farmers who had come here from the South.

Allen's funeral home, which resembles a southern manor, was the home of Eldon Smith. Eldonav was named after him. William Harris built the Spears establishment for his residence, Harris-av is named for him. Streets are named for other farmers who lived here half a century ago or more, such as Binns and Hague.

Installs First Phone

Baird claims to have had the first printing press, the first garage and filling station, the first hardware store, and to have installed the first telephone on the Hilltop. When Dr. Howard Whitehead, himself a long resident of the community, was first married, Baird made and installed an echophone from Dr. Whitehead's office on W. Broad-st at Highland-av, where it still stands, to his home, then on Wheatland-av, a square and a half away. The doctor could then talk to his new bride.

Mrs. Baird was Dr. Whitehead's first patient when he began his practice here years ago. He was again her physician when she recently injured her right hand in a washing machine. Mrs. Baird has a brother, Harry, 88, 91 N. Terrace-av, and a sister, 86, 184 N. Richardson-av, both of whom are older Hilltoppers than herself.

The Bairds recall that the home now occupied by Dr. James A. Park, 3540 W. Broad-st, at Wilson-rd, is among the oldest buildings in the area. This home once housed a Quaker Church, which existed even before the Highland Avenue Friends Church.

Mr. Baird has kept a diary of daily happenings on the Hilltop ever since he arrived here. In fact, he started recording the events even before he came here. He will soon start the 56th year of the diary. He remembers when travelers on W. Broad-st, the national road, had to stop at tollgates at the vicinity of the present city limits, at Wheatland-av, and later, at Hague-av.

Built Home Himself

As a licensed plumber, Baird used to walk from W. Broad-st, across the fields, to Sullivant-av, then a mud road, to repair the farmers' wells. In those days there was no gas or electricity, and the street lights were gasoline. When he arrived on the Hilltop, then known as Camp Chase, remains of the prisoner stockade of the old Civil War base still existed.

As master of all the building trades, Baird built an entire home on Apple-st, by himself, [illegible] years back. He did everything in the construction of the house from digging the foundation to putting in the plumbing and wiring.

The Bairds believe the oldest home on the Hilltop is either the old house of Dr. Warner's at W. Broad-st and Harris-av, next to the Westmont Theatre, or the double house on the corner of W. Broad-st and Belvidere-av.

Deserving are the Bairds to be named as the first members of the Record's Hilltop Fifty-year Club. If you have lived on the Hilltop 50 years, or know of someone who has, the Record would like to feature their story and picture.

Scouts Prepare For 40th Birthday

America's Boy Scouts and leaders, numbering 2,300,000 strong, are observing the 40th anniversary of their organization from Feb. 6 to 12.

It is interesting to note that since 1910 more than sixteen and one-half million American boys and adult volunteer leaders have had the benefits of the training, fellowship, handicraft skills and high adventure in Scouting. Many men in high places in American affairs can testify to the influence Scouting has had on their lives.

Here in Central Ohio more than 18,000 boys and leaders are rendering a remarkable service. The Central Ohio Council has chalked up another year of growth, showing an increase in 1949 of 16.7% in the enrollment of boys and volunteer leaders. This is a stimulating growth.

Citizens of the Hilltop, a part of the nine-county area served by the Central Ohio Council, will join during Boy Scout Week and in the remainder of this 40th Anniversary Year in paying high tribute to the Boy Scouts. It is to be hoped that the two-year Crusade of Scouting to "Strengthen the Arm of Liberty" now midway in its effort toward increased enrollment and a better Scouting program under trained leaders continues with the same interest and success which characterized its first year.

The chart above tells the graphic story of how infantile paralysis has surged upward—more than 182,000 cases in the past 12 years. With mounting polio incidence has come a sharp rise in the costs of providing medical care for the stricken. It is for this reason that the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis faces a crisis during its March of Dimes campaign this January. Help meet the rising tide of polio by contributing generously to the March of Dimes.

'Think This Over'

Let Masterpieces Alone

A great masterpiece is a superlative thing, coming right up through all matter like a genius working through his God, and not ever found on an "assembly line". There are many kinds of masterpieces, but music, the arts and architecture are enough for me to draw my conclusions. Take Lincoln and his pure English and love of human rights. Chopin, a child of God, and his divine melodies, Washington and his deep reverence for justice, Babe Ruth and his unerring bat. We could go on and on with thousands of examples. What I wish to combat is the modern effort of the uneducated mind, or a probably deliberate attempt to tear down and manhandle these masterpieces. A great masterpiece is exposed to the severest criticism and still, after 100 years or so, is more firmly rated as a masterpiece than when created.

Of course there are lesser composers with so-called masterpieces the like of which is not again to be seen. For instance, the clever, yet remarkable Guy Lombardo, grossing some $30,000,000 in about 25 years, and paying his best men $15,000 to $20,000 per year. His seeming success lies in his simplicity of arrangements. If any one of his arrangers puts too many "frilly-frills" on the main theme or melody, he is fired. Lombardo reaches millions of listeners by modern psychology, with his pithy introductions to his numbers, and has won fame and fortune. But, the above is merely to show that a real genius is truly a simple soul and, as the noted British Symphony Orchestra leader, Sir Thomas Beecham, said a while back, a masterpiece is a masterpiece because it is full of DIVINE MELODY.

Wagner knew this—hear his Lohengrin, Wedding March. Bach knew it—in his great organ chords and fugues. Verdi—in his tuneful opera, Il Travatore, etc.

Now, what about architecture? Our Columbus Public Library building is a truly fine example of a real masterpiece in architecture. John J. Pugh, librarian (now deceased) was instrumental in getting this building of pure cream marble on our city map. I was struck by its intrinsic beauty, lovely proportions and graceful lines when I first saw it, some 40 years ago.

The story runs as follows: Columbus, at that period, had "crazy iron arches" two or three to a square, over High-st, with festoons of electric lights at night (a la cheap Broadway). Of course the quality of mind of those who backed these awful monstrosities was evident, so the same "political" pressure was put on Pugh to have a local architect design the $200,000 city library (Carnegie gave $100,000) which was to house masterpieces of literature. He fought this localism and procured a "national competition". George P. Post and Son, architects, who designed the beautiful St. Paul Capitol, St. Paul, Minn., and other notable U. S. buildings, won the award and therefore our Columbus Public Library" is one of the most beautiful city buildings in America. Our Gallery of Fine Arts is another civic masterpiece.

Let me remind my readers that our state house is another truly classic building (it ought to have a dome) but just imagine for a moment the great Greek statue Venus de Milo wearing "modern" costume jewelry ear-rings and spectacular spangles on her draped gown. Well, about 30 years ago somebody authorized the stringing of electric light bulbs up and down our classic state house top. What a silly conception of beauty! And hear this: the city was actually called and advertised "The Arch City".

In the painting arts, Vincent Van Gogh (a French "great" in painting) earned less than $500 during his whole lifetime, yet I saw a famous painting of his while in New York, about 2½ by 4 feet, entitled "Sunflowers", a tantalizing color thrill, simple in technique—now priced at $50,000. What makes a masterpiece? Simply the fulfillment of all the laws of art. Freedom of technique, yes, but never a GREAT LAW BROKEN.

Raphael, Velesque, Bach, Saint-Saens, Beethoven—how I could go on by the hundreds—gave us glorious masterpieces in art and music.

Now for my argumnt against these CHEAP, MODERN IMITATORS! We of this age have a wonderful gift in radio. Grand opera offered in its entirety to those who want great music joy. You must remember that genuine masterpieces ravish us with their exquisite, inspired melodies, sound construction and everlastingly beautiful quality. They are EVER NEW, full of new ideas each time we hear them. Therefore, read the following and THINK!

There is a famous band leader who has his "arranger" (or buys the arrangements) take masterpieces from Chopin or Tschaikowsky, etc., and "arrange" them in such a fascinating (yes, fascinating) manner as to really lose sight or cover up the composer's great "melody motif", using fantastic rhythms that drown out the composer's masterpiece. Samson et Delila", one of the imperishable operas by Saint Saens, has a divine melody. "At the sweet voice" (for female voice, I believe) is debauched on a concert form record so that I could hardly recognize the beautiful theme at all. Let these modern Tin Pan Alley devotees compose modern music for the moderns like such great pieces as George Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue or Stravinsky's Fire Bird Suite, but let the great old masterpieces alone!

Well, I am glad that I have lived long enough to see Columbus emerge into a medium sized city, with an almost beautiful civic center, beautiful modern store fronts, etc.

Yes, if you truly love and revel in the playing by great orchestras of masterpieces, then turn your radio dial away from these "artistic arrangements" of OLD, glorious masterpieces. The music of Guy Lombardo, Sigmund Romberg, Jerome Kern, etc., is chuck full of lovely melodies and will reward you with "sweet joy", but to distort and make incomprehensible a GREAT masterpiece—that is "ART SACRILEGE".

THINK THIS OVER.

(Next week: Victor Herbert, Woodrow Wilson, Dr. William Oxley Thompson, George Bellows.)

A small boy had been in trouble all day. In the morning he had broken a neighbor's window, at the table he had quarreled with his sister and made her cry. That afternoon he had broken his promise not to tease the canary. Exasperated, his mother told him he must go to bed without his dinner, and before he crawled in his prayers a plea that God would make him a better boy. As he knelt by the side of the bed, his mother was astounded to hear him say: "Dear God, please make me a better boy if you can, but if you can't, never mind, 'cause I'm having an awful good time like I am."

The Leaf Shall Be Green

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

FURSE'S WHOLE expression was authoritative, bent on giving the commands to a child. It was the way he had looked at her the night Kit had stood beside him. He didn't like her any better at this age, she thought miserably. He doesn't know I'm around, for all his off-hand invitation to Squantum. He was so sure of himself, he didn't have to bother.

"I won't sell," she said finally. She tightened her scarf and added as compensation, "Marvell says Colcord is built on water."

Why, you docile little rip, thought Furse furiously.

"You could keep the woods, Kit," said Marvell. "It's the woods she cares about," he said to Furse.

Is that all you're going to contribute, thought Furse. If you had any sense, you'd order her to be sensible.

"There's the Stanewaski land, just to this side," she said. "It's kind of swampy, there must be water there."

She could tell by Furse's narrowed eyes that he was all the more set on his wish. "It may not sound like much of a reason to you," she smiled disarmingly to cover her anger, "but you see we are not farmers and the land especially near the house is a part of the natural setting I shouldn't want spoiled." She made the faintest gesture of weariness, just as a movie star might do at the end of a scene, Furse noted. The little poseur! And suddenly he felt an extraordinary gentleness toward her.

She was very conscious of the stiffness of their goodbyes—Marvell a little puzzled and she coldly civil. It's a free country, isn't it, she said to herself defiantly.

Marvell and Kit walked across the rough grass. There was no moon but there was enough starlight to guide them to the edge of the gravel road. She was only a head shorter than Marvell now. Each had the same long stride. They fell into step together automatically.

Suddenly Marvell's voice, clear and cadenced, on the frosty air:

"That time of year thou may'st in me behold,
When yellow leaves, or none, or few do hang
Upon those boughs which shake against the cold,
Bare ruin'd choirs, where late the sweet birds sang . . ."

Lovely, Kit thought passionately.

"More," she murmured.

"No more." Then he said, "That's an interesting attitude you took over that piece of land.

"You think I did wrong?"

"It's your decision—the privilege of a landowner. I am only interested in why you made it and so fast."

"Everything just seems to come at once," she replied in a low voice.

"I know," he said, drawing her arm through his.

There was a great swelling of love within her for her father. She wanted to say—I'm grown up, believe me, Marvell, I'm sorry I was such a child just then—but the words stuck. She tried to think of some way of establishing comradeship and come up with Peter on her league.

"Peter should have a chance to go away, Marvell." She tightened her arm in his. "He is so good at mechanics and he wants to go places."

"Ah." You fitted that package right into my hand. "Do you have a good time with Peter?"

"Well," she felt more expansive than she had for a long time, "if I can keep him talking," she said honestly. Privately she was a little disappointed in her experiment. Tonight, when she had held her breath and kept her mouth against Peter's for ever so long, without even a tremor, she had been discouraged when he had demanded, "Why don't you ever kiss me?"

"And if you don't succeed?" asked Marvell.

"There's not much to it—and it isn't so bad in the winter with my heavy coat . . ."

He stopped short and turned her sharply around. "Look," he said, "if you're old enough for me to let you make your own decision on the spring, you're old enough to handle yourself. But you're not proving it with this boy." His voice rose in anger. "You know about sex, we've gone over that. But what you don't know, apparently, is the difference between experiment and experience. Until you get that distinction, you're going to hurt yourself and others, and if I have to prevent you from doing this, I will."

She dropped behind him and they walked up to the house in silence. He bent over to fit the key in the door. He saw her slanting backward on her heels, her face upturned to the powdery sky. He hadn't made a dent upon her, he thought bitterly. Had he lost her somewhere in this last year which had been devoted to Furse?

If she kept her head back, she wouldn't cry. She was shaking with pain inside. How could he know what she wanted: to be a score of different Katherines, not this single, restricted self? How could she tell him anything? He wouldn't listen. He wouldn't have treated Furse that way. She slipped in ahead of him. Oh, God, she wailed to herself, I am so alone. And there is no one, no one at all to talk to.

Even when she was in her room, she dared not let go. The lamp, lighted, threw grotesque shadows of the furniture on the low ceiling. Once they had frightened her beyond believing and she had called Marvell who had, by magic, bottled up the frightening forms as Aladdin had the genie. Now the dark uncertainties that tormented her were within herself and she controlled the quivering muscles of her mouth lest a single betraying sob should bring Marvell in. Muffled by the pillows, at last the tears came. The impotence of being young swept over her until she lost all sense of bearing, crying out against old mistakes and misunderstanding as well as the new. There was not enough of anything to satisfy her. Marvell hated Peter without understanding there was no one else to take his place. This was the way you lived in Colcord at sixteen. Why didn't they go to Boston more? She had never questioned the first break with Uncle Proctor, the later ones with the Halls, but now she rebelled against his rules. She felt Marvell had cheated her out of something that belonged to her, belonged to her alone by heritage, and all night long, restlessly in her dreams, she kept seeking it.

Marvell had gone when Kit came down to breakfast the next morning.

Before she left for school, she collected the money from her various pocketbooks and told Mrs. Crane that she might be late for supper. At noon she asked Peter to drive her to the station explaining that she must keep a dentist's appointment in Boston.

Not until she was in the coach did she feel nervous about her adventure. Her few memories of the house of Commonwealth Avenue were gilded over by her present desires. As she remembered little kindnesses that Proctor had showered upon her mother—unexpected flowers, candies, anniversary presents—she gave herself a more generous share of them than had ever been given her. All was light in these past moments—no dark hallows. When she recalled her favorite hour—after tea and before dinner when the heart of the house, like some night blooming flower, had unfolded in Aunt Emily's sitting room, she never got as far as the shadowy stairs that she had been made to climb so early, each step deepening the lonely silence as the voices below faded. She remembered only the golden room with the purple carpet, where the touch of a foot or the swish of a long dress left its mark on the deep pile. She closed the door on the drafty, black passageways, the ticking of clocks in empty rooms.

She would burst in upon them to surprise, but she would stay on to delight. She could see Aunt Emily drawing her head down to her cushiony breast and murmuring, "Katherine, my dear, you've been naughty to desert us so long." She imagined Uncle Proctor, elegant, aloof, he would not kiss her, but surely he would bend over her hand and gravely search her face for a likeness to her mother.

And who was there in Colcord to surprise and delight? Not Mrs. Crane with her endless gossip round the kitchen table, nor the kids in school who did the same things over and over. Not Marvell, who preferred to be with Furse all the time. Certainly not Furse, who must despise her now as a silly, willful child.

On her way out of the North Station she saw the violets in the florist's window. In December, their color and perfume was at a high price, but they had been her mother's favorite and to wear them would not only be a loving gesture, it would make her look a little dressier. A dollar-seventy-five out of her capital left her with just enough for a return ticket. But I might not need that, she thought defiantly, pinning them on her coat.

She stopped outside to see her reflection in the plate glass window and then spun around quickly. Behind her stood Furse.

125 Attend '50 Church Dinner Here

One hundred twenty-five members of the Hilltop Church of Christ attended the annual dinner at the church reception. Dinner was served at 6:30 by the Woman's Council in the nature of a pot-luck. The tables were decorated with lavender and white.

The yearly report of all the activities of the various departments and organizations was copied and attractively bound with pink cover by Denver Hart and Mrs. Wilbur Kegg.

Charter members of the church present were introduced. They were Mrs. Smith Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frost Bratt, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bennett, Mrs. Ruth Weese and Mrs. Edna Moore.

Mr. Reed then presented his choir members in various musical numbers; vocal solo, Ruth Bergman; melody of songs of our country, by the choir; accordion solo by Ruth Weese; harmonica solo by Gene Webb; piano solo by Maurice Bowsher, and vocal solo by Ivan Reed, who sang two spirituals.

The meeting was closed by all singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again", and Mrs. Marion Miles gave the closing prayer.

First Gentile Church Was at Antioch — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 11:19-26; 13:1-3.

After Peter had converted the household of Cornelius, the Roman, he returned to Jerusalem, where his brethren chided him for eating with Gentiles, but he explained that it was by God's command.

After Stephen's martyrdom, the apostles scattered to far places. Barnabas going to Antioch. Finding people there eager for the Gospel, Barnabas brought Saul to Antioch to help him in his work.

When the Christians at Antioch heard that there was likely to be great want in Judea, they sent relief to the brethren there by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

Herod put Peter in prison under strong guard, but an angel released him and brought him to the city gates, which opened of their own accord.

MEMORY VERSE—Acts 20:35.

World Day of Prayer Program Prepared In Japan

Again the World Day of Prayer, which is sponsored by the United Council of Church Women and observed by 1,000,000 Christian women in the United States and perhaps another 1,000,000 on the continents and islands around the world, will be observed by the Hilltop community. The date: Feb. 24, from 2 to 3 p. m. The place: Hilltop Church of Christ (Disciples), corner of Burgess and Olive.

The theme for this year is "Faith For Our Time". The service of worship was written by Miss Michi Kawai of Japan, it being the custom of the United Council of Church Women to have the program prepared each year in a different country.

Miss Kawai is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College. She returned to her native land to become a leader among her people and helped organize the National YWCA in Japan and was its secretary general for 14 years. Later she established the Keisen Girls' School. The figure of Christ used on the literature for the day is the creation of a Japanese artist, Toikai Tadakata.

All churches, fraternal, youth, charitable, civic and social groups of the Hilltop are invited to join with the women of the church to make the World Day of Prayer a community-wide as well as world-wide symbol of fellowship.

Survey Shows Likes Of Students In Church Music

By Myron T. Seifert

Be-bop is not the only language West High School students know in the field of music.

Religious lyrics and hymns are vital to their lives—and many of them are devout and ardent lovers of the meditative "rhythm" as evidenced by their interest in singspirations at Hilltop churches, their records, sheet music, radio and television programs.

"The Lord's Prayers", including interpretations of popular band maestros and their vocalists, was a favorite with many West High students, a poll taken last week shows. Among 170 students enrolled in 11B English classes at the Powell-av school, 108 students placed this at the top of their favorite selections in religious music. Majority liked Perry Como's version of "The Lord's Prayer."

Among the older hymns, "The Old Rugged Cross" was given a runner-up spot in the survey—a favorite of 62 students.

The martial music of "Onward Christian Soldiers" appealed to 55 students in the group and "Ave Maria" was close fourth with 49 votes.

Other forms of religious music, particularly the old hymns, with their fervor and charm, continue to command the attention of teenagers.

The other religious songs in which West High youth has indicated a preference, and the number of votes polled in this survey, follow:

"In The Garden", 34 votes; "Whispering Hope", 32; "God of Our Fathers", 28; "Holy, Holy, Holy", 21; Battle Hymn of the Republic", 19; "Faith of Our Fathers", 16; "Little Brown Church in the Vale", 12; "Come to the Church In the Wildwood", 12; "Green Cathedral", 12; "Rock of Ages", 12; "Bless This House", 10; "Ivory Palaces", 10; "My God and I", 10; "Fairest Lord Jesus", 4; "The Holy City", 3; "My Rosary", 3; "What a Friend We Have In Jesus", 1; "Follow the Gleam", 1; "God Be With You", 1; "The Church Is One Foundation", 1; and many others.

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

Poor MRS. BILL HARTPENCE! She had some misfortune a few days ago. In using her can-opener she cut a gash in her hand. It gave her a pretty rough time, but she's OK now.

All my dinners come from cans. My wife can't seem to hurt herself on a can opener. If she did, no doubt I'd starve to death.

Did your wife ever throw away what she thought was garbage? And it wasn't? MAIZIE BROWN did Saturday. She accidentally picked up the wrong sack (containing grapes) and into the garbage can they went. The other sack went into the refrigerator, but not for long!

That new Chevrolet on Wrexham actually glows in the dark. ROBERT J. BELL owns it. He likes to drive it around, so it doesn't stay parked very long.

The BOB O'SHAUGHNESSYS have a third child now. Although her two sons kept her awfully busy, the Missus was glad to get a daughter this time.

FRANCES GREENO'S birthday was Monday. Besides getting quite a few gifts and cards, she had her bath tiled in coral and black. Biggest birthday she's had in years!

The ROBINES celebrated their nuptials on Jan. 28! They were married five whole years. They're still happy, too! Gosh, I remember when I was married only five years—it seemed like 500.

ART BROWN was smoking one of his coffin nails and as he laid his cigarette down, he thought he dropped it in an ash tray. But nope—he missed—and down on the hard wood floor it went. He didn't know it until a few minutes later. It happened his wife was gone—and he worked and worked on that burnt spot, as small as it was, using sandpaper and varnish. He got it looking so good he was proud of himself and had to tell his wife. Now she's got the idea he could do all the floors for her this spring. Why oh why didn't he keep still in the first place?

Poor NED BAILEY! He got stuck out on Harrisburg-pk with a bad puncture in his tire—and no spare—after midnight. So he thumbed his way into town, came home and went to bed.

When he went back to his car the next day, it had moved a couple of blocks. It seems he had it parked by a tree, and the tree was gone. (Something or somebody gone batty) Mystery unsolved! Who done it?

Continued next week if we find out.

The Church and Progress

Day by day . . . and decade by decade . . . we have carried the torch of Freedom and Progress through the first fifty years of this fabulous Twentieth Century. Now, as we enter the Century's half-way point, let us reflect upon the magnificent achievements of those Golden Years . . . and resolve to strive tirelessly in the years ahead, that we might continue to bear this torch ever forward. Adding its flame to that torch to keep it ever burning is the influence of the church in our daily lives. Its promise of sanctuary and steadfast faith have contributed in large portion to the advancement of free men and women seeking the blessings of progress.

Your church is a mainstay in your community life — a pillar of support in times of stress — give it your support every Sabbath — devote a portion of your time to the church that it may remain as a bulwark in the effort for freedom and progress.

On The Record

By Harry Franken

The Art of Plain Talk Is A Rose Is A Rose

When Dr. Rudolph Flesch wrote his thesis, "The Art of Plain Talk," he little dreamed he was brewing a tempest in a teapot. Fed up with the gobbledygook and long windedness of most writing, Dr. Flesch set out to find a way to make writing more understandable.

He found that the use of shorter sentences, shorter words, fewer prefixes and suffixes, and more references to people made stories a lot more understandable. Dr. Flesch even devised a formula that could be applied to writing to show just what educational group could comprehend it.

The system worked and papers became more readable when they applied the Flesch formula. According to the formula a good, readable story should have sentences averaging 14 words in length. A rewrite man took that to mean that no story should be more than 14 words long. Some things just can't be said in 14 words, so the rewrite man turned against the whole system.

In the pro and con fight on the Flesch formula some interesting things have come to light. The first sentence in the United Nations Charter, written by Jan Christian Smuts, is easily understandable. But it is 177 words long.

According to the formula the following selection should be "fairly easy" for a sixth grader. It is taken from Gertrude Stein's "Tender Buttons."

"A violent luck and whole sample and even then quiet.

"Water is squeezing, water is almost squeezing on land. Water, water is a mountain and it is selected and it is so practical that there is no use in money. A mind under is exact and so it is necessary to have a mouth and eye glasses."

Cowboys Out For 2nd Round Win Over Polar Bears

By Dave Miller

West High's basketballers will entertain a hot and cold North five this evening at the West gym, with the Hilltoppers out to advance their spot in second place.

The Bears, fresh from giving South's powerful Bulldogs the "scare of their lives" last Friday evening, will enter the game with a won-three, lost-four City League record and a 7-8 mark in all games.

The Cowboys won the first round meeting, 48-41, at North, and if they can duplicate that feat, they will do something that no West basketball team ever did in four years, win both games from North in a season. In 1945-46, West took the first clash, 33-32, but North won the second, 58-46.

In 1946-47, North won in the first round meeting, 46-40, while West copped the second round game, 39-32. In 1947-48, North won first, 49-48, and West came back to win second, 45-33. In last year's meeting, West copped the first round game, 53-40, but lost in the second round to the Bears, 44-42.

To Compromise In Children's Home Contract Dispute

A compromise was reached last week by members of the building committee for the new Franklin County Children's Home over the disagreement in the awarding of the contract for the electrical work in the home.

The county commissioners blocked the awarding of the contract to the Westgate Electrical Co., lowest bidders, on the grounds that the Westgate firm used non-union labor. They said they feared a costly labor tie-up by union workers on the building unless the electrical work was also done by union labor.

The county commissioners all serve on the building commission. The three remaining members of the commission favored awarding the contract to the Westgate Electric Co.

County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett issued the opinion that the commission could not keep the contract from the Westgate firm on the grounds of it being a non-union shop.

The dispute was finally settled by a unanimous vote that all bids be rejected and new bids asked on the project. If new bids are the same as previous bids the situation will remain unchanged.

Hague Ave. Bus Line To Be Extended Out Sullivant Ave.

City Council Monday night accepted a proposal of the Columbus Transit Co. to extend the Hague-av bus line out Sullivant-av from Hague-av to Brinker-av.

The proposal was made by the company in place of an extension of the Sullivant-av bus line to Derrer-rd. Officials of the transit company said the cost of extending trolley lines from the Sullivant-av terminus to Derrer-rd was prohibitive.

Instead of terminating at Hague and Sullivant the Hague-av bus will go west on Sullivant to Brinker, north to Parkview, east to Westgate and south to Sullivant.

Oscar R. Hott, a vice-president of the transit company, said the change would take place within the next few days. Hott also said that the north terminus of the Hague-av line would be extended after the west side of Hague-av is taken into the village of Valleyview.

Council President Henry A. Koontz said that the proposal was not what the city wanted, but was an improvement.

Elect Four To 'Y' Board Thursday

Hilltoppers interested in the youth of the community are urged to attend the second annual dinner of the Hilltop YMCA at the Central Y Thursday evening at 6:30.

Four members of the Board of Management of the local Y will be elected at that time. Candidates for re-election are Ira M. Claggett, Dr. R. J. Miller, and Mose M. Williams. The other five candidates are Larry Daniels, Elmer Hegenberger, Ed Ferguson, Gordon A. Olson, and Curt Roberts.

Rev. A. J. Wold, member of the board whose term expires, is not seeking re-election.

Tickets for the dinner may be bought from any member of the Hilltop Y Board.

High Prices Not Farmers' Fault Cunningham Says

Harold C. Cunningham told members of the Hilltop Lions Club last Thursday evening that the high cost of consumer goods could not be attributed to the farmer. Cunningham spoke to the group on the "Legitimate Gripes of the Farmer."

Cunningham told the club, "If the farmer gave away the hides a $10 pair of shoes would still sell for $8.63, if he gave away the beans a 10 cent can would still cost 8.7 cents, if he gave away wheat a 16 cent loaf of bread would sell for 14.7 cents, and if he gave away milk it would still cost 12 cents a quart delivered at the door."

A raiser of hogs, Cunningham told of an instance where a decrease in the price paid to the farmer for hogs was followed by an increase in the price of pork.

Guests at the meeting included Otto S. Lehman, past president of the Wooster Lions Club; Ben Dempsey and his father from the Bexley Lions Club; Lee Weigand and Joe Fody from the downtown Lions Club; and Jim Winfield from the Ternstedt plant.

Plans are being made for the first Hilltop Lions Club ladies' night to be held Feb. 16 at Schmelzer's Restaurant.

New P. O. Site Not Selected Yet

A site for the new location of the Hilltop branch post office has not been selected, according to H. C. Rumble, Cincinnati, post office inspector, who was in Columbus last week.

The lease on the building where the station is now located, 2824 W. Broad-st, will expire on July 31. The new site is expected to be selected in time to build a new structure, if necessary.

Old Trail Inn Earnings Go To Polio Fund

Monday night's earnings at the Old Trail Inn, 4460 W. Broad-st, went to the polio drive today, when Mrs. Jennie Boehm, 44 Brehl-av, presented a check for $305 to Mrs. Mary Jane Mack, 176 Algonquin-av, a victim of polio.

Mrs. Mack and Mrs. Boehm were classmates in the West High School graduating class of 1937. Mrs. Boehm is owner of the restaurant. Mrs. Mack was homecoming queen at West in 1937. She is now married to Lawrence Mack, and has a son.

The inn featured five hillbilly bands on its program Monday evening. All the proceeds went to the polio campaign. The staff at the restaurant also donated its services for the night.

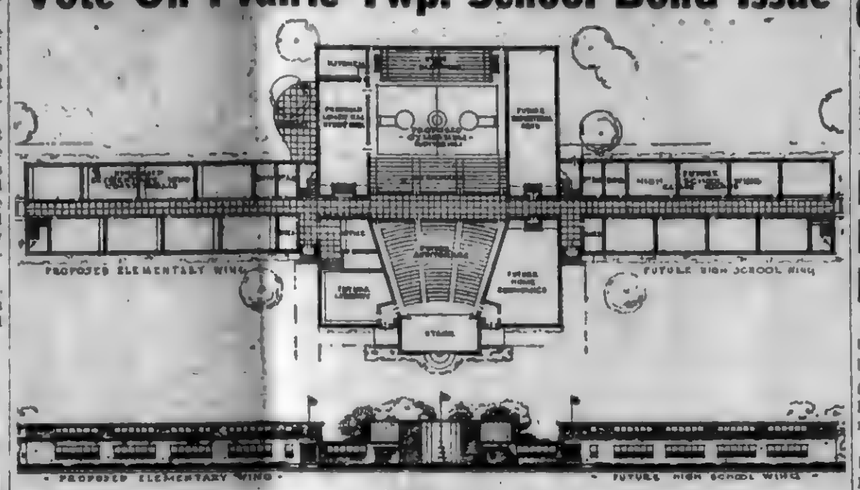
Dr. Davis To Build Office Here

Dr. Robert H. Davis, 34 S. Richardson-av, announced today that construction of his new offices, to be located at 3230 W. Broad-st, will begin about March 1.

Davis is at present completing his internship at White Cross Hospital. He graduated from Ohio State University, and the University of Louisville (Ky.) Medical School. He will commence his general practice on the Hilltop in July, following completion of his internship in June.

The building, which is expected to be completed in July, will be a one-story, brick and stone structure.

Davis, the son of Herb Davis, 73 S. Burgess-av, is married and has two children.



Davis' new medical offices will be located where Fozzy's Tree Nursery was situated until recently. Fozzy's moved to 1040 Georgesville-rd.

Martha Maher Severely Burned

Martha Maher, age 12, 247 Midland-av, suffered second and third degree burns Friday and is recuperating at Mt. Carmel.

Heer Candidates Opposed For Hilltop Dem. Committee Posts

Vote On Prairie Twp. School Bond Issue

Architect's drawing of the proposed school building.

Residents of the Prairie Twp. local school district will go to the polls Feb. 14 to vote on a bond issue for a new school building. A bond issue of $231,000 was voted for this purpose in November, 1946, but rising prices made it impractical to start building at that time.

The bond issue to be voted on Jan. 14 is for an additional $248,000. If this supplemental bond issue is passed, preparation for bids and construction of the building will follow immediately after the sale of the bonds.

Present appropriations are for 17 elementary class rooms, a large gymnasium and furnishings. Future plans include a wing of the building to house a high school.

Twenty acres of land have been purchased on Norton-rd just south of W. Broad-st for the school.

Residents must be registered by the end of this week to be eligible to vote in the Feb. 14 election.

Reynoldsburg Runs Over Hilliards 57-37

Reynoldsburg upped its Franklin County League record to 6-2 (10-7 for all games) after thumping Hilliard 57-37 Friday night on the latter's floor. By the end of the third period, Reynoldsburg had built up a mammoth 29-point lead, with the team's scoring being well-divided.

Hilliard's reserves were dealt a stinging blow, too. The team lost its second decision in eight league outings, with Reynoldsburg going overtime before winning 32-27.

Scores at end of each period:

Cunningham, Dailey Bid For Commissioner Nomination

An all-out effort to unseat Walter F. Heer, chairman of the Franklin County Democratic Committee, in the May 2 primary election, is under way in the wards in and around the Hilltop. Four anti-Heer Democratic candidates have filed petitions for the five seats on the Democratic county central committee in this section. In the entire county there will be 36 opponents for the 40 organization candidates for the committee posts.

Legislature Candidates

There was a surplus of candidates for Franklin County seats on the state legislature: Twenty-six petitions have been filed in the race for the five vacancies. Thomas W. Applegate, 2499 Steele-av, and George Y. Wing, West Junior High School teacher, are both seeking nominations on the Republican ballot. Wing is mayor of Worthington.

Seek Commissioner Post

Two Hilltoppers are among the four candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for county commissioner. They are W. Herbert Dailey, 615 Belvidere-av, and Harold Cunningham, 4744 Fisher-rd. Their Democratic opponents are Heinie Butler and Frank C. Lamneck, Jr. Dailey is a former city councilman and Cunningham is a farmer and former insurance man.

The winner of the Democratic nomination for the commissioner post will oppose either Harry T. Vigor or Curtis B. Kerns, Republicans. Vigor is the incumbent.

Common Pleas Judge Cecil J. Randall, 1989 W. Broad-st, is unopposed as a candidate for re-election.

Local Church Ransacked By Thieves

Thieves used a garden hose tied to a chimney to aid them in breaking into the Hilltop Evangelical Lutheran Church, 2475 W. Broad-st, during the night, police reported Monday.

They ransacked desks in a basement office and stole approximately $12 from a small wall safe.

Church officials said footprints in the mud near a new addition in the rear of the church indicated several burglars staged the job.

They said one man apparently climbed a drain pipe to the flat roof on the addition and then tied a garden hose which he found there, to a chimney to aid his companion. The burglars then jimmied a door which opens from the church proper on the addition roof.

Thieves also entered the home of the church pastor, Rev. E. J. Olson, 104 S. Westmoor-av.

Police did not determine the loss since Rev. Olson was in Chicago and could not be contacted. The intruders broke out a side door to enter the home.

Work Begins On Plastic Products Co. Expansion

"The addition," Braley stated, "will allow for general expansion for all departments. We plan to install about $100,000 worth of new equipment in the addition," he added.

The four from Troop 173 are Jack Howell, Fred Braithwaite, Ted Biddison and Glyndon Davis. The other scout from this district to be made an Eagle at this time is Lewis Mathers, Jr., of Grove City.

Mass Chest X-Ray Survey Set For Hilliards Feb. 9-10

Some 500 Hilliards families, the high school student body, and faculty and employees of both high and elementary schools will be offered free chest X-rays in the most intensive survey ever conducted in that community on Feb. 9 and 10.

The X-rays, to reveal TB and other chest conditions at an early, and curable, stage, will be provided free of charge by the Columbus Tuberculosis Society. The mass X-ray program is being financed by receipts from the Christmas Seal sale.

In charge of arrangements are Mrs. Virgil Hart, Rome-Hilliards-rd, and Superintendent of Hilliards Schools Millard D. Hartsook.

To serve the general public, the mobile unit of the Columbus Tuberculosis society will be stationed at Hilliards High School from 3 to 6 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m., Feb. 9, and from 7 to 9 p. m., Feb. 10. High school students, faculty and employees of both high and elementary schools will be accommodated, Feb. 10, starting at at 8:30 a. m. and continuing until the survey is complete.

Assisting Mrs. Hart are the following members of the Hilliards Mothers' Club: Mrs. C. H. Brown at 635 Rome-Hilliards-rd, Mrs. John Yore, 7032 Ringe-av, Mrs. Henry Burbridge, 259 S. Norwich-av, and Mrs. Harold Graumlich, Roberts-rd. Supt. Hartsook will make arrangements for the school survey.

Plans for the survey got underway in December when Mrs. Ann Gallagher, chairman of the X-ray survey unit of the Columbus Tuberculosis Society, addressed the Mothers' Club of Hilliards Elementary School. Since then the committee has been in a whirl of educational activity, including the distribution of posters, bulletins and pamphlets throughout the Hilliards area.

Results of the X-ray survey will be confidential and will be mailed to the home addresses of those X-rayed. An average of 40 out of each 1000 persons X-rayed is revealed to have chest conditions requiring follow-up, while an average of only five or six in each 1,00 is diagnosed as having active tuberculosis.

Chest X-rays, lasting but a minute, have played an important part in reducing the tuberculosis death rate in Franklin County and preventing the spread of the disease. They do not require the removal of any clothing.

Eventually, the Columbus Tuberculosis Society hopes to X-ray all adult residents in the county. The age group between 15 and 45 is found to be most vulnerable to the disease.

The Boy Scouts . . .

"Boys will be boys," they say.

But we're sure you'll agree they'll be better, friendlier, happier boys if they're in the ranks of the Boy Scouts of America. For 40 years, the Boy Scouts have made an increasing contribution to a better America through a well-planned, up-to-date program to meet boys' interests.

It's a program of adventure that appeals to every boy, when he knows about it. And there's the rub.

Many a boy of 11 or over still needs to be informed of the exciting activities of Scouting. Many a parent needs to discover the values of Scouting for his boy. Many an adult needs to find out the enjoyment to be derived from helping boys find themselves through Scouting. Many a civic institution should look into the merits and advantages of sponsoring a Troop of Boy Scouts.

For these reasons we're taking the opportunity — during Boy Scout Week—to fulfill our obligation as an information-medium, by reminding you of your responsibility to the boys of America—the Men of Tomorrow!

Cowboys Out For

Here is North's record for the season:

North, 59; Lancaster, 45.
Dayton Roosevelt, 48; North, 45.
North, 57; Arlington, 45.
Grandview, 47; North, 44.
North, 42; Bexley, 39.

North, 50; St. Charles, 38.
Marysville, 50; North, 43.
West, 48; North, 41.
East, 67; North, 59.
North, 62; Aquinas, 52.
North, 58; Linden, 22.
North, 49; Central, 37.
South, 72; North, 65.

The above scores show that North is a much-improved team since the last time they met the Cowboys. Since playing West last, they have started to average nearly 60 points a game, and if they can hit that stride against West tonight, they will gave the Cowboys quite a battle.

The Bears lost two men since the last time they played West. They lost Guard Tommy Thomas and Forward Chuck Zepp, but gained Guard Eddie Brandt from the reserve team. Brandt played against West's reserves last round and hit for eight points in playing only one half with a shoulder brace. He was an all-junior high league choice while starring for Everett last season.

The Cowboys held North's star, Forward Bob Blanchard, to only two points in their first round meeting, but when the Polar Bears visit the local gym tonight, Blanchard will be depended upon to lead the North offense, sharing honors with Center Zack Willson and Guards Dave Creamer and Harry Scott. Blanchard is currently the top scorer for the Maroons with 164 points.

Tonight's probable starters:

No.	Pos. North	Height
30	LF	Bob Blanchard 5'11"
23	RF	Harry Scott 6'1"
20	C	Zack Willson 6'1"
25	LG	Dave Creamer 5'11"

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

"GOOD AFTERNOON," Furse said smiling, a little puzzled. He had seen Kit on the train and watched her enter the shop. It had been on the tip of his tongue to say "Running away?" But now, face to face, he recognized the same tense look of Marvell's when he was bent on something, and he knew she was in flight and that he must prevent her.

"Oh, Mr. Furse," she said, blushing a little, "do you come into town often?" What rotten luck, she thought uneasily.

"Why so formal? Don't you think you ought to call me Andrew now that we have had a friendly argument?"

"About last night—I'm sorry I—"

"Violets become you," he said gravely, ignoring her apology. "Only dark-haired tall women should wear violets." He was stalling for time, but he was suddenly aware of the truth of his remark.

He had no malice against her for last night, she thought in wonder. He was friendly and at ease. Suddenly she was, too. "Violets are awfully high," she confessed, "but smell them."

He bent his head down. "They're worth it." They laughed together.

"I have an appointment near State Street," said Furse. "I suppose you have a date, too. Can I drop you anywhere?" He nodded toward the cab stand.

"No-o. I thought I'd walk around Boston a little. I don't see it much. I guess Marvell doesn't like it. And then," she lifted her head a little defiantly, "I am going to pay a call."

So that was it. He'd wondered what the devil she was doing alone in Boston on a raw winter's afternoon. She was nervous about it, so he supposed it was something Marvell wouldn't approve of and that meant... The story must have glamour to her, he thought, the big dark house, the orangerie, the old retainers. How vulnerable she is, he thought, and asked casually, "To see your aunt and uncle?"

She looked so dismayed, he hastened to add, "Marvell's spoken of them on and off. I suppose it would be fun to run in on them, but aren't they rather a formal crowd—are they expecting you?"

"No." Somehow he made it seem an unnecessary intrusion, her splendid shining adventure.

"I tell you what," said Furse, taking her arm in his. "It's a rotten day to wander around town. Why don't you hop a cab with me? I'm going to see Miss Searle's lawyer. A knobby old gentleman who is in the same building as your lawyer. You have every right as a client to burst in upon him and I'd bet he'd welcome a feminine face this gray day."

"You mean Uncle Ben?" She felt a curious relief and clutched at the familiar name gratefully.

"Mr. Hall. Then we'll meet and have a meal somewhere in a hotel, what do you say?" They could take the 4:40 back. Marvell would not miss her before then.

She had never been in Ben's office building before. The gray austerity of the lobby, the well-preserved dignity of the elevator men, the feeling everywhere of concentrated privacy impressed her. When she spoke to Furse, she spoke softly out of respect to this solid, respectable world to which she had the right to come. Furse left her at Ben's door. "If he shouldn't be in—sitting at court, or whatever they do, come down to Prentice's—it's two doors down. Otherwise, I'll meet you in the archives," he nodded toward the waiting room, "in half an hour or so."

When Miss de Fries told Mr. Hall that a Miss Coomes, without an appointment, wishes to see him, he shook his head vaguely. He had had a disagreeable morning, had eaten too heavy a lunch and was trying to outstare the gray sky that flattened itself against his windows. It was so like his own depressed mood which threatened to keep him from his work. "She's Mr. Marvell Coomes' daughter, I believe," said Miss de Fries, with a faint querulous note of curiosity.

"Good God! What could be wrong? Have her come in."

The scent of Kit's violets preceded her and for a moment Ben thought he was imagining her. His eyes were riveted on the spot of color on her coat. "Why, my child, is anything the matter?" He stood behind the desk, looking smaller and older than Kit had remembered him. His troubled voice embarrassed her and she went up to him quickly and kissed him.

"Oh, no, Uncle Ben, thank you. I'm just fine. I came in with Mr. Furse who lives next to us in Colcard who had to see Mr. Prentice who is Miss Searle's lawyer, and she used to live in Colcord, too, don't you remember?"

Ben looked puzzled. "Well, everybody in Colcord seems involved in this visit. Why didn't your father come with you?"

"He didn't have the afternoon free, I am saying hello for us both," she went on hurriedly, and began to chatter about Fanny and the boys.

Ben watched her, half-turning his face, so that she was not conscious of her appraisal. The first sight of her walking across the room with the violets on her coat, had recreated Elizabeth so strongly that he had been as startled as if he had seen a ghost. They were not alike in coloring or in height. Their only similarity was a shy dignity and an appealing candor in the eyes. This was a young girl with a half-awkward, half-gracious manner. How unsubtle youth was, he thought suddenly, comparing her with an older image, and how short its lease, he added pompously. He saw the eager expectancy of her smile as she waited for him to speak. He brought himself back with an effort. "You have changed a good deal, Katherine. You are tall. I like that in a woman."

"Marvell does, too."

At that moment the name of Marvell jarred upon Ben. There was no place for him in his present memories. He said with some asperity, "Marvell is quite a stranger to us these days. It is almost as if he went out of his way to avoid old friends."

Kit blushed. "He really didn't know I was coming, Uncle Ben," she protested. "It was all unplanned. And if he doesn't come down, it's because he's pretty busy. You know he's the whole building, repairing, heating, ventilating trade of Colcord. Of course, he's got a staff," she went on, rather pleased at the opportunity to show off, "and last year he added a wing to the shop, which he calls the drafting room. And then there's a lot going on in town. When he have a free evening, we do things together." That wasn't quite true of the past year, but it seemed all the more important now.

Ben was interested. He didn't see much of his own sons. "What do you do?"

"We read a good deal and play poker and he used to help me with the plays I put on—and—well, I don't know what all, but he's there—I mean he never throws cold water on your ideas. Somehow, you always want to tell him first."

Then she fell silent, remembering their last talk in bewilderment. "That sounds very pleasant, and what are you going to do now that you're growing up?"

"I think I am going to be an actress."

"Every pretty girl thinks that," said Ben indulgently. "Still, I think theatricals are charming. Your mother and Fanny used to be in performances at their school. They played Hermoine and Helena once . . ."

"What school?"

"The Holly School here in Boston. Much more progressive than most young ladies' academies. They have their own playhouse now in Charles Street . . . quite professional, you see."

"If I went there—" Kit began in excitement.

"Fanny and I should see more of you. We'd like to have a daughter, too." And then it occurred to Ben what an extraordinary visit this was. It was the reason for that other visit long ago when Elizabeth, who must have been panic-stricken at her own decision, had come to reveal it to him, and he had not understood but he had respected her wishes. And now this young girl who had barged in so cheerfully and unknowing, was the proof of Elizabeth's right judgment. Aloud he said, "I'd like to see more of Marvell, Kit. Will you tell him that? I think it's about time he came back among us—"

Her eyes widened in wonder. "I'll tell him."

"He will understand what I mean," said Ben slowly. "Fanny, too. She's always admired him," no more than I do, now, he thought honestly. "It won't be dull, Kit, we promise you. But you both must come into town more." He leaned back, a little tired. Are you satisfied now, Elizabeth? I should have done this before, I know.

"Uncle Ben," Kit leaned forward, "the Barlows, Uncle Proctor and Aunt Emily and the little boy, I mean, they're in Boston aren't they?"

"Oh, yes, still on Commonwealth Avenue, just the same as when you were there. Except that your uncle isn't as well as a man his age ought to be."

"Mightn't that be why Marvell doesn't come down much?" She had to find out something. Perhaps after all it had been Marvell who had been cheated in some way, not herself as she had foolishly thought in self-pity.

"Well, they never got on." He wondered how much Marvell had told her. "There was nothing to hold them together after your mother died. I can't say who was to blame. I only know that it took courage for Marvell to leave everything behind him and dig himself into the country with a little girl of eight. He liked to be on the go, he hated rebuke or restraint of any kind. He had enough of it with Proctor. You ought to be very proud of him, Kit. Though I don't expect it's always been easy for you, either."

She had discovered how close she had come to disloyalty. Her throat burned. If she had been miserable in anger against Marvell last night, how miserable she was in love with him now. "I am proud," she said, standing up, for now every minute seemed to threaten the time she had to make up to her father. "He's waiting for me and I expect Mr. Furse is ready. I'll tell him what you said, Uncle Ben. I'll tell him everything."

Ben was startled by the intensity of her words which burned the air like a match held to tissue. For quite a while after she had gone, he sat wondering if she could have understood, somehow, all the things he had left unsaid.

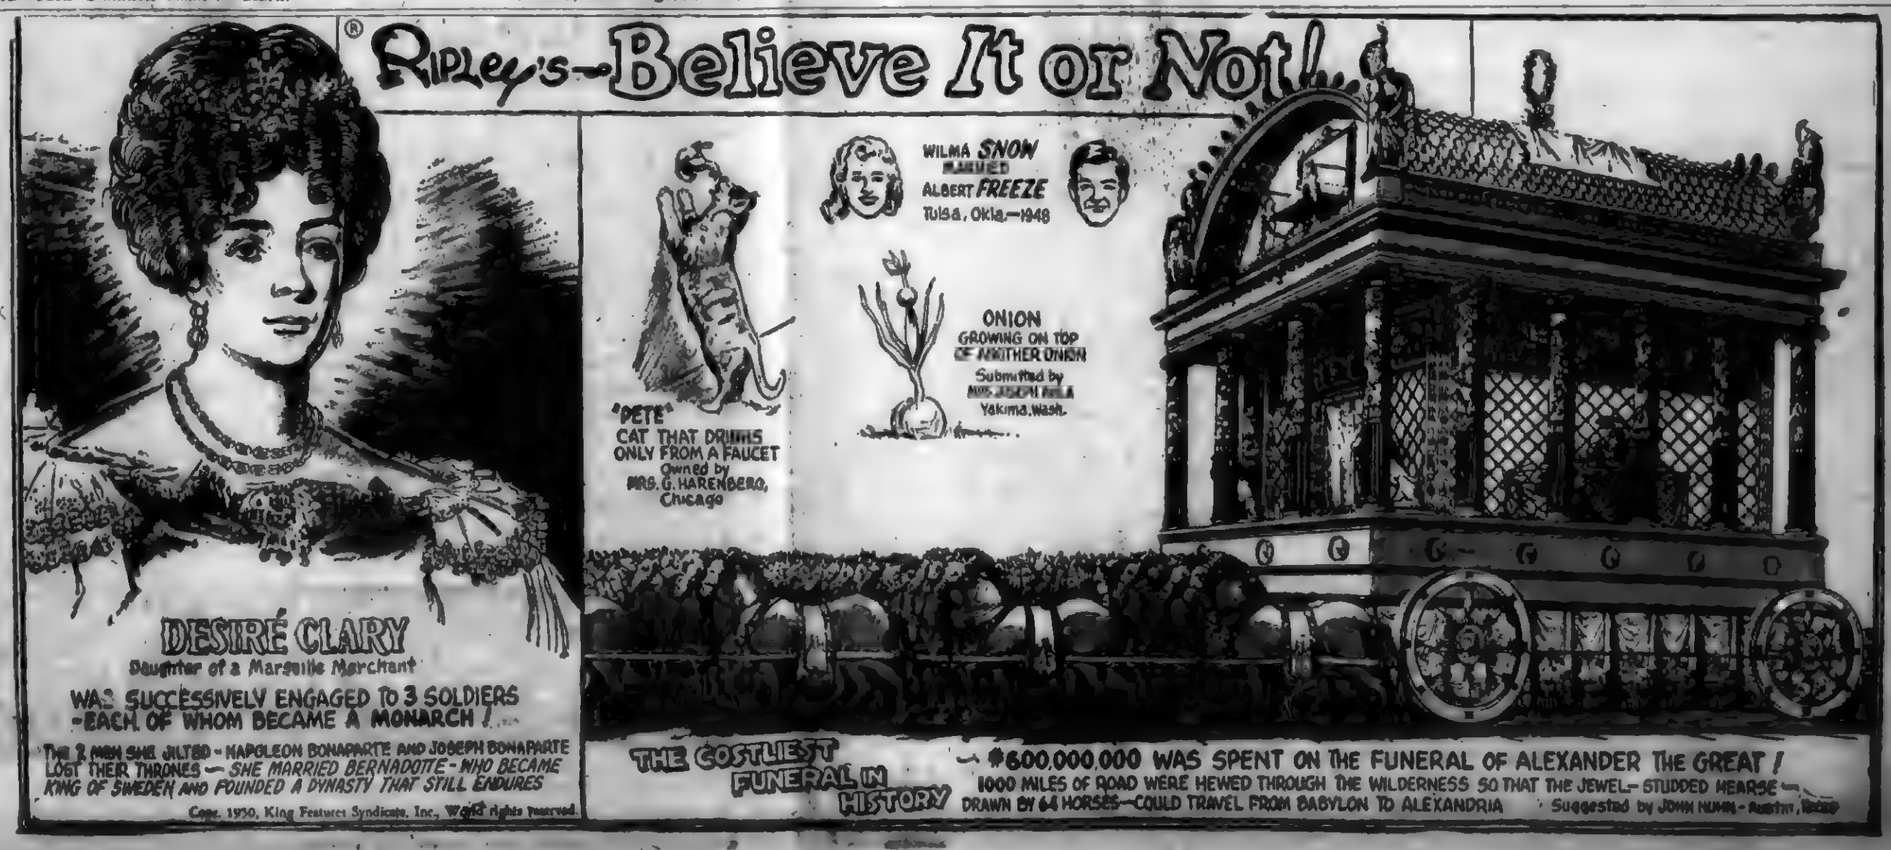
Dear Carl:



It was indeed a pleasure to receive the flowers of the week, that, as I understand, is presented by you and Leo on a co-operative basis.

I appreciate the thought very much, and it was a pleasure to receive a reward rather than feeling that some of the work done in civic matters creates nothing but criticism.

I am looking forward to the time when I shall be able to reciprocate the favor to either you or Leo.

Yours truly,

The Opening of Broad-Lechner Apartments Is Another Achievement

By

TONTI BROS., BUILDERS

2370 West Broad Street

RA. 4536

(Now In the 28th Year of Building In Columbus)

With the completion of the Broad-Lechner Apartments at 1963 West Broad Street, a $200,000 project, Tonti Brothers Builders have brought to the Hilltop another improvement of major importance and again alleviated the housing situation on the Hilltop. The erection of this new structure has eliminated an old building which formerly stood at this location and was often termed an 'eyesore' to the progressive Hilltop community. The new Broad-Lechner Apartments provide 18 apartments of two types. Six of the apartments consist of living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and bath. All apartments have front and rear entrances, basements and laundry lockers. Modern in every detail each apartment has hardwood floors, fireproofed stairways, ornamental iron railings, master closets with full length mirrors, steel casements in windows with copper screening, automatic water heaters and painted walls in modern pastel colors of various combination for different rooms. A drive-on parking ramp is available at the rear of the new structure and a spacious lawn fronts on Broad and Lechner.

The kitchens of each apartment have been given the most modern treatment with rubber tiled floors, metal cabinets with formica tops. Twin compartment sinks, chrome fitted, and Tappan Ranges and Servell Refrigerators. The baths are of ceramic tile with showers, rubber tiled floors, steel medicine cabinets with a mirror and built-in linen cabinets. All apartments are equipped with individual forced air gas heating plants.

Work on the newest of the Hilltop's housing units was begun on August 1 with the finishing touches just recently completed and the building being made ready for occupancy. The opening is truly another creditable achievement for Tonti Brothers Builders who in the past three years have brought more than 300 new families to the Hilltop by their construction and building activities.

The Tonti firm is also builder of Rosemary Apartments, on Chase Avenue and the Regina Apartments on Powell Avenue. At the present time they have the new Rosemary apartment court under construction on Chase Avenue and are also engaged in promoting a large housing project on the campus of Notre Dame University at South Bend, Indiana. This latest projcct involves a cost of $2,500,000.

Saluting Scouting's 40th ANNIVERSARY

For our youth, "to live and learn" is not enough. To live and learn in freedom and cooperation is the promise of a bright future for our community. That's why we are proud of the work of our Boy Scouts, helping others and keeping "physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight." Around a camp-fire . . . feeling the vitality of the Great Outdoors! Working and building as a group. To be prepared, loyal and friendly, helpful and courteous. These are the things that are preparing over two million American Boy Scouts today for active citizenship tomorrow.

This is Boy Scout Week, when the Hilltop joins the nationwide salute to the great traditions of scouting . . . to an organization which has produced and will continue to give us men who are leaders in the home . . . the community, the nation and the world.

You Can Help Prevent Crime!

Detective Rambo called at our office this week with an important little pamphlet just published by the police department under the above heading. We feel certain bits of the information deserve special stress as follows:

When you observe any suspicious persons, unusual occurrences or happenings, telephone the police IMMEDIATELY by dialing the operator and asking for police headquarters. When connected, advise the police operator that you have a complaint. She will connect you with the police dispatcher, who has charge of the police cruisers. State the case quickly and distinctly by giving:

1. The location where police are needed.
2. A brief account of what occurred.
3. Description of persons involved.
4. License number and description, if an automobile is involved. Give direction of escape, if known.

Don't take it for granted that the police have been called or that an occurrence or shred of information is too insignificant. Your police department would rather investigate a hundred reports than have a single offense occur which could possibly have been prevented. Minor incidents sometimes lead to the apprehension of a criminal.

When entertaining, place your guests' belongings in a room or closet safe from window-pickers or burglars who specialize in breaking into homes at such times.

Notify police headquarters when leaving your home unoccupied for an extended period.

Never advertise your absence by putting messages in conspicuous places for collectors, milkmen, etc.; notify your newsboy or milkman personally or by phone when necessary to stop delivery.

Under no circumstances should you inform strangers of your neighbors' absence.

Remove valuable clothing, rugs or furs from the outside clothesline before leaving home.

Keep a small light burning inside the house when going out for the evening.

Large sums of money, saving bonds, stocks, etc., should be deposited in a bank. Don't rely on secret hiding places in your home.

Keep doors locked or screen doors hooked, especially when alone and in another part of the house.

Insist that persons who claim to be inspectors of various types identify themselves before admitting them to your home.

Any unknown solicitors for money or services, such as dry cleaning, electrical equipment repairs, etc., should be thoroughly checked before you turn

Returns Home

Mrs. Carolyn Allender

Mrs. Carolyn Allender, 560 Hilltonia-av, the young mother who was flown to Boston early in January for artificial kidney treatment, returned to the Hilltop last Friday.

Her condition is reported to be "improved considerably and she is on the way to recovery."

The injury to her kidney was caused when her son, James Hudson, was born. Mrs. Allender was taken to Boston on an emergency flight of a Navy plane from the naval air base at Port Columbus.

She was treated at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston. The hospital has the only artificial kidney in the world.

Former Scouts Are Kiwanis Speakers

Three former Boy Scouts were the speakers this noon at the Kiwanis luncheon meeting. All three formerly were in Troop 45 under Scoutmaster Sam Morrison, who was in charge of the program today. Pictured standing behind Morrison, they are Carl Glade, 292 N. Warren-av; Jack Morris, 32 S. Eureka-av; and Jim Brown, 121 S. Harris-av.

Glade is now an account executive at WHKC, Morris is a field underwriter for the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, and Brown is a teacher at West High School.

The three former scouts will discuss the problems they had at Boy Scout age and how scouting experience helped solve these problems; problems that have confronted them since the age of 18, and how scouting experience helped; and what aid is needed by scouts from the adults in the community.

Eagle scouts and candidates from the southwest district will be guests at the meeting.

Carter Re-elected Pres. Of Community Council

Urge Recreation Dept. To Buy Playground Site

Russell Carter

The Hilltop Community Council re-elected Russell Carter president and four other officers at the first meeting in the new permanent meeting room at Glenwood Recreation Center Wednesday night.

The council also passed, without a dissenting vote, a resolution urging the city recreation department to purchase the 24 lots between Belvidere and Lechner-avs, and Doren and Floral-avs, as a new playground.

The land, formerly known as Kesselring's swamp, was recently filled in by the city. It has been said that the ground is unsuitable for building and that the city could purchase the tract for about $2400.

It was reported to the council that Recreation Director Nick Barack had visited the site with members of the recreation commission and that they are now considering the proposal.

Jerry Spears, first president of the Hilltop Community Council, installed the re-elected officers. They are:

Russell Carter, 128 N. Huron-av, president; Averille Thorn, 392 S. Glenwood-av, vice president; Mrs. Bruce Tanner, 149 Algonquin-av, recording secretary; Mrs. Earl Abram, 100 N. Huron-av, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Edward Thompson, 220 N. Oakley-av, treasurer.

It's Chief, Inspector, Director, Superintendent Scully Now

Inspector Thomas A. Scully, 2101 Sullivant-av, took over as Columbus Police Chief Tuesday, but it was only a temporary move.

Inspector Scully, who has been acting chief so many times in the last 10 years he has lost count, took over the duties of Chief Frank L. Harrison.

Chief Harrison marked off duty Monday afternoon and will enter Mt. Carmel Hospital Sunday to undergo a major gall bladder operation Tuesday.

Chief Harrison will have his 25 years in on the police force in June and would be eligible for retirement. The city administration has asked him to remain as chief after that time and the chief has stated that his decision will depend upon the advice of his physician.

Inspector Scully was made inspector Jan. 20, 1940, and has served as chief during vacation periods and other off-times occasions. He said he would not name an acting inspector but would continue to act as chief, inspector, building superintendent and director of the training school now in progress.

Name 10 Scout Neighborhood Commissioners

Ten neighborhood commissioners, to supervise work of scout units in this district, were appointed by Elmer Hegenberger, district commissioner, this week. The 10 men will meet at Hegenberger's home Feb. 22 for unit assignments. There are 51 units in the Southwest District.

James McCready, 81 N. Wheatland-av; Herman Eisele, 156 S. Algonquin-av; R. E. DeVore, 329 S. Terrace-av; Theodore Webb, 28 N. Oakley-av; and Loren Galloway, 80 S. Algonquin-av.

ALL SET TO GO are these leaders of the chest X-ray surveys for the communities of Dublin and Hilliards. The Hilliards survey gets under way Thursday afternoon and continues tonight and tomorrow night in an attempt to X-ray every adult and discover unsuspected cases of tuberculosis and other chest conditions needing attention. Friday morning's survey will be devoted to high school students, school faculty and personnel. X-rays are free to recipients, financed by the Columbus Tuberculosis Society through receipts from the Christmas seal sale. The Dublin survey is scheduled for Feb. 13 and 14. Pictured above are, left to right, Dublin School Superintendent James H. Wolfe; Mrs. Ann Gallagher, director of the X-ray survey unit, Columbus Tuberculosis Society; Mrs. Virgil Hart, chairman of the Hilliards community survey; Superintendent of Hilliards Schools Millard D. Hartsook.

100-Year-Old Mrs. Briggs Breaks Hip

Mrs. Joseph Briggs, 100, 1575 Harrisburg-pk, is in Mt. Carmel Hospital with a fractured hip received in a recent fall. According to her daughter, Mrs. Josephine E. Cheney of the same address, Mrs. Briggs "is getting along very well."

It was necessary to operate on Mrs. Briggs in order to put a pin in her hip-bone in order to enable her to walk, Mrs. Cheney said. Mrs. Briggs is expected to be able to walk in about three months.

Mrs. Cheney said they expect to bring Mrs. Briggs home from the hospital on Monday.

New Car Smashed In 4-Car Crash

Four vehicles were damaged Wednesday in a chain crash at W. Fifth-av and Highland-st. Police said a truck driven by Charles L. Chandler of Cleveland crashed into the rear of a 1950 Packard driven by William Simons, 31, of 150 S. Powel-av.

His car smashed into a hoist truck driven by John Kramer, 43, of Obetz. The fourth machine hit was driven by Dwight Defenbaugh, 53, of 2187 Arlington-av.

Chandler was charged with failure to allow distance. He said his brakes grabbed and then let loose before the crash. Simons' car was demolished. None was injured.

West Hi-Y Club Members Hear Job Consultant

By Myron T. Seifert

West Hi-Y Club members were numbered among other city-wide fellow-members at a meeting scheduled at the Central YMCA Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 7:30 when the group listened to a talk on "Jobs" by Dr. Fletcher of Ohio State University, head of Occupational Opportunities at that school. During the war Dr. Fletcher held a similar position in the U. S. Navy.

"Is There a Job Waiting for Me?" was the topic for discussion, a vital question in the minds of a great number of teen-agers, particularly 12B and 12A high school students.

Ree Reynolds Rents Room Thru Record

The following "For Rent" ad, placed by Ree Reynolds, 136 N. Oakley-av, appeared only once in the Record Classified Section, but that was enough to bring the desired results in a hurry.

The room was rented the same evening. Cost of the ad: only 36c. Record Want Ads bring results quickly and economically. Each week more people are "cashing in" on the high reader-interest of the Classified pages. Why not you? Your ad can be inserted up to 5 p. m. Monday or 5 p. m. Wednesday. The number is RA. 1125.

Hilliards F.F.A. Members To Sell Hybrid Seed Corn

The Hilliards chapter of the Future Farmers of America will again sell hybrid seed corn to the farmers of the Hilliards community.

A committee composed of Paul Slyh, chairman, Don Crager and Jay Kaifenbach has organized a selling plan in which chapter members will call upon farmers to take orders for this coming season's corn needs.

The members will have available to sell a complete list of Robinson's Ohio Certified hybrid seed. Orders are being taken now and seed will be delivered.

As well as being educational, this service provides an addition to the FFA funds which are used for the annual parent and son banquet, FFA camp, judging contests, prizes and awards and other chapter supplies and equipment.

Fighting Cowboys Defeat Aquinas

By Dave Miller

A lot of adjectives can be tossed around on a team like South's Bulldogs, but it's a cinch that if you're looking for a typical hard-fighting high school team, you Hilltoppers need not travel far.

Right in our midst we have what can be classed as one of the hardest working and fighting teams in the city or state. Sound amazing? After the Aquinas game last Friday evening, no one need be ashamed of the Cowboys' season record.

The Cowboys' 65-61 win over Aquinas was a marvel. It reminded your reporter of the South-West game in which 152 points shredded the nets in 32 minutes of play. In Friday's game, the first for both teams in their second round of play in the City League, 126 points hit the nets.

The win also put the Cowboys into undisputed second place in the City Loop race. East, previously tied with the Cowboys for runner-up spot, was idle with the bye Friday, and therefore the Cowboys gained a one-half game on the Tigers. The Cowboy City League record now stands at 5-2 while East has one less win.

The Cowboys are now shooting for an undefeated second round, and if they can succeed over the six-game span, they have an excellent chance of cinching or at least tying for the City League championship. South, at the top of the heap with seven wins in as many games, isn't as tough as before mid-year because of the loss of two stars by mid-term graduation. However, their 72-65 win over North team sounds convincing, that fray being the first in which the Bulldogs played without their graduates.

In comparison to Aquinas with the first and second rounds, the latest game with the Terriers shows a very marked improvement. The Cowboys were easy 60-50 winners in the two fives' first round encounter.

The recent Terrier fray was a touch-and-go affair all the way. Both teams were equally matched with a top notch scoring punch, and four boys were hitting all evening. The quartet included Capt. Jerry Miller and Johnny Masdea, a Hilltopper, both of Aquinas, and Phil Young and Bill Thrush again for the Cowboys.

Thrush played his usual great game, snaring bad passes, intercepting dribbles, stealing the ball away and making a nuisance of himself for the Irish. Bill hit the nets for 26 points, but Masdea of the Terriers, who fouled out in the game with two minutes left, hit for 27 for high scoring honors.

Phil Young, Cowboy center, who has been the target of every Cowboy opponent thus far this season, played another terrific game, racking in 18 points and turning in another great game of rebounding. Jerry Miller, who didn't play in the Hilltoppers' game with the Terriers in the first meeting because of illness, racked in 18, also.

As a result of last week's fray, Thrush passed Young for the high honors of the City League by two points, Bill now totaling 117 markers, a basket more than Phil. It is a good sign of a championship team when you have two boys first and second in the City League individual scoring race.

Things started slow in the first period, but once both offensives started going, nothing could possibly stop them. Jerry Johnson of the Cowboys hit two straight buckets, before the Terriers could come back withit four quick points by Miller and Guard Jim Mangan to tie up the county. The pace continued at a nip-and-tuck tempo as the first period ended 19-17 in favor of the Irish.

The Cowboys could acclaim a new star in their midst after the second period. The Cowboys would have been knocked right out of the lead without the pint-sized guard, Jack Gammon, a real ball of fire. In the second period, he kept the Cowboys seemingly fading hopes alive with three vital buckets in addition to playing a "Thrush" type of ball. With but two minutes to go in the first half, the Cowboys trailed 28-9. Gammon matched a set shot with Jack Schmidt of the ultimate losers and then the Cowboys hit for seven quick points. Gammon sank a push; Paul Ellingsworth, a drive in; and Young two free throws to give the Cowboys a 30-29 lead, and then Masdea and Thrush exchanged bunnies as the half ended with the Cowboys holding a slim, 32-31 lead.

The third period again saw neither team showing any signs of bowing out of the race, with the period almost finishing up with the score knotted at 46-all. Two quick drive-ins by Thrush spelled a 50-46 lead for the Cowboys at the duration of the canto.

It was still nip-and-tuck at the automatic time in the fourth period (2:39 to go). Ellingsworth and Young got together for five quick points before Masdea and Miller came back with three markers to make it 62-58 in the Cowboys' favor. Then Miller hit a goal and a free toss to cut the margin to 62-61, but Young followed with two free throws, and Thrush connected on a bunny to end the game.

West Drops Heartbreaker To North Polar Bears 60-59

By Dave Miller

West High's basketballers lost a real heart-breaker Tuesday evening by dropping a 60 to 59 decision to North High's Polar Bears on the local court before a howling and jammed-packed crowd.

The North fray was a tremendous comeback for the ultimate winners. They trailed all through the game, trailing by four markers at the first period's end; 11 at the half, but by only one at the third period's end.

West High's two scoring aces, Center Phil Young and little Guard Bill Thrush, were again at their best, but the last period pressure was too much, with North coming up in the final moments to luckily eke out the win.

North opened up also with a one-two scoring punch in Forward Bob Blanchard and Guard Harry Scott. Blanchard hit his usual 19-point game, but Scott, who just after mid-term became a starter, surprised everyone by pumping in 20 markers to pace the Maroon and Gold.

The Cowboys attempted 65 shots, making 24 while North hit 26 of 69 attempts. There's not much difference there, but where you find a marked difference is in the third period. The Bears made eight of 21 shots while the Cowboys made only three of 14. North outscored the Hilltoppers 22-12 in one of the highest scoring periods this season, with North cutting West's margin at half-time from 36-25 to 48-27 at the finish of the third period.

West had a rough time of things early in the game, but once Thrush, Young and Co. began rolling, things began to look up for the Cowboys. Zack Willson and Thrush exchanged tip in's to start off the night, and things kept at the pace until midway of the opening period, when Bill Thrush's drive-in shot put West ahead 8-6, with Bob Gardell's free throw cutting West's lead in half.

Gardell and Young exchanged tip in's again, but after Young's free toss, Bob Blanchard of the visitors sank a hook shot to knot the count at 11-all. Dave Creamer's free throw put North in front temporarily, but Young, Paul Ellingsworth and Jerry Johnson followed with five quick points between them to give West a commanding 16-12 first quarter lead.

Three quick buckets by Thrush at the onset of the second period provided West with their biggest lead of the night—at 22-12. Blanchard and Gardell followed with consecutive side set shots, and after Harry Scott's drive-in layup for the Polar Bears, the Northsiders had cut the West lead to 23-20.

West pulled ahead 30-23 in the closing portions of the second period thanks to a couple of drive-in layups by Thrush and Young. Don Forsyth of North sank a tip-in, but Young and Thrush appeared on the scene and West was quickly handed a convincing 36-25 first period lead.

You may call it over-confidence. You may call it just bad luck, or you may call it anything, but, it's known to all by now that the Cowboys "mansaed" to blow their lead and give North a chance to creep up during the third period.

The game went at nip-and-tuck tempo all through the opening moments of the third period, but this pace began to change to a more acceptable one by the Bears. They began to hit the bucket with unerring accuracy.

With four minutes left in the quarter, Bob Blanchard sank a free throw which cut West's margin down to 42-36. Ellingsworth sank a free throw, but Scott followed with a set for North. Young and Thrush collaborated for four points. By then Blanchard and Scott combined on free throws and side sets for eight consecutive points, which left West holding only a 47-45 lead. Ellingsworth sank another free throw, but Gardell hit a long push just as the gun sounded ending the third period with West holding a slim 48-47 third period margin.

The scoring hit a new low in the fourth period, with only 24 points shredding the nets throughout the entire period.

Young and Creamer matched bunnies to begin the last period and then Scott put North ahead 51-50 for the first time since the first period with a bunny. Young sank a free throw to knot the count, and sub forward, Frank Carson, of the Cowboys hit a long set to put West ahead by two. Blanchard and Creamer quickly followed with three points to again give North the lead. Phil Young then sank another beautiful tip-in shot to give West a 55-54 lead at the automatic time-out. The clock showed 2:31 remaining.

From there on it was merely a basket-match Center Zack Willson sank a left-handed hook shot for North, but Thrush quickly matched that with a push giving West a 57-56 lead. Scott and Thrush then exchanged hook shots, and with West leading, 59-58, Blanchard put North ahead for keeps with an under-the-basket push to win the game. North stalled the remaining minute.

High point man of the game was Young with 24, with Thrush cinching runner-up with 21 markers. Scott and Blanchard topped North with 20 and 16 points, respectively.

Hoge Memorial Leads Hilltop YMCA League

St. Paul's, Highland and Hoge won their games Monday night in the "Y" League. St. Paul's won over Hilltop Church of Christ in the first over-time 32-27; Highland was victorious over Burgess, 47-32; Hoge topped Oakley, 36-27.

St. Paul's, after a four game losing streak, finally won another game over Hilltop Church of Christ. The game was the first overtime game of the year. The score was knotted at 26 all at the end of the regulation game. Two quick field goals and two fouls put them ahead 32-28. Reeves of St. Paul's and Groomes of Hilltop Church of Christ were voted outstanding. Groomes was high man with 11 for Hilltop Church of Christ, while Beatity of St. Paul's was high with 10. The score:

The second game of the evening went to Highland Friends after a tough battle with Burgess EUB. The game was fairly close the first two quarters as Highland led Burgess by only three points. Klein of Burgess was voted outstanding, and also was high man for the evening as he pumped in 16 points. Grable of Highland was high with 12.

Hoge's rough and fast brand of basketball brought them out victorious again as they topped Oakley 36 to 27. Sensenbrenner of Hoge was high man with 11 points, while Rile of Oakley was high with nine. Wilson of Hoge and Williams of Oakley were selected as outstanding.

Reserves Come From Behind To Beat Terriers

By Dave Miller

West High's reserve team was victorious over Aquinas' seconds 38-31 in the prelim to the varsity go on the Aquinas floor last Friday evening.

The win provided the local reserve team with its fourth win in seven starts in City League play, and an overall mark of nine wins and three defeats, with non-league victories coming over Newark, Bexley, Grandview, Washington C. H., and Marion Harding.

The fray marked two firsts for the local seconds. It was the first game for West Junior basketball star, Jerry Trabue, who recently graduated and is eligible for Sr. High play, and it was first game for the reserves without their scoring aces, Guard Earl (Wimpy) Potts and Center Paul Thompson, who were promoted to the varsity last week.

No one player was really outstanding for the reserves, with the victory being more or less a team win, with every boy except one hitting the scoring column. West hit on 14 of 52 shots throughout the game while Aquinas hit on nine of 34 attempts, for a marked difference in chances to score, thus showing the strength in the Broncos' rebounding. Especially good was Ted Fladt, who snared practically every rebound for the locals in the first half.

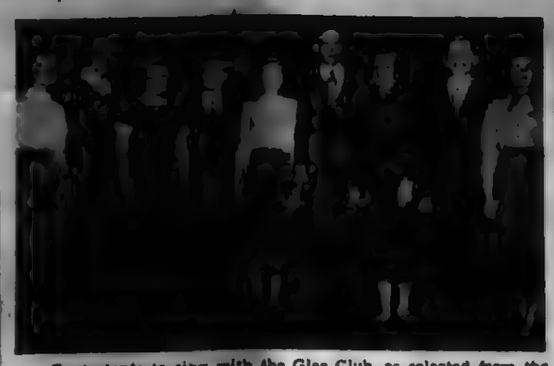
The game started out slow, but after Aquinas began to gain momentum, it was all Aquinas in later stages of first period, with the host five holding a convincing 11-5 first quarter margin.

However, the Cowboys began to find the range in the second period, but still the score remained at a marked low as only 12 points meshed the nets in the second canto. Four quick points near the finish of the half by Jim Lang cut Aquinas' previous "safe" lead to 16-12 at halftime.

After a pep talk at halftime by Coach Fred Heischman, the local seconds came out like a house afire in the third quarter to outscore the Terrier reserves, 13-7, with five of the Irish markers by Forward Paul Bean, who had scored only two markers up to that point of the fray. At the end of the third period, the Cowboys were leading, 25-23.

Again the locals came back with another 13 point quarter to cinch the decision. However, they trailed with 3:02 left in the game at 27-26, but eight consecutive markers by Trabue, Warren Stevens and Russ Friend provided the difference, and the Hilltoppers were on their way to another win.

This sort of fourth period uprising was no surprise to anyone who follows the local reserve squad. In 12 fourth quarters thus far this season, they have scored 128 points, which is remarkable when you consider the fact that they play only six minute quarters. Their highest total was 17 against Washington C. H., with 15 against Marion Harding being the runnerup. Their lowest was six against Newark and Central. The Broncos have lost only three tilts thus far this season, one each to North, Central and South, all three being league games and all three away from their home court.



High scorer of the Irish game was the Terriers' Paul Bean, with 12, with Warren Stevens and Russ Friend of West and Jim Salle of Aquinas runnerup with eight apiece.

West Seconds Edged By North Reserves 34-33

By Dave Miller

West's reserve squad dropped a real heart-breaker in the prelim to the varsity game at West Tuesday evening, losing a 34-33 game to North's seconds.

North, who now leads the City Reserve League with its won-7 lost-1 record in loop play, had quite a time with the Broncos from start to finish, and found it necessary to steal the ball for the final 33 seconds of the fray, after snaring a West shot.

Bob Weinrech of the ultimate winners hit two quick buckets to start off proceedings in the opening period, but West's Jerry Trabue, a recent transfer from the junior high team, hit a free throw and a tip in to put West back in the contest.

Jim Hartley of North and Russ Friend of the locals hit consecutive bunnies, but North's Clark Lawrence hit a side shot to give North an 8-6 first period lead.

Both teams racked in eight markers in the second period, with North's other Weinrech twin, John, pacing the Bears' attack with three buckets, all sets from the corner. North held a 16-14 lead at halftime.

A tremendous drive by the local reserves in the third period spelled the Broncos with a two-point lead at the third canto's finish. Trabue's six points were the determining factors in this drive, which provided the junior Cowboys with 26-24 third period lead.

In the final period, with 52 seconds left in the game, North held a 34-31 lead, which West quickly cut down on Trabue's tip-in. With three seconds left in the game, Jim Lang of the local reserves was fouled in the act of shooting, and with the pressure really on him, he missed both free throws.

Trabue topped the scorers with 13 points, followed by John Weinrech and Dick Wells of North, who both collected nine.

Scout Week Recalls Heroic Feat of Joseph Eriewein

By Myron T. Seifert

National Boy Scout Week recalls some incidents of interest to a multitude of Hilltoppers.

National recognition was given a Hilltop Boy Scout for his bravery in 1929 when he saved the lives of two young ladies while in bathing at Buckeye Lake.

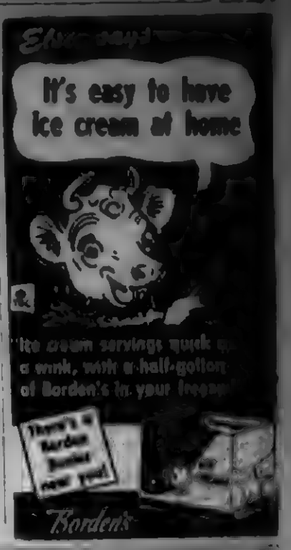
News of the award of the Boy Scouts of America Gold Medal to Joseph Erienwein, 18, then of 388 Lechner-av, member of Troop 21, Boy Scouts, meeting at Hoge Memorial church, came to the troop following the meeting of the national court of honor at New York. Two other awards were made but that of Erienwein was the major one.

Joseph, who was a junior at Central High School, didn't learn of the honor until after he had gone to school on a Monday morning. He was called to the office and later he said he wondered what they could want with him. At the school office he was faced by photographers and was then told of his award.

"If it wasn't for the Scouts I never would have done it," he said. "It took me two years to learn to swim but now I can't keep out of the water," he added.

Scoutmaster R. C. Kadel was instrumental in letting the story out and also in securing the medal for Joseph.

While Mrs. Clifford Lewis was teaching Miss Gladys Anderson to swim in Buckeye Lake in July, 1927, Miss Anderson became frightened, getting a strangle hold on Mrs. Lewis and causing them both to go under.



Erienwein, noticing the attempts of the young ladies to keep from going under, went to their assistance. After the couple had gone under three times Joseph pulled them to shore by means of his Scout swimming methods and thus saved their lives.

One of the peculiar features of the whole affair lies in the fact that the Scout did not learn to swim until after he had spent two summers at the task. All his other Scout merit badges were easily made but the one for swimming threatened to keep him from advancing.

JOE BRIGGS
Says:

A man sometimes marries so he'll have someone to tell his troubles to, and then he certainly has plenty to talk about.

Merely having plenty of policies doesn't give you full insurance protection. Every phase of your insurance program should be coordinated—for COMPLETE, ECONOMICAL protection—based on today's increased values. Our long experience enables us to recommend, WITHOUT COST TO YOU, an intelligent insurance plan. Joe Briggs, 2596 Sullivant Ave. RA. 3194.

The call, which was to the Clarks' home at 518 Hilltonia-av, came at just about the time a popular radio quiz musical give-away program is on the air but it was more valued by the local couple than would be winning even the biggest jackpot.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark were overjoyed to hear their granddaughter's voice, inasmuch as she was born here in September, 1945, just before her parents moved to the Canal Zone. Mr. Hoham had lived in the Canal Zone before the war and came to Columbus when he was assigned to the Lockbourne Air Base while in the United States Army Air Force.

New Store On Hilltop

Hilltoppers who thronged to the opening of the new branch furniture store of the National Outfitting Co. at 2767 W. Broad-st last Friday were unanimous in their praise and approval of the new concern. Hilltop residents expressed satisfaction that the new furniture store has been made available in their neighborhood.

The manager of the National Outfitting Company's Hilltop branch is R. Edwin Tanner, who has been associated with the home furnishings business for many years, most recently with the furniture division of the Montgomery Ward Co.

The National Outfitting Co. is not unknown to the Hilltop community. The concern has been serving the city from its downtown location for the past half century as well as through its sales representatives, who visited all sections of the city.

National Outfitting has grown from a small clothing store in the early 1900's to its present five-story building which retails, in addition to a complete line of clothing, home furnishings, appliances and jewelry.

The original owner of the company and his family still control the business and continue to stress the importance of customer satisfaction and the selling of nothing but high quality merchandise.

Looking Ahead
with JEAN WORREL

"And just why," said Bill with a touch of irony, "Should a healthy young ruffian like Bill Jr. require assurance at the age of ten?"

"For a variety of reasons," I replied, "Most of which are conclusive in themselves. For one thing, life assurance premiums on children are very small, but what is more important is that they remain at the same low rate all through life. Even if, in the future, he becomes uninsurable through ill health, the protection which you secure for him will continue as long as the original low regular premiums are paid. Also, it encourages the habit of thrift and impresses a boy with a true sense of the value of money. Think of it this way too — in the future, when he begins life in earnest, it may be the means of establishing business credit and financial backing."

"I could certainly have done with something like that fifteen years ago when I started out, couldn't I, my dear?" said Bill, turning to his wife.

So Bill Jr. starts life with the great advantage of a Sun Life policy. It will stand him in good stead. If there is a Bill Jr. or a young Mary in your family, won't you give them this great helping hand? Call me about the Sun Life Junior Assurance plan today.

DREAM COME TRUE

Fight For Conservation Successful, Warner Seeks Relocation of Capitol Site

By Bill Gibbon

For fifty years David C. Warner of 270 Pasadena-av, New Rome, has worked hard on a dream, and finally his dream has become a reality. Now, at 77, Warner has another dream which he expects will take another 20 years, and perhaps $100 million to fulfill. If this latest idea is carried out, it will greatly affect the Hilltop.

At the turn of the century Warner became interested in geology and water conservation as a hobby. That was when few people knew about conservation of any sort, and fewer cared about it. Warner, and a handful of engineers and scientists were pioneers in the conservation field in Ohio.

In 1912, Warner was an influential lobbyist for conservation of our natural resources at the state constitutional convention in Columbus that year. It was Warner, with the aid of Prof. C. E. Sherman, former head of the civil engineering department at Ohio State University, and others, who were instrumental in having an amendment passed to make it legal to cause conservation of water, soil and trees by law.

Conservation a Reality

Warner has now seen his idea of conservation, which for years existed pretty much as a dream, become a state-wide project with 100 persons in the new Department of Natural Resources working today. As a water conservation engineer with offices in the State House Annex, Warner is a consultant to the natural resources department.

His new dream, which may be as practical as his dream-come-true, is that a new state Capitol Center be built at the top of the Hill. Warner's idea is to move the State Hospital for the Feeble Minded out into the country "away from detrimental influences," and build a new State House where the hospital buildings now stand, with department buildings surrounding it.

At present, the State House and the newer State Office Building are not large enough to house all the departments of the state. Departmental offices are scattered over the city in high rental buildings.

Plan For Future

"To think into the future just a little," Warner declared, "will be less expensive than the conditions that we of this generation have inherited.

"Nobody can predict what will be necessary to house the state's services in the next 100 years, but at least we can try to look into the future and plan for some overgrowth of services. When we plan a new site for our capital buildings we should allow space for expansion," Warner [illegible]

"By using the State Hospital grounds for a capitol center," Warner stated, "we would have plenty of room for capital buildings to accommodate expanding state services. We'd have space, too, or a large, beautiful capitol park."

Warner, a Republican, has submitted his idea to Governor Lausche. To date, the governor has made no comment on the plan. However, other state officials, including persons close to the governor, say they like the idea of the capitol on the Hilltop.

Begins Career in N. Y.

At the turn of the century, in June, 1900, Warner began his career of engineering and architecture when he became superintendent of construction of the Allbright Art Gallery in Buffalo. The Doric structure, which is of the same style as the State House, was expected to be finished for the Pan-American Exposition. It was not completed until 1904.

Born in Duchess County, N. Y., on Dec. 3, 1872, the son of a Christian Church pastor, Warner came to West Liberty, Ohio, in 1881. In 1894 he graduated from the high school in that town. In addition to being a member of the senior class, Warner was also janitor and truant officer for the school.

For the next three years he taught school for $26, $30 and $36 a month. He decided that if he was going to make teaching his career, he would get a teacher's education. So, he attended the Buffalo State Normal School. However, after finishing there, he never taught school again.

D. C. Warner

After completing his work on the Buffalo art gallery, Warner, in 1905, went to St. Louis to help drive a tunnel under the Mississippi River in order to supply water to an electric company. In 1907, Warner came back to Ohio, to Brown County, where he built its first telephone system. While there he became interested in hydro-electric power.

He surveyed the area's natural water supply and decided it was ideal for a site for water-made electric power. He bought thousands of acres of land in the region, and invested thousands of dollars in a new company. After Warner started his work, he soon learned that it was unconstitutional to use water for power, or to conserve water.

"I went broke on that project. But because I went broke, I was determined to see that some day water and soil conservation would be constitutional in this state," Warner said.

New Amendment Passes

His efforts, and those of others, at the state constitutional convention which followed in a few years caused Ohio's consitution to be amended to allow for conservation of the state's natural resources.

After losing all of his money, Warner went to work for the YMCA, organizing new "Y"s throughout the state, but soon found he was travelling around the state so much he didn't see his family. He quit the "Y" and

WHAT ABOUT

TELEVISION?

-- HERE ARE ACTUAL FACTS --

(1) There are many, many NEW manufacturers of television sets who have "sprung up" since the war.

(2) Many times they use NAMES for their sets which have a familiar sound — but not in connection with radio.

(3) Many, and in our opinion MOST, of such sets are made up of inferior parts—and as FEW parts as possible.

(4) Many such manufacturers may not remain in television business long—their sets would then be obsolete.

(5) Many such sets are now being sold through outlets that are not qualified to sell television. They, like the manufacturers of the sets they sell "sprang-up" to grab quick profits — they probably will fold up just as quickly, too.

(6) Some LARGE stores, also sell that type of merchandise to supplement the relatively small shipments of good, old name brand sets that they receive.

(7) Out-of-town "Hot Shots" will come in with high pressure selling methods and take your money, too.

SO WHAT?

(1) We, the undersigned, established Hilltop dealers, will not offer to sell you little known and/or inferior merchandise regardless of the shortage of good television sets.

(2) We will offer reasonable terms and fair carrying charges if purchase is made on budget account.

(3) You will not be compelled to buy a "service contract" to get the set of your choice but such service contracts will be made available to you at regular established prices, if desired.

We Think This Policy Is FAIR and NEIGHBORLY
And WE ARE YOUR NEIGHBORS

You will probably enjoy television the rest of your life. We urge you to wait for the set that you want. Do not settle for anything less!

Scouting Builds Character

It has been said that the best bank collateral a man can have is "character" and that the most important thing for a young man to do is to establish a credit, a reputation and character. So you see "character," it seems to me, is mans' greatest safeguard. Character is fundamental to success in school, in business or professional life!

The impressionable years of boyhood are the most important in "character building." The boys who follow the Scout ideals in performing a good deed each day have found an entirely new attitude toward life . There is no wide gulf between boyhood and manhood. The same basic qualities that make a good Boy Scout spells success in later life. For this reason men and boys should be glad to be active in Scouting today. They will never grow stodgy in the presence of Young America and that's why they should always be conscious of the benefits derived from Scouting and proud of the high position Scouting holds in the eye of the general public. Scouting is a supplement invaluable to the work of the school and church. It affords wider horizons in which to practice basic teachings. The boy who arrives at the threshold of manhood without having had the opportunity of being a Boy Scout has missed a factor for expression he may never recapture.

Scouting is Young America steadily moving. It is the answer to the youth movements of dictators which ended in abysmal failure. Boy Scouts do march though, but they march as free men in America. The very heartbeat of America can be felt, in the cadence of their step. The Boy Scout of today is the man of tomorrow.

Great People I Have Met and Seen

Did you ever see a huge Bison (Buffalo family)? You thought he must surely have great brains in that shaggy head. Well, he does not, but the large elephant, with small eyes and big ears, has real intelligence in his head. Now, about us humans. People with huge heads are usually classified as abnormal or subnormal, as you wish, but I can cite several men with massive skulls, who were LEADERS —Plato, Napoleon, Franklin D. Roosevelt. And now, my star (or one

Victor Herbert

I sat only about 15 feet from his, as a young man, when he was a soloist at one of our Prospect Heights Choral Society concerts held in Brooklyn, in a very large and wealthy church, Victor Herbert was cello poloist.

What a personality! Big (not tall), chunky, fat-faced, with large hair effects over his immense skull. I studied him intensely, for he had written "Babes In Toyland" and the "Red Mill" and I had seen these immortal light classics in the original productions. Even today, years afterward, I love to hear any, yes any, of his light operettas. I truly believe that anything he composed was a "hit". Gracious melodies seemed to pour from that huge, massive head. He "passed away" far too soon, aged about 45 years.

Woodrow Wilson

Tall, austere, quick, and of the intellectual type—that was Woodrow Wilson. When he was a war president I saw him in the lobby of the Chittenden Hotel for a special dinner. With him was a marshal of France in light blue and gold uniform. President Wilson was impeccably dressed in formal cutaway coat, striped trousers, gray spats and black shoes and silk hat. He walked briskly to the elevators—and was gone! But I saw, at close range, the man whose 14 points for world peace I firmly believe will revolutionize this world — Woodrow Wilson.

Dr. William Oxley Thompson

The only president of Ohio State University to have a great statue erected to him (on the campus in a grand location before the library) was the popular Dr. William Oxley Thompson. I knew him, personally, as president of the Columbus Board of Education. What a grand man, business man, executive, and so "mixable". One little incident reveals his true character. I had been invited to lecture in Rochester, N. Y., but the school superintendent could not see that I ought to go. I went to Dr. Thompson, who was president of the school board, living in that old red brick house near the 15th-av OSU entrance. He was ill, but that did not matter, so while he lay on a couch in a small room off the main living room, with a bandage over his eyes, I told my story. He said, "Call Dr. ——— and let me talk to him." He told the superintendent that if I was "big enough" to be invited to lecture in Rochester, I should go. That was all there was to it. Good Dr. Thompson, so executive, so personal, so kindly, yet a fighter for his university. Many beautiful new buildings were erected during his presidency.

George Bellows

George Bellows, a "great" in OSU baseball as well as in modern art, was holding an exhibition in the old art gallery in the public library, so I chatted with him. A great, tall, gaunt fellow, he was very modest He died at the age of 42—too soon—but left some glorious canvases. The "Execution of Edith Cavell" is owned by the Cincinnati Art Museum and our own art gallery has a "Bellows Room" with the comely portrait of his mother seated in a rare old antique rocker, so sweet and lovely. George Bellows was the monitor of the Robert Henri class, another great modern artist. Mrs. Campbell had the honor of being in that group.

Now I reiterate — great things are yours if you will take the time to see them. Don't be too critical; get the maximum joy out of masterpieces. So again and again I say "be exposed" to these wonder offerings and never miss an opportunity to meet or see these pepole who are making history.

THINK THIS OVER.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

FURSE SWUNG his car down the lane. The headlights caught the gleam of the white birches, thin shivering beacons in the dark, wet winter night. Kit had hardly spoken on the drive up from the station. She had noticed how subdued she was throughout the afternoon as if, behind her obvious pleasure in companionship, she was deeply preoccupied with serious matters. Sitting across the table from him in the hotel, with a woman's voice and the woman's touch of flowers on the coat, it seemed to him she must have grown up in the course of that one day. He stopped the car at the flagged walk. "Shall I come in with you?" he asked, ready to back her up if need be.

She shook her head. "Thanks, you've been swell. I was going to do something silly, but you helped me out."

"You helped me out, too," he said, "you gave me a bright day."

In the half-dark, the whiteness of her face, the glint of her eyes seemed ageless. "About the spring ..." she began in a low voice. She could not forget how nice he'd been all day in spite of her perversity.

"Give me the right of way temporarily," he suggested quickly. "In case I need it. I may buy the Stanewski land. That was a good idea of yours."

She nodded. She couldn't press him further now. She had to face Marvell and get it over with.

He gripped her shoulder. "Are you all set now?" I like that kid, he thought, as he drove off.

Marvell had gotten home early. His greeting was brief. "Where in God's name have you been?"

Kit took a long breath. "In Boston—with Andrew."

"Furse? When did he ask you?"

"I went in by myself. Then I met him, I—I was going to see Uncle Proctor."

"It's a rotten night to be out," said Marvell, staring at the sleet that drummed against the windows, and there was a cold, sick feeling he seemed to taste, like fog, when he spoke. "Well, did you?"

She began with the buying of the flowers and he did not interrupt her until he had seen her safely into Ben's office. "What did Ben have to say for himself?"

"He wants to see you—and Aunt Fanny, too. They miss you. I guess you used to see a lot of them before you came up here with me."

He didn't seem to be listening and she didn't know how to go on. "Tell me one thing, Kit. What did you go for?"

"I wanted something to happen —I wanted more."

"More of the Barlows?" He looked incredulous as if she had struck him an unexpected blow.

"No!" she cried passionately. "I want to be more. I want to be so much better at everything, no matter what, just like you."

"Did Ben talk about your mother?" I should have, he thought, from the very beginning.

"Only about the theatricals. Mother and Aunt Fanny used to act together when they were in the Holly School. In 'The Midsummer's Night Dream,' did you know that?"

"That's the school Nedda went to," he said, thinking aloud. "Just the kind of thing ..." he flinched from his easy superiority. "It was a gracious life in its day; there must be some of the good left in it."

"Uncle Ben says it's progressive. He told me they run their own theatre, on Charles Street. I've seen the write-up in the papers when they give a performance. They're not silly amateurs; sometimes a scout from Broadway comes up."

It had happened so fast. She had come of age sooner than he had expected. He had almost lost her by a wing-tip. All the time he'd been devoting to Furse. Well, he didn't regret that, only now it was her turn. There was not enough he could do for her. What were the physical things an actress needed? Poise, health, voice, a good memory. Presence, that was a spiritual quality but how could it be cultivated: what books, what teachers? The school sounded just right. There must be additional lessons in elocution, fencing, everything to make it happen perfectly, but not too fast, not too fast. The first thing to do is to get to see this school. Maybe you could start this spring term. I guess they can fit in another bed and boarder."

"Oh, no, they have day pupils. I want to live here. Travel is broadening," she grinned at him, "and when I have to stay in for evening things, you'd have to come, too. Otherwise, you'd back out."

"Would I?" Yes, wouldn't he! For this means he had to face it all again. The constant comparison with the kind of world he had been so safe from for so long. There was that cold panic rising in him—God, he hadn't sensed it since Nedda's wild, blind challenge. It would be easier to bypass Boston. If Proctor began to threaten his reality, would he drink again?

Kit was asking him if sometime they couldn't give a theatre party for Uncle Ben and Aunt Fanny—"real evening dress."

Get a hold on yourself, he prayed. Don't you see it's different this time? It isn't you that counts any longer. It's Kit. You'll only be there as long as it does her any good. You can't hurt yourself, because you're not really in it. You're in it only through her. He walked up and down the room, his hands behind his back. The firelight glinted on the long streaks of sleet on the panes. He began to talk excitedly and Kit was excited by the web of enchantment he was weaving for her.

"Shakespeare and Barrie for two years in Boston at the Holly Playhouse. Then New York! We'll get the best work-out there is. Private hours with an actress or a small group. Then, after what seems an eternity of learning and throwing away what you've learned, bit parts in rehearsals that never open, one line that you've stood in the wings for three whole acts, will come your first night. Just off Broadway, maybe 46th or 47th, and it won't be A whale of a play but there'll be a producer, a scout, a famous playwright looking for a new face, a new voice. Maybe I'll rent a full-bodied ulster with an astrakan collar and mingle in the crowd during intermission to spread the rumor I'm snapping you up for London."

"Don't you go up and down Forty-sixth Street with a billboard!" She laughed happily, then she frowned. "But, Marvell, I may not have anything ..."

"You've got everything to succeed with, Kit. It will be hard work, but when it's your work, it doesn't matter. Then you'll know what it is to be."

"Am I good looking enough?"

"Color and height, voice and presence. Wait till you get something first class to work with—not school kids, not watered Shaws! Look what you used to do with the Bible stories, that I read aloud and you acted out with Peter and Audrey!"

"To your tents, O Israel!" she cried.

"That language wasn't watered down. That was the wine of life, all right, for a voice like yours to drink. What couldn't a man do with them! This is for you," he said, speaking more quietly, "this was written for you to commemorate the end of an experience just like yours today and the beginning of another:

"'Be merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me: for my soul trusteth in thee: yea, in the shadow of thy wings will I make my refuge until these calamities be overpast ...'"

He leaped over the fire and the nets into the ringing joy of the lines ahead—

"'My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed: I will sing and give praise. Awake, up, my glory; awake, psaltery and harp: I myself will awake early.'"

Kit said in wonder, "I didn't know you could recite a psalm."

"I know fourteen of them, and a lot of other things besides."

"But if I should turn out a complete flop and make you burn with shame?"

"You won't. I might embarrass you by hanging around, but I've never been able to yet."

"Do you know why?" Her face lit up. "Because you simplify things, Marvell. You never complicate them."

Grocers Told Elimination of Illegal Monopolies Would Lower Prices

"Elimination of illegal monopolistic practices within the food industry will mean lower food prices for at least 90 per cent of America's consumers."

This is the statement of assistant U. S. Attorney General Herbert A. Bergson, made last week to the annual convention of the National Retail Grocers Secretaries Association in Washington, D. C., according to word from Harry A. Nation, secretary of the Columbus Retail Grocers Association, who has been in Washington attending convention sessions at the Statler Hotel.

The Retail Grocers Association is made up of independent retail food merchants of the area with F. D. Sparks of Sparks-Kent Super Market, as president.

Nation reports that assistant Attorney General Bergson said that present activities of the United States Department of justice are "not intended as an attack against bigness and efficiency" but are intended to stop those who are violating the laws of our nation from continuing to violate them.

Nation also reports that Mr. Bergson pointed out that when such violators are stopped, small business men who are operating small stores in every city, town and village in the United States, will be able to conduct their businesses without fear of unfair and illegal restrictions and will be quickly able to reduce their prices to their customers.

The National Retail Grocers Secretaries Association, of which Nation is a member, represents nearly 500 state and local retail grocers associations in all states of the union which, in affiliation with the National Association of Retail Grocers act as spokesmen for the nearly 375,000 independent retail grocers who operate 92 per cent of the nation's food stores. These stores serve 90 per cent of American consumers.

Assistant Attorney General Bergson told the secretaries association that he believed it the duty of his department to insure every American free enterprise system.

He said: "The existence of monopoly power and its ruthless use in disregard to the public interest threaten economic freedom, retard efficiency and curtail progress. Our system of free enterprise cannot survive unless the advantages of competition accrue to all of us."

Odd Fact

A man is serving a jail sentence in Wolcott, N. Y., because he tried to sell a raincoat to the Chief of Police, who recognized it as his own which had been stolen from a parked police car.

Warner Seeks—

joined the Columbus police force.

While a "cop" he was also a Bible class teacher. A fellow policeman said one day that he couldn't understand how a man could be a policeman and a Sunday school teacher. "Later I converted that man," Warner said. He is Walter Gump, former city policeman and county sheriff.

Named to Board

The Ohio legislature, in 1931, passed a law which created a water conservation board. George White, then Democratic governor, appointed Warner that year to be full-time secretary of the board. He has been working there ever since in his little office over the state supreme court chambers in the state house annex.

During his 18 years as a water conservation consultant for the state, Warner has served under five governers. During part of Martin L. Davey's terms, Warner's department went without appropriations, and he went without a salary. "But they kept the lights and heat on," Warner declared, "so I stayed right here working.

When U. S. Senator John W. Bricker became governor, Warner was named a consultant to the department of public works. He held that position through the first Lausche and Herbert regimes until this summer. Last summer, when the new department of natural resources was established, Warner became a consultant to that department.

Now 100 people are working at water conservation. "My hobby of 50 years has become a state institution," Warner proudly said. "It took guts to wait and put the thing over," he added.

"Guts and Faith"

"I've got guts and faith enough to see this dream of a Capitol Center on the Hilltop, too. It's a big project that will take lots of money and time, but it is for the welfare and the best interests of the people of Ohio," Warner declared.

"The development of such a monumental plan will be the product of many thinkers, planners, engineers, architects, scientists, landscapers, traffic experts, and men of vision from all walks of life. I want the governer and the legislature to have many opinions on this matter," Warner stated.

"Public opinion must be with this dream, also," Warner said with concern about what the man-in-the-street is thinking. "I'd like to know what they think of the idea."

(Another story will tell more specifically about Warner's plans for the Capitol Center.)

The Gospel Moves Westward — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 13:13-14:28 — By Alfred J. Buescher

The elders at Antioch laid their hands upon Paul and Barnabas in blessing and sent them away, so they went to Seleucia, and from thence sailed for Cyprus.

At Paphos Paul and Barnabas encountered a sorcerer and false prophet who tried to interfere with the apostles' work, and Paul decreed he should be blind.

In Antioch of Syria the two apostles preached in the synagogue. Paul speaking at length about Hebrew history and telling them of Christ, His death and resurrection.

At Iconium Paul and Barnabas talked to a great multitude, but some stirred up the populace so they stoned Paul and left him for dead.

MEMORY VERSE—Acts 16:48.

Because we need a time of repair each week.

Because we need time in which to store the battery of life with spiritual energy.

Because we need to gain reserve power for unknown needs.

Because we need to augment our power of resistance

Because we need from time to time to take our spiritual bearings.

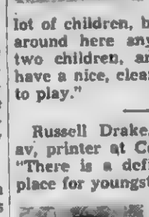
PEOPLE WHO KNOW ABOUT THE RELIABILITY OF

MY FUTURE BOSS

CONSIDER THEY HAVE SOMETHING TO BE THANKFUL ABOUT

Roving Photographer

By Bill Gilbert



The question for this week is: "Do you feel the city should make a playground out of Keasering's Swamp which has recently been filled in?" The former swampland is bordered by Belvidere, Lechner, Floral, and Doren-ays. Part of Wrexham-av runs into the area.

Ray Sapp, 221 Lechner-av, grocer: "I've lived here beside the area for 14 years and I'm 100% for the playground. When it was swampland it was a menace to the community. Children playing in the vicinity would fall neck high in the green swamp water, and a couple of boys drank the water and became terribly sick. Children can't play in the streets, so they need a playground. The swamp has been filled in, but there is still trash in the area."

Mrs. Rosemary Winneberg, 134 Wrexham-av, housewife "I'd like to see a playground park built here. It would be nice if the city fixed up the area. We live just adjoining the area where the park would be located, and the playground would attract a lot of children, but the kids play around here anyway. We have two children, and we'd like to have a nice, clean place for them to play."

Russell Drake, 213 Belvidere-av, printer at Columbus Citizen: "There is a definite need for a place for youngsters to play baseball in this neighborhood. Talk is going on to start a Little League Baseball organization. This area would be ideal for diamonds for that league. There is no longer a great danger in the area, now that it has been filled in. But it needs to be cleaned up. The 24 lots that were swampland that are now available for a playground probably could be obtained by the city for about $2500. We here in this neighborhood would like to thank Mr. Anderson, superintendent of refuse collection, for filling in the swamp.

Franklin Neel, 129 Wrexham-av, Curtiss-Wright executive administrator: "I live right next to where the park would be, and my wife and I would much rather have a park than a playground. We have two girls, and we don't severely object to a playground (that would be better than the way it is now) but it would bring a lot of children around the neighborhood. I'm afraid it would be too noisy. We'd like some trees and shrubbery. It is a question whether the kids would break up tables and benches.

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

No news about how NED BAILEY'S car got moved last week. All he has to say is that he must have been dreaming or something.

DAUGHTER HUBBARD was born last Sunday. Her parents, MR. AND MRS. PAUL HUBBARD, welcomed her with open arms.

Now we know why MRS. LEO MASTBAUM wears that Indian Chief pin on her blouse—"Heap big smoke, but no fire, INDIAN CHIEF, etc." She claims she's so crazy about Arthur Godfrey that she stops her vacuum cleaner just to hear him breathe.

WREXHAM, BELVIDERE and BUTLER AVES. should be renamed Canasta Addition. (We'll see if we can't arrange it at the next council meeting). I tell you, they're all going overboard for that JOKER of a game. Why, two people smoked 30 cigarettes in two games! They say it keeps them so tense, lest they be penalized, that they're glued to their chair. They call it fun. Can't be wrong, I guess, since everyone is crazy about it. Just to be on the safe side, though, I don't think I'll learn how to play. Then there will be at least one sane person allowed to go loose.

BILL ARDLE and his family returned from Newport, Ky., where they had visited relatives, to relate that just before they came into Columbus, upon stopping at a traffic light at 1:30 a. m., a man jumped on their running board trying the door. But it happened they had themselves locked in. They started up and he jumped off. Warning: Keep your car doors locked, folks, when you ride at night.

LEO JORDAN came home from work to find his wife stretching curtains in the basement. He made a bargain that if she'd go upstairs and make him some French Fries for supper, he'd finish pinning for her.

She was almost finished, anyhow, so she compromised. The French Fries and the curtains turned out swell—but oh! poor LEO'S fingers were pricked all over. Now he doesn't know whether it was worth it or not.

POKEY BIGLER'S family is noted as POKEY figures. POKEY POKES at his furnace when he fires up; he POKES on his typewriter when he writes a letter; the baby POKES at his eyes when he plays with him; and the MISSUS has POKEY dots on her kitchen curtains.

Was that dandruff in ERNIE'S hair last Friday? ERNIE WILLIAMS was sawing away on his wooden horse, and ERNIE JR. was scooping it up and playing with his sandy andy—and all at once JUNIOR managed to lift it, dumping it on DADDY'S head. He was all night getting it out, and the next day at work he found some still hiding out at the roots.

Now that "Stop the Music" prizes were won last Sunday, the new catchy tune (old as the hills, really) is going to start the ball rolling all over again. Wish someone on the Hilltop would win some prizes from them. We're a pretty lucky set of people.

Congrats to the SINACOLAS. FRANK and ELEANOR will have been married three years tomorrow.

The ED MERRITTS had a double birthday party Tuesday for their babies. Both of their children's birthdays are in the same week. SUZANNE had a party two years ago, and since they took snapshots of the party then, they took them again this year, and the same ones were invited. They placed all the invited children in the same positions. My, how they had grown!

On The Record

Along the line of readability and correct journalism we have a clipping from Rev. A. J. Wold on what an un-to-date blue penciling editor might have done to a part of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

Fourscore and seven yrs ago (Much too stilted—say "eighty-seven.") our fathers brought forth ("Founded" is a much better word.) on this continent a new nation, (What nation? Put the name in there big!) conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men (Don't overlook the women—there's lots of them, you know.) are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. (Endure what? Say "last.") We are met (You mean "have met.") on a great battlefield of that war. (What battlefield?) We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place (Don't beat around the bush—say "cemetery.") for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do his. . .

(Ed. note: Why use unnecessary verbiage? You don't seem able to get this idea over in plain forceful language. Sorry, Mr. Lincoln, but you'll have to do this over again.)

Police Foil Robbers At Seiller's

SEILLER EXECUTIVES AND A DETECTIVE look over three bullet holes in a gate in back of the department store where police shot a would-be burglar late Friday night. Clyde E. Johnson, 2422½ W. Broad-st, spotted the hoodlums on the roof of Seiller's as they attempted to break into the store. Left to right are Paul Leigninger, 2998 Fremont-st; Detective Sgt. Tom Sawyer, [illegible] videre-av, and Jack Merriman, 44 S. Sylvan-av.

An accident involving a S. Wayne-av woman, and the alertness of two Hilltop families helped police foil an attempted burglary of Seiller's Department Store, 2404 W. Broad-st, and capture one of the burglars last Friday night.

The attention of the neighborhood was aroused last Friday night when residents in the vicinity of Wayne-av and W. Broad-st heard police and the fire emergency squad come to the scene of an accident. Mrs. Susie Stewart, 53, 43 S Wayne-av, was struck by an auto driven by James Ingram of 208 S Oakley-av

Saw Silhouettes

The sirens caused Mrs Olive Friend, 21 N. Wayne-av, to look out her upstairs window. She saw the silhouettes of men walking on the roof of Seiller's. She immediately called her nephew, Clyde E. Johnson, 2422½ W. Broad-st. Johnson and his son, Wayne, looked out their apartment window and saw the men. Wayne went downstairs and told one of the policemen who was investigating the accident.

Two cruisermen immediately began investigating the attempted burglary. A call went in for more police. The burglars were surprised and ordered down from the roof. When the bandits attempted to escape, one was shot

18,448 Attend 'Y' Groups In '50; Show $1000 Deficit

Twe members of the board of management of the Hilltop YMCA were re-elected last Thursday and two new members were elected.

Ira Claggett and Mose Williams were renamed to their posts. The new members of the board are W. E. Ferguson and Curt Roberts.

Averill Thorn, secretary of the clubs, gave a report of the year's activities to the nearly 75 persons who attended the annual banquet at the downtown YMCA. According to Thorn's report there was a total attendance of 9,278 in regularly scheduled groups and 9,170 in groups with no definite enrollment. There were 705 boys and 53 girls participating in the regularly scheduled groups. All of these participants were under 18 years of age.

The "Y" records show that 304 boys and eight girls participated with the 25 basketball teams; 177 boys between the ages of nine and 12 took part in the Gra-Y Clubs; 145 boys played on the 10 softball teams; 40 boys and 40 girls were on the 16 bowling teams; 29 boys were in the radio and photograph clubs; and five girls were in the girls' craft group.

3,846 At Teen Club

An attendance of 3,846 was recorded at 105 sessions of the "Teen Club;" 3,482 youngsters attended 109 movies at three separate locations; there was an attendance of 435 at 45 sessions of the hobby shop; 369 attendance was shown on Gra-Y swims and hikes; and 209 boys and girls attended the six Y sponsored television shows.

Nine visiting groups made use of Y facilities for 29 meetings during the year.

Deficit Exceeds $1[illegible]

The financial report of the clubs showed that the Y finished the year with a deficit of more than $1,000. A surplus of $2,267.60 from 1948 however, made the balance as of Jan. 1, $983.42.

The greatest expense for the year was 7,095 paid out in salaries to the executive secretary, office secretary, program director, janitor and gymnasium supervisors.

Red Feather Income $7500

The greatest part of the more than $10,000 income came from the community fund. As a red feather agency the Hilltop Y got $7,500. Membership fees provided $1,614 of the income.

Last Thursday's meeting was opened with the invocation by Rev. A. J. Wold. C. C. Hartley, chairman of the board of management, was in charge of the meeting, and the program report was given by Paul Leighninger. Chal Dyer, general executive of the Y, spoke briefly.

It's Fun To Live In America . . .

Sweet Land of Liberty -- What Does It Mean?

IT MEANS—

Freedom to worship God in one's own way, in the church of one's choice.

The right to free speech and press, to praise or criticize, without fear of retaliation.

Freedom of movement—to travel where we please and when we please, on business or for pleasure, at home or abroad.

Trial by jury, with the innocence of the accused taken for granted until guilt is proved in open court.

The right to own our own homes, whether they we large or small, with privacy and sanctity of the home assured.

The individual right to go into a business of our own choosing, to compete, and to make a profit on our sales.

The right to organize clubs, religious groups or competitive labor unions, to bargain with employers or employees.

Competitive medical services and research, individual right to choose one's own doctor, unhampered by federal red tape and inspection of records of one's private life.

Free election of our official representatives in a competitive two-party system, who after full and open debate, enact just laws based upon the desires of the people.

IT DOES NOT MEAN—

A "state" controlled church, regimented and ruled by the iron fist of a dictator. —

Rigid control of radio, press and oral statements, persecuting all who lift their voices in protest.

Restriction to one community, travel permit necessary, examined at will by party police, severe punishment for any violation.

Arrest without warrant, conviction without evidence and sentence to prison, labor camp, or death.

Everyone living in government housing projects or homes, subject to bureaucratic inspection and removal at all times.

Government ownership of business, typical management by petty officials, in turn necessitating unbearable taxes upon the working population.

Abolishment of all private organizations, permitting only one labor union controlled by the "state," with no bargaining privileges.

So called "guaranteed" government health program, regimentation of patients and doctors, greatly increased taxes, inspection by local boards, deadly stifling of individual initiative.

One, so called "political party"—the party of the "state"—unjust laws drafted by a tight circle of top bureaucrats, political purge, imprisonment or death to those who dare to oppose.

DEMOCRACY

Let us say this much to ourselves, not only with our lips but in our hearts: "I am a part of democracy—it is not only a privilege to be enjoyed—it is a sacred trust to be maintained. I shall uphold it with all my might, giving my life if necessary, as many have done before me. "I shall not be afraid to stand up and be counted, vigorously opposing those who extol the virtues of ideologies contrary to our own. I shall remember Valley Forge, Calais and Iwo Jima—vowing that they who died shall not have died in vain.

"I shall fight to maintain the right of individual opportunity, the right to work, to go into business, to better the lot of my children and my children's children. I will strive for security, but not without effort. I will oppose government ownership but not regulation. I will support necessary taxation but will not condone waste. I will seek counsel but I will not accept interference.

"I shall uphold justice and voluntarily help the unfortunate. I shall exercise my right to vote, supporting only those who will vigorously oppose any trend to socialize our professions or nationalize our industries. In short, I will keep it fun to live in America."

MAIL BOX

Editor, Hilltop Record:

The kids of our neighborhood have been chased out of almost every vacant lot on Belvidere-av. They even have been chased out of the alleys. No place are they welcome to play ball. Even the nearest park has no ball diamond.

There are 36 vacant lots called the Belvidere-av swamp, now being filled in by the city. These lots are unfit for building. They would be swell to play ball on.

I have proposed to the City of Columbus to buy these lots and make a place for the Hilltop kids. A place where the kids would be welcome. Where no one can chase them any more.

The city has built "temporary" housing projects on the McKinley-av playgrounds and the Green Lawn-av diamonds. They have promised to sell to Battelle Institute the King-av playgrounds, Twin Rivers Golf Course has been cut up and parts of it sold to manufacturing plants.

The city fathers now are considering buying these lots. The cost will be small.

Now, I urge Hilltoppers to write or phone City Recreation Dept., (Ma. 2211) and tell them to go ahead, or call Henry A. Koontz, at Ra. 4711. Tell him you want it.

I urge you to do this for all the Hilltop kids who haven't anyone to battle for them. If you haven't any children of your own, make a call for that little kid next door, or the child across the street.

Russ Drake,
213 Belvidere-av.

Dear Editor,

I just read and enjoyed the piece about Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baird.

May I make a slight correction? Not that it matters too much to me, but the younger Bairds and Allens will no doubt save the piece and it seems a formed.

The Record stated that the Allen Funeral Home used to be the home of Eldon F. Smith—Eldon-av was named was him. The avenue was, but he lived at 2488 W Broad-st, where Johnny Ritzman now lives.

William B. Smith, father of Eldon, made his home where Allen's is now, at 2456 W. Broadst. Frank R. (Pete) Smith, son of Eldon, lived at 22 Eldon-av until his death in January, 1941. Charles Elmer Smith, son of Frank R., lived at the Eldon-av home until his marriage three years ago.

Thank you,
Nellie B. Smith
Widow of Pete and mother of Charles Elmer.

Dear C. C.

Thanks for all the wonderful articles you had on "Scouting" this last week in The Hilltop Record.

I feel that the boost you have given us in Scouting the past year played a very big part in helping me as district chairman in 1949 to show a 13% gain in Scouts over 1948 and in bringing to the Southwest District an award for exceeding our goal in "Strengthening the Arm of Liberty."

"Building boys is better than mending men" and should be the deep concern of every individual in our community. Thanks a million

CHAPTER FORTY

THE CLOCK in the North Station said 5:18, three minutes too late for the fast train home. I'll have to kill fifteen minutes some way, Kit told herself. It was useless to try for the early train unless she left the Symphony before the end of the program. So she usually spent Friday nights in town with Aunt Fanny and Uncle Ben. But, today, at noon, the weather had begun to soften and clear and she could not bear to spend the first real weekend of spring away from Colcord. Marvell was not expecting her tonight, she thought, but no matter, she'd call him from the station. She stood in the entrance of the waiting room and looked down the long wooden bench facing the door for a seat. Halfway down she caught sight of a sharp white profile under a bright green hat. Kit walked over to her. "Hello," she said, touching Audrey on the shoulder. Audrey looked up from her magazine. Her mouth returned the greeting but her eyes remained vague and dreamy.

"This your day for the Symphony isn't it? Well, I'm worn out shopping. If you're getting the 5:35, let's wait under the clock." She picked up her assorted bundles. Kit wondered why Audrey chose this spot in the path of cross drafts between two taxi exits. Then she guessed the reason. There was a men's haberdashery shop just behind them. Its one small, dusty window always filled with the same stringy, violent patterned ties and imitation leather gift sets. Audrey instinctively picked the place where she thought men might linger. She, too, was part of the display.

"I've had a wild time," Audrey began in her penetrating voice. "For the Legion dance. Are you and Peter going?"

"He's not a member."

"He can buy a ticket, can't he? He's a swell dancer. You ought to go. Well, what I went all over town for is a jade feather fan. Holy Smoke, the prices! I had real luck, though. I was in the Five and Ten and gave the girl a dollar bill and she thought it was two."

"Oh?" Kit's tone was puzzled.

"I'm in the dollar. It went toward the fan," said Audrey triumphantly.

"The girl will have to pay for it out of her own money. They check the cash registers every day."

"She should have been more sharp, then." Audrey moved away from Kit to let a tired looking man enter the store.

Kit shivered: the cold, concrete floor inlaid with the dark scrawl of the day's muddy shoes, the pasty faced man who had just brushed her elbow, Audrey's determined pride in her cheap transaction, all depressed her. Audrey stepped forward to peer up at the clock and Kit looked at her a little contemptuously—her gray winter coat trimmed with wooly imitation fur, her brown rubber boots with the worn rabbit fringe at the tops, her patent leather bag, her green hat that was too big and elaborate. Why, Audrey was poor, she thought with sudden compassion. There was no substance to anything she owned except the money she kept greedily tucked away in a hidden flap of the bag.

"We might as well get on the train," said Audrey shifting her parcels for a tighter grip.

"Let me help you, dear," said Kit gently as if Audrey had been her young daughter.

Out on the station platform where the train was standing the smell of spring was stronger than the engine smoke and the cindery dust. Kit drew a deep breath of the pungent air before climbing into the coach. They settled themselves in the middle of the car, Audrey chattering on about the dance, and other occasions like it, that took the awful edge off waiting for the end of school. She was to leave Colcord Academy in June and was so heartily sick of it already that she had not the least envy of Kit's exclusiveness in the Holly School.

The coach was beginning to fill up when Audrey spied a familiar face. "There's my cousin, Sophie Stanewesk," she pointed down the aisle.

"I didn't know you had any relatives by that name," said Kit. "I thought they were all Caddigans or Rileys. Oh, she's pretty!"

Audrey sniffed. "If you like that dark, heavy type."

"She's like Poldi and Poldi's—beautiful."

"She's like Poldi, all right." Audrey gave a mean, little snicker. "Free and easy. You ought to know."

"Why should I?"

"They're a lot of men up on your hill."

It was Kit's turn to laugh. If Audrey thought those poker games could be broken up by a lone girl, she was mistaken. "She's only at Andrew's a couple of hours a day to clean before she comes to us to milk, and Mrs. Crane says she's a good worker."

"A fast worker," said Audrey. "Don't be so dumb." She yawned. She wanted someone a little more lively for company. "I'm going up to speak to Sophie." She took all her bundles with her as she sidled out of the narrow space.

Kit closed her eyes and leaned back against the plush seat. She kept hearing Aunt Fanny's voice when she had telephoned her at noon. "Of course, Marvell will be delighted at your coming home. It is a kind of anniversary each spring, isn't it?" She must have meant their coming to Colcord years ago, but that had been practically winter time. She could remember that first cold night in the house even now. Aunt Fanny was an awful sentimentalist. It must be her age. Why, the last time she and Marvell had dined there, a few weeks earlier, Aunt Fanny had talked about her coming out, which Kit didn't want at all. Marvell had roared. "Out? My darling Fanny," he cried, "my daughter had her coming out party at the Parker House when she was seven years old." Aunt Fanny's eyes had grown brighter and she had nodded knowingly at stolid Uncle Ben. But she had never brought up that idea again.

By the time the train had started, Kit was steeped in a delicious drowsiness. She was conscious of the warm pleasure she felt in going home. Tomorrow she and Marvell would do so much—it would be a day that was a delight to lengthen; and she must ask him about . . . what was it Audrey had said? Oh, about Poldi. She worked for Furse, that's how it must have started. It would be funny to think of Mrs. Poldi Furse. She wished . . . Then she must have fallen asleep for her head snapped up sharply and she was aware of the smell of tobacco on the dry air. She opened her eyes and saw Furse looming over her.

"May I sit here?"

"Please do. Audrey was here but she found someone else." She blinked her eyes rapidly to dispel the sleep in them. "Did you get on at Cambridge?"

"I've been forward in the smoker. Go ahead with your nap. I have a strong shoulder."

Her smile turned into a wide yawn. He laughed. "I'm awake now," she said. "I only doze over the dull parts," she spoke as if the journey was a book she was reading. "At this time of the year, from here on, everything changes every minute."

"You really love the land, don't you?" She was certainly not like Marvell in that respect, he thought.

She nodded. She had a deep affection for it, even this double traveled track through pasture land and ragged wood lot. "It's never dull. Marvell says the longest journey of the soul is to Walden Pond and I pass it twice a day!" As she spoke she took in every detail that made him attractive, his red hair, dark blue eyes and thin strong face. He looked the way Mrs. Crane wanted Pixy to look, "all of one piece."

"Marvell told me this morning he didn't expect you this weekend." He wasn't unfolding his newspaper she noticed. "Will you drive up with me?"

"Thanks. It's a surprise."

"You should have let him know," said Furse, frowning.

She was surprised at this unexpected rebuke. "I didn't have time and I don't want to miss anything. When will the apple blossoms be at their peak?" she asked, turning a little more toward him.

"This isn't a tricky season, thank God. It ought to be in two weeks."

"I'll walk up to that orchard on our seven acre lot when the time comes," she told him. "That's where I first met Nedda, Miss Searle. She'd found I'd torn off some branches and she gave me the devil."

"Now that her highness isn't here to supervise, you ought to be able to get away with a bud or two."

"No," she protested laughing, "I like them best on the tree now. They aren't half as much fun to bring into the house as laurel or fleur-de-lis."

Furse rather disliked flowers. He took them for granted in gardens but never regarded them individually. Once on a visit to the Gardiner Museum he had found himself overwhelmed by the cinnerarias. Their very name put him off and their colors had faintly shocked him. He asked with some interest, "Why are they fun, particularly?"

"They are so secret. You can never fathom how they are made or how such intricate designs ever unfold properly. The laurel buds are shaped like tiny Chinese pagodas and when they open out into a cup the stamens are all attached to the rim, like the spokes of a midget wheel, and as fast as it they had been hand sewn. The buds of the fleur-de-lis look like the sharp points of purple crayons. When they come out, they are all rumpled so it is hard to tell the withered flowers from the new ones at first. Then suddenly there they are, perfectly open without a wrinkle. Apple blossoms are not like that. And lilies! There is no secret to the lilies, from the violent orange tigers to the waxen Madonnas. How natural is was to say 'Behold, the lilies . . .'"

"Perhaps that's why I never cared for them," said Furse with a smile. "Do you always interpret the parables in your own way like that?"

"I guess that's what they're for. Marvell thinks so."

"You're never bored, are you?" He turned his face fully to hers and he was charmed by the shape of it.

"Hardly." She nodded in Audrey's direction. "Girls, sometimes."

"Oh, people. You expect that. But not the rest . . . ?"

They were both silent but she felt she could have answered his question if he had completed it. It was, she thought happily, such an understanding, adult silence. I can finish his sentences and if my ideas are not quite the same, they are as good.

AN OPEN LETTER

WHY WE BUY ON THE HILLTOP

We live on the Hilltop. We are raising a family here. We go to church and our children go to school here so we feel we are a part of, and belong to, this fine community.

We've bucked the crowds and shopped the "downtown stores" only to find that practically all the merchandise sold there is also sold by the merchants in our own community—and often at lower prices.

We like the Hilltop business people — they're friendly. We find we're not just a number, maybe identified by a little metal plate like we put on Poochie's collar—we're just Joe and Helen at the Hilltop stores. Yes, and the owner of the store is Jack or Bill or Fred, 'cause we get to know him pretty well. We should, he lives just around the corner from us and our kids play with his kids.

They tell me that storeroom rents are a lot less out here than they are "downtown" so we got to wondering just who pays all that high rent and that's when we decided we always get the most for our money right out here on the Hilltop.

We feel that the Hilltop merchants have a different sort of pride, and put more personal interest, in their various places of business than we found elsewhere 'cause they always seem to make us feel that the few (or many) dollars that we spend with them are really appreciated. Courtesy seems to be a real part of every store and when a clerk, Sally or Frank or Mary says "thanks a lot Joe and Helen," we feel like saying "thanks," too, 'cause we feel it is really a privilege to know that we are a part of this fine Hilltop Community.

S. W. Jr. Rifle Club News

By V. A. Barbee

The Southwest Junior Rifle Club of Columbus now has 51 members. One-half of these have received preliminary instructions in firearms and Scout Merit Badge work.

The club will hold a general meeting of all members on Feb. 16 at 7:30 p. m. in the Burgess-av. United Brethren Church. Permanent junior officers will be elected and future plans discussed.

Lewis Blakley, a qualified rifle and pistol instructor, is now registered as co-instructor of the Club. Stan Hughes is also taking instructions to qualify as an assistant instructor.

I personally and for the members of the Club and their parents extend thanks to Sheriff Ralph Patl for the use of the range at the county jail.

The office of the director of civilian marksmanship has also approved application of this club for participation in ODCM benefits and assistance.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop 58 Has Open House

The first open house since the organization of Troop 58, Boy Scouts, was held Monday evening and was declared a success by all. This troop was organized last November with ten boys. It now has 17 members and five more working on tenderfoot requirements. Don Chesser, explorer scout, was master of ceremonies for the evening. The Apache patrol displayed a reflector oven, which they had made from a five-gallon oil can, and a patrol field kitchen.

The Eagle patrol had made corner what-not shelves. The Panther patrol presented the troop with an investiture candle log. Boys from the various patrols explained to the parents and friends what they had made and the use it would be put to.

Then there were rope tieing and low relay contests between the patrols.

Don Keller tied the ankle bandage on Bob Chesser. Clarinet duet by Ted Calvert and Charles Hannon, and a song by Mark Rector, Bill Brannon and John Edwards highlighted the evening. Skits put on by the three patrols caused a lot of amusement.

Those present included Rev. and Mrs. Paul D. Gordon, Mrs. Werner, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Matthews and son Sandy, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Baileys, Mr. Miller, Mrs. Rector, Mrs. Gue, Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Ruff, Mr. Hannon, Mrs. Nice, Mr. Colendine, Mrs. Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Chesser, Mr. and Mrs. Keller.

Boys present were, John Wolfe, Clare Baileys, Don Keller, Mark Rector, Ted Strohm, Charley Dailey, John Edwards, Bill Brannon, Don Chesser, Bob Chesser, Bob Doherty, David Gurley, Ted Calvert, Dave Randall, Charles Hannon, Jim Edwards, Charles Duff, Donald Miller, Bill Colendine, Jon Wakelyn and Billy Nice.

After a few words from the scoutmaster, Harry Keller, refreshments were served and the meeting was closed by everyone forming a circle and repeating the scoutmasters' benediction.

Cowboys Corral Clawless Panthers In 70-47 Fray

West High's Cowboys entered back into the City League championship race last Friday evening as they swamped a completely outclassed Linden McKinley five, 70-47, on the losers' floor.

Following an East loss to North's highly improved quintet, sandwiched with Central's upset of previously unbeaten South, the Cowboys, who seemingly every year produce a first-division team in standings of the City League, but seldom a first place, brought themselves right back into the loop race. The Cowboys' last City League championship season was in 1936-37.

After South dropped the game to Central Friday, most West followers began to think how much more the Cowboys could have been in the race had they not lost to North by that one-point margin last Tuesday. Their record at present is one win better than East, who holds down third spot.

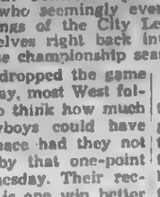
The Cowboys, at Linden, got off to a slow start, but once they started to find the range it was all West.

The Panthers, who started a sophomore team, jumped to a 4-0 margin lead on Bill Heiser's bunny and free throws by Bob Vannette and Harold Hines. However, Jerry Johnson hit a side set; Thrush a free throw; Young a hook and Frank Carson a side set to quickly put the Cowboys into a 7-4 lead. A few moments later, the ultimate losers tied the score at 8-all, but Johnson, Young and Thrush followed with three quick bunnies to provide the Cowboys with a 15-8 lead, and the period ended with Paul Martin, Linden sophomore just up from junior high, hitting on a long shot to give the Cowboys a convincing 15-10 margin.

From there on it was all West. It's pretty difficult to write home about much more, because the Cowboys were just too much for Linden. The Cowboys started hitting a good percentage of shots in those last three periods. West held convincing margins of 32-24 at the half and 52-36 in the third period.

Young, who has been hitting with accuracy and consistency all season was high scorer with 25 points. Bill Thrush, who is third in the City League individual scoring column, was runner-up to Young with 17 markers. Junior Jerry Johnson hit for 14 markers. Going into the fourth period, Young had 14 and Thrush had 17, but Young out-tallied Thrush, 11-0 in the final period.

Harold Hines, a junior from Linden, topped the Panthers with 10 points although playing only two quarters.



Johnny Rawn, Panther coach, told your reporter following the game: "I had to gamble sometime this season, and we figured that the West game would be the best chance. I have been hoping to give our boys some experience to build up a better squad for the next couple of years.

"West is one of the better teams in the City League, and they should be highly respected."

The Cowboys have three very tough assignments ahead of them for the rest of the City League play, with Central, South and East yet to be encountered. The Cowboys play host to Central tonight, play South at home Friday, and close their regular 1949-50 season a week from then at East.

If the Cowboys can slip past those three teams they will have an excellent chance to cinch at least second place in the league, in addition to having a slim chance of tying for the title.

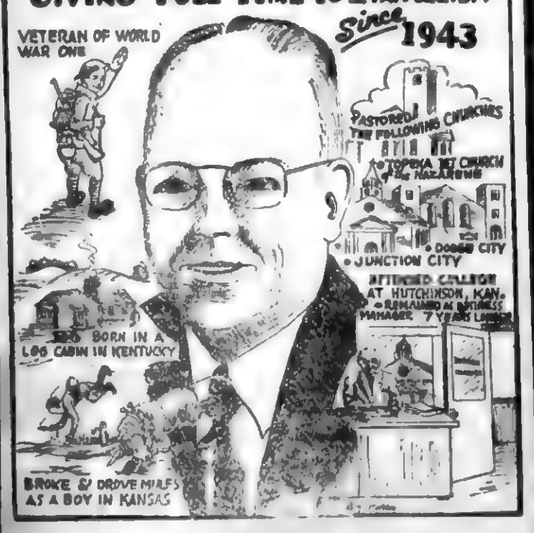
Cowboys Meet Central Quintet Here Tonight

By Dave Miller

West High's Cowboys will seek their seventh City League win this evening when they play host to Central's hot and cold cage quintet on the West court.



In this season's first round, Central topped the Cowboys, 59-41, with both teams tied at 39-all going into the final quarter. Central exploded with a barrage of points in those final eight minutes to blast the Cowboys right off the floor, outscoring them, 20-4 in the final quarter, that fact spelling the difference.

However, this round, it's different for two reasons. One is that West will hold the advantage of playing on their home court, and the other is, Central will be without two boys that played in that first round game, John Wolfe and John Shook, both guards who scored 19 points between them in the last West-Central fray, but who won't be around because of graduation.

However, no one should ever underestimate Central, whether it be in track, baseball or football. They're always a top notcher, and their win over previously unbeaten South last week is a good indication of how strong they are. Central owns a 5-4 City League mark as of the present while West holds down second place with a 6-3 record.

If the president and vice-president of the United States should both die, the Secretary of State, an unelected official, would succeed to the office.

Shooting For Tops

Young Within Five Points of Top Scorer

By Dave Miller

Phil Young, West High's high scoring pivotman, will without a doubt take over the City League individual scoring lead tonight when the Cowboys play host to a though Central five on the West court.

All Phil needs to do tonight is get five points and he will be the No. 1 scorer in the City League. South High's graduated center, Paul Ebert, is, at the present, leading the City League in scoring with 168 points, and Phil is close behind with 164. The third spot is held down by another West cager, blond guard Bill Thrush who, with Young, this season have definitely been a one-two punch that has knocked out nine opponents thus far this season in 17 outings.

Ebert, who graduated Jan. 25, scored 365 points in only 14 games (12 of which South won) on 133 field goals and 99 foul tosses. This breaks down to an average of 26 points per game. In six city league games Ebert tallied 168 points, which either oung or Thrush hope to pass tonight.

In all games, Young is runner-up in the Greater Columbus to Ebert with 291 points as compared to Ebert's 365. With only three games left for West, Young will have to average nearly 37 points a game to catch up with the stellar South center.

Here is Young's game by game box score:

Reserves Swamp Linden Seconds 39-31 Friday

By Dave Miller

West High's reserve squad ran over Linden-McKinley's seconds at Linden in the prelim to the varsity game last Friday evening, 39-31.

The final score may not indicate the way the Broncos were ahead all throughout the game. The score at the end of the third period was 35-19 in West's favor, and local mentor Fred Heishman substituted freely in the final period to keep the score down, and Linden made a delayed comeback in the final quarter.

The locals started out slow with Linden doing much better in the opening period, and the score was a mere 10-5 lead at the end of the period.

Jerry Trabue of West and Linden's Don Parlette exchanged tip-in's and Ted Fladt of West chimed in with four quick tallies to "up" the Bronco' lead to 6-2. Linden's pint-sized guard Bill Clay exchanged side set shots with West's Bill South, and after a free throw apiece by the same boys a few moments later, the first quarter ended in a 10-5 West lead.

West outscored Linden, 13-8 in the second period with Russ Friend, Ted Fladt and Jerry Trabue pacing the way in the quarter. The junior Cowboys found themselves in a comfortable 23-13 cushioned-lead at halftime.

Things began at about the same tempo in the third quarter, with the Cowboys again outscoring the host five 12-6, West holding a 35-19 lead at the third period's end.

At this point, West Coach, Fred Heishman, inserted a whole new team in the fourth period, and the starting team spent the rest of the game on the bench. It was then Linden's turn to outscore its opponents, and did quite a neat job of things by the end of the game. West scored only four while Linden scored 12. For the whole game, West hit 13 of 46 shots while Linden meshed the nets 11 out of 38 tries.

Ted Fladt, West Center, although playing only three quarters, topped the individual scorers with 12, with Jerry Trabue getting 10, and Linden's Bob George and Bill Clay tied for third with seven points apiece.

in the rear of Sellier's. Police believe the trio of burglars fled across the roof, broke out a window in an adjoining empty apartment at 2402½ W. Broad-st, and fled down a back stairway.

Hides In Basement

Apparently one of the trio sought refuge in the basement of the home of Marion Jones, 39 N. Wayne-av. Jones went into his backyard, which is near the scene of the shooting, to investigate the gunfire.

His wife, Jane, came to the back door to tell him someone was in their basement. At that minute a man bolted out of the Jones' basement door, jammed a gun into Jones' stomach, and barked: "Get!"

The Joneses retreated into the house and the gunman fled.

When you are buying an electric iron, try it for weight. An iron weighing no more than four pounds saves energy in use.

Household Hint

You will get best results when washing rayons if you use soft water. Hard water contains minerals which form curds when combined with soap. These curds retain soil and cover the fabric, giving it a grayed appearance. If the water in your locality is hard, add a good water softener before you place your garments in the wash. Detergents have a water softening effect, too.

Secret Of Growing Old Gracefully Is Work

We recently received a copy of a Daytona Beach, Fla., paper containing a story of an honor bestowed upon four old timers of the community, well past the age of 80.

They were asked the secret of their growing old so gracefully and in each instance they replied that it was due to "work". They had gained fame and wealth in their respective fields but had continued to be active in doing good.

One member of the group had recently contributed $100,000 toward the fine new building of the Daytona YMCA. He had lived to see the building in use and he so stated his extreme satisfaction of being able to do things while he was living.

Last week the second annual meeting of the Hilltop YMCA was held. Reports of the progress of the organization show that the Y idea has definitely "caught on" here in this community. There is an increased "oneness" of purpose behind this project that will provide untold services to a wider cross section of people than any other group can provide.

There is need of a building for this Hilltop YMCA. The program is being carried on in church and school facilities but the big good that can be done will come with a new building.

The Hilltop Y has a small nest egg of nearly $4500 in a building fund. Each year it grows a little. But it needs a big shot in the arm . . . it needs some help from people who are financially able to contribute large amounts.

Aren't there people in this community who have money they could spare, who could get the same satisfaction of growing old gractfully while they see the good work they are doing for others by contributing to this project?

A $248,000 bond issue for a new Prairie Twp. district school was passed by voters by a four to one majority, 421-106, Tuesday. The money from the bond issue will be added to $231,000 voted for the school in 1946.

The present appropriations are for 12 elementary classrooms and a large gymnasium. Future plans call for a high school wing to be added to the building. The school will be situated on Norton-rd, just south of W. Broad-st.

Church Recalls Rev. Anthony For 3-Year Term

Rev. Harris B. Anthony

At a meeting of the members of the Warren Avenue Church of the Nazarene, held last Sunday morning, Rev. Harris B. Anthony was recalled as pastor for another three years. This is the fifth three-year recall Rev. Anthony has received since coming to the church in 1937.

Rev. Anthony was born in Kennetcook, Nova Scotia, Canada. At the age of 18 he went to Saskatchewan, where he taught in the public schools for five years.

After receiving a call to the ministry, he went to Nampa, Idaho, where, after attending Northwest Nazarene College for two years, he obtained his bachelor of arts degree. He spent one year as principal of the high school there and then went to Boston, where he took post-graduate work at Boston University.

Upon completion of his work at the University of Boston, he became pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene in New Haven, Conn., leaving there at the end of two years to assume the pastorate of the First Church of the Nazarene in Manchester, Conn. During his seven years stay in Manchester, a new church building was erected and the membership almost doubled.

In September, 1937, Rev. Anthony was called as pastor of the Warren Avenue Church of the Nazarene, 648 S. Warren-av. Under his ministry 616 members have been received into the church, a mortgage of approximately $5,000 has been paid, and the yearly income of the local church has increased from $6,036 in 1937 to more than $46,000 in 1949. The church is now in a building program, a new brick parsonage having been completed last year, and with plans now being made to start a new church edifice this year. Over $100,000 in cash has already been raised toward this building program.

HBA Holds School Night Meeting

It was "School Night" Tuesday evening at the meeting of the Hilltop Business Association at Westgate Methodist Church provided by the reception committee.

N. G. Fawcett, superintendent of Columbus Public Schools, was the speaker and outlined the many needs of the Columbus school system, including attention to improved teaching salaries, more attention to handicapped children and widespread need of new buildings throughout the city.

With all the needs of the schools there is only about half the money necessary to do the job now available, he said. A survey has recently been made of the city growth and when the results of the survey are compiled the board will be in a position to determine what sections should have priorities.

He pointed out that Highland Avenue School is next on the list for a complete rehabilitation.

In answer to the question as to what might be done to provide relief at the West Mound Street School he stated that if the survey showed the need the building would be provided if the money could be raised by bond issue.

Membership was voted to Jerry Spears, Jr., and Ben Knepper of Spears Funeral Home, Abbott Laundry and Dry Cleaning and Mayers Confectionery.

Presidents of the Hilltop Parent-Teacher Associations were guests of the association. Musical entertainment was provided by students of West High under the direction of Mrs. Edith White.

HBA OFFICE 'INDEFINITE'

Ed Witherspoon, president of the Hilltop Business Association, said today that no definite plans have been made for hiring a full time secretary or obtaining a permanent office for the association. He said that the matter would be discussed at the next board meeting.

544 Persons Checked In Hilliards TB X-Ray Survey

Members of the Hilliards Mothers' Club and the Hilliards community and school chest X-ray committees were congratulated today by the Columbus Tuberculosis Society on "one of the finest community and school surveys ever conducted" by the society.

A total of 544 high school students, personnel and faculty, and residents of Hilliards were given free chest X-ray by the society on Feb. 9 and 10 at Hilliards High School. Participation by high school students and faculty and personnel of both high and elementary schools was 100 per cent.

The number of persons surveyed per hour was greater than at any community survey conducted by the society during 1949. Fifteen community surveys were effected last year. The Hilliards survey was the first community survey on the 1950 schedule. Cost of the X-rays was borne by receipts from the Christmas seal sale.

The community survey was sponsored by the Mothers' Club, with Mrs. Virgil Hart as chairman. Superintendent of Schools Millard D. Hartsook was in charge of the school survey. The project was launched in December, when literature was circulated to each family with children in the elementary school. Mrs. Howard Durban, as a one-woman telephone committee, contacted many other families. Through excellent committee cooperation, posters were distributed throughout businesses, churches and public buildings.

A novel feature of the school survey made high school students responsible for clerical detail and hostessing. Assisting were Dorothy Salzgaber and Anna McDaniel.

Working as hostesses and clerks on the community survey were Mrs. Millard D. Hartsook, Mrs. Frances Connor, Mrs. C. H. Brown and Mrs. Hart. Members of the committee were Mrs. Hart, Mrs. Brown, Mr. Hartsook, Mrs. John Yore, Mrs. Henry Burbridge and Mrs. Harold Graumlich.

Results of the survey, which are confidential, were mailed directly to X-ray recipients.

Although 1950 is in every other way only "the year of the half-century," Hilltoppers will be both proud and pleased to learn that the twenty-first annual Hilltop Minstrel Show, scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Apr. 12, 13 and 14 in the West High School auditorium, will be the "Show of the Century".

This was announced yesterday by Lee Koontz, director of this year's minstrel, who said that the two-hour long variety show will be "the biggest, the best, the most lavish and most memorable entertainment event ever staged on the Hilltop."

Franklin Sparks is chairman of the Minstrel Committee of the Hilltop Business Association.

Tentative theme for the 1950 extravaganza is "The Dollmaker's Dream". Director Koontz stated, which means that possibly as many as 12 variety acts will be auditioned and given spots in the show as it is developed around this idea. Interlocutor will be Floyd Green and publicity chairman for the minstrel is Sam Alford.

The annual minstrel show, which has come to be regarded as a springtime institution not only on the Hilltop but throughout the city as well, had its beginning in 1929 and has been held every year since. Only requirement of participants is that they must be residents of the Hilltop, which means they must live in the area west of Central-av out as far as Rome. There is no age limit and any type of act is welcome, including vocal solos or group numbers, comedy or dance routines, juggling or acrobatic stunts, and instrumental music selections.

The show is held in the auditorium at West High School, which seats 1481 persons. Consequently, with performances scheduled for three days, some 4443 tickets are available. Even so, the Hilltop Minstrel Show has almost invariably played to a full house.

Featured choral group this year will be the West High School Chorus, directed by Mrs. Edith White. "Pit" orchestra will be the band of "Mac" Tooill.

Persons or groups desiring to take part in the show should clip the coupon at the bottom of this page and mail it to 2465 W. Broad-st immediately. Director Lee Koontz said yesterday that the deadline for receiving applications for try-outs will be Mar. 11, with the audition itself tentatively scheduled for Sunday, Mar. 12. The place will be announced later.

Lee Koontz is no newcomer to the minstrel business. He was a participant in the first Hilltop Minstrel Show at the age of 18 with a dance routine and a skit with Bob Paul, who now lives in Mansfield. After that, he was absent from the show here while he traveled throughout the United States and in Canada, Bermuda, Mexico, Germany, Czechoslovakia, France and England in various shows and vaudeville acts. He rejoined the local aggregation

Reiss Challenges Koontz to Debate On Utility Rates

Emile Reiss, former Hilltopper and candidate for mayor, has challenged City Council President Henry A. Koontz, 485 Hillonia-av, to a public debate on the bus fare and electric rate issues.

Reiss said today, "The citizens were not given a square deal when asked to vote on the phoney ordinances in the last election, and if Koontz refuses to meet me in public debate I will recognize it as his acknowledgement that the public has been treated unfairly and unjustly in the public utilities matter."

The "Reiss for Mayor Committee" will hold its first meeting Feb. 24 at 8 p. m. in the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

Magician To Entertain Lions

Blair Strawser

Strawser, an amateur magician, is a funeral director at Blue Ash. He was recently appointed to the Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors of Ohio by Governor Lausche.

Jerry Spears, Sr., will introduce the sleight-of-hand artist.

Miss Warren Weds Paul W. Devine In St. Aloysius Church

Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Devine

On Jan. 14 in St. Aloysius Church, Rev. William Maloney officiated at the single ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Betty J. Warren and Paul W. Devine. The ceremony was performed before altars decorated with baskets of white mums and greenery. The Children's Choir sang mass concluding with "On This Day, Oh Beautiful Mother."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. George P. Georgiton, 272 N. Ogden-av, wore a dress of silver brocaded white satin, with a full double net overskirt. The gown had a molded bodice with boat shaped neckline and short cap sleeves, with which she wore long lace gauntlets; a satin band entwined with pearls held in place her fingertip veil of French illusion. She carried a white prayer book topped with a purple throated orchid. At her throat she wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Richard Bradnor of Fostoria, the bride's only attendant, wore claret satin designed with scalloped neckline, and short cap sleeves. Her gray hat was accented with silver mesh and was repeated in her mesh mitts. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow roses tied with silver.

James Devine of Marysville, O., was best man for his brother. Ushers were John Devine of Marysville, and Wallace Warren of Tiffin.

The bride's mother was attired in a two-piece dress of brown with rust accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a brown ensemble. Both wore white carnation corsages.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Georgiton, 272 N. Ogden-av, after the ceremony. A three-tiered wedding cake was topped with miniature bride and groom amid a setting of roses and greenery. At each end of the table were tapers in crystal holders. Mrs. Daniel Warren and Mrs. Frank Clapp assisted the hostess in serving.

The couple left for a trip in the East, and is now residing in Tiffin. For traveling, the bride chose a suit of a burgundy tone with green accessories. She wore an orchid corsage.

The bride graduated from Columbian High School in Tiffin, and attended Heidelberg College. She has been residing at the home of her sister, Mrs. Georgiton, 272 N. Ogden-av.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Heidelberg College where he was prominent in sports. He also is a graduate of Marysville High School and a veteran of three years army service. He is employed by the O. M. Scott Seed Company of Marysville.

Among out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Wise, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Warren, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Warren, Tiffin; Mr. and Mrs. Luther Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Burbe and daughter, Mrs. Frank Clapp, and Mrs. John Cox of Indianapolis, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bradnor of Fostoria, Mr. and Mrs. John Devine, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Ell, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Ell, Miss Mamie Krehs, Mrs. Katherine Hareck, Joseph Foley and Mrs. August Vollrath of Marysville.

Ask Rejection Of Hoover Comm. Vet Proposals

Camp Chase Post No. 98 of the American Legion adopted a resolution at its regular meeting Feb. 3, urging the Congress of the United States to "reject all proposals resulting from the Hoover commission reports which deal with veterans until such time as careful study can be given them and persons experienced in veterans' affairs can be heard."

The resolution further stated that Camp Chase disapproves entirely of "those parts of the Hover report which would dismember the Veterans' Administration" and directed that copies of the protesting resolution be sent to the two U.S. Senators from Ohio, the 12th District Congressman and the congressman-at-large from Ohio.

Camp Chase Post based its opposition to the report on the grounds that recommendations contained in it were not economical because they would call for the creation of five or more new bureaus to perform tasks now handled by the Veterans' Administration.

Prairie Twp. Man Convicted In Zoning Case

The first conviction for violation of Franklin County's rural zoning law was reported Wednesday by O. C. Miller, county building inspector.

Miller, chief enforcement officer of the zoning code adopted in the November, 1949, election, announced a $50 fine had been imposed on Ora C. Truitt, owner of seven acres at 4914 W. Broad-st, in Prairie Twp.

Truitt was accused in an affidavit, signed by Assistant Inspector Eber Neds, of storing used automobiles on his land which is zoned for residential and farm use.

Justice of Peace Clyde E. Wyker found Truitt guilty of using the land for industrial purposes and imposed the penalty, with the provision that $40 would be remitted if the automobiles, all in running shape, were moved within 10 days.

Justice Wyker also said fines would be imposed for each additional day the cars remained after the deadline.

West Teacher Is Candidate For Ohio HR Nomination

By Myron Seifert

George V. Wing, popular West High teacher, last week filed with the county board of election his candidacy, on the Republican ticket, for the post of member of the Ohio House of Representatives, subject to the approval of the Franklin County electorate in the May 2 primaries.

In a dual role as mayor of Worthington and counselor of boys enrolled in West Junior High School, George Wing conducts both offices to the satisfaction of the public that he serves.

Officially, his duties at the Hilltop school are limited to checking boys' attendance; however, for all practical purposes, his sympathetic understanding of youth and its problems is basically followed in many other areas. He is a helpful hand to the boy in trouble, and an adviser to the boy in any and all situations.

Problems of youth are many. Everything from ripped trousers to major accidents come to Mr. Wing's attention and are promptly taken care of.

Stolen or lost property is reported and returned to the rightful owner, whenever possible, Mr. Wing advised.

High school infatuations come in for their share of attention and

George V. Wing

Mr. Wing keeps much in confidence that students tell him. Like the father that he is (one daughter, one son) Mr. Wing counsels "the men of tomorrow" in an understanding way.

A typical daily schedule of trouble-shooting would show that never a dull moment is possible in his world.

A recital of activities, in addition to those already enumerated, might include becoming an expert locksmith in removing jammed locks from corridor lockers; explaining school program schedules, particularly to new pupils; "drying" the students out who have wet shoes or clothing; passing on excuses for students who are tardy to school (These vary from impossible humorous explanations for irregularity in attendance to more plausible and serious ones.)

Other duties include talking to the parents, via phone or in person, about a multiplicity of problems affecting the students' welfare; conferring with the visiting teacher about chance absences; treating minor cuts or abrasions, and taking indisposed or ill students to their homes or to a doctor's office; following consultation with parents, accounting for students' sometimes unexplained absence; detaining boys and girls after school hours for infraction of rules or chronic tardiness; dispensing lunch permits for students to go home; getting homework assignments for pupils who are confined to their homes, and a host of other details.

For diversion, he likes photography. Along with his photographic hobby, his duties as mayor of the village of Worthington provide many interesting experiences.

In addition to the routine business of attending to the affairs of the village, the court work (which automatically comes with election as mayor) he is on call any hour of the night to hear the case of a flagrant traffic violator or commit to jail an unruly character in an inebriated condition, or play "nursemaid" to the injured feelings of some individual who got the worst end of an argument, as he changes from an "I'll sue him for assault and battery" attitude to "I'm sorry, pal. Let's shake hands and make up."

Meanwhile, the mayor and marshal keep props under their eyelids, wondering how soon they can return to the warm bed they so regretfully left — all in the name of justice.

"Putting all jokes aside, the function of the small court in hearing misdemeanors relieves the county courts for more important work," Mr. Wing said.

So "His Honor" serves as a clearing-house for both West High and the municipality of Worthington—a dual honor and paradoxically singular jobs.

Aristides won the first Kentucky Derby in 1875.

Lavcsir is called the "founder of modern chemistry."

Wins Bicycle In Pretzel Guessing Contest

WILLIAM A. DISTELHORST, Hilliards, is pictured with the bicycle he won in a contest at the Sparks-Kent Supermarket. The contest, sponsored by the Buckeye Potato Chip Co., was a pretzel guessing contest. Distelhorst guessed 1200, the correct answer was 1236., Distelhorst says he has a grandchild old enough to use the bike.

A MUSICAL VERSION OF THE CINDERELLA STORY, written and produced by Ohio Wesleyan University faculty members and students under the title, "The Magic Slipper," will be held at West High School on Friday, Feb. 24, at 8:45 p. m., for the Community Junior Theater.

Prof. Tilden Wells, of the music department, and Prof. William Denford, of the speech department, developed the dialogue, and Paul Koch, an advanced student in music, composed the music. Special scenery has been designed by Donna Eyssen, a junior art major.

The play is directed by Professor Danford, and assisting him is a junior, Jo Ann Peters.

The cast of "The Magic Slipper" includes Mary Jo Dawson as Cinderella, Morris Patton as the prince, Harriet Lord as the fairy godmother, Vivian Culbertson as the stepmother, Ruth Carson and Carole Cassady as the sister Hortense and Millicent, Jack Roby and Dwight Way as the [illegible], and Catherine Burden as Pip.

Edward Patterson, 114 N. Wayne-av, Hilliards, master of Hilliards Subordinate Grange, today announced a nation-wide essay contest on "Soil Fertility and the Nation's Future" will be conducted by The National Grange and American Plant Food Council, beginning Feb. 1 and ending April 15, with state and national prizes totaling $10,000 for young men and women through 20 years of age.

"All young men and women, regardless of Grange membership, who are not more than 20 years of age on April [illegible], are eligible to compete for prizes," Patterson explained, "and all entries in this area should be sent to Hilliards Subordinate Grange at Hilliards, Ohio, for processing not later than [illegible], 1950."

Undersecretary of Agriculture A. J. Loveland, chairman of the national board of judges; Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, chief, Soil Conservation Service, USDA; Lois Clark, assistant director, Division of Rural Education Services, National Education Association; Dr. W. T. Spanton, Chief, Agricultural Education Service, U. S. Office of Education, and Dr. M. L. Wilson, director of Extension Service, USDA.

The following national and state prizes are offered to the winners:

National — First prize, $1,000; second prize, $500; third prize, $400; fourth prize, $300; fifth prize $300, and sixth prize, $300.

State — First prize; $100; second, $50, and third prize, $25.

Contest judges explained that each entrant's essay "may be based upon data from text books, bulletins, interviews or personal experience," but expressed the hope that all entrants "would give special consideration to the practical application of the subject to the soils of their communities."

Entries must not exceed 800 words and will be judged on the basis of 65 points for effectiveness, 20 points for originality, 10 points for practical application of subject matter and 10 points for grammatical correctness.

For the purpose of the contest, the states have been divided into six regions and winners of each region will compete for the six national awards.

Hilliards Legion Post To Present Minstrel Show

A black-face minstrel show entitled "A Nite in Dixie", will be presented Friday at 8:30 p. m. in the Hilliards High School auditorium featuring the band and members of the Hilliards Post of the American Legion.

The Legion Band will be conducted by Paul Kindinger, music instructor at the Hilliards Schools, and will "don the dark grease paint" for the occasion.

Herb Pumphry, the able "Mr. Interlocutor," will have his hands full with the antics of the end men, Ralph Green, Carl Smith, Lowell Van Schoick, and Richard Shonkwiler, who claim their jokes have been humorized, legionized and minstrelized.

The line of "Dancing Girls" will probably be ostracized if the [illegible] rehearsals are any indication of the final product.

The traditional, "Gentlemen, Be Seated" is expected to open an enjoyable evening of band music as well as open a night of legion antics.

Scout Troop 45 of WHS Is One of Hilltop's Oldest

By Myron T. Seifert

Hilltop's Boy Scout Troop 45, one of the oldest in the city, is steeped in history and tradition and boasts a host of illustrious alumni and scout officials, many of whom have made their marks as useful citizens.

Scouting gave many of these their chances, and added impetus and encouragement to boys who later applied the principles learned in scouting to their lives in a wide variety of occupations.

A recital of many of the names reads like a 1949 "Who's Who" edition of boys—now men—who have achieved many worthwhile accomplishments.

Many you'll recognize by virtue of their excellent work on the Hilltop since their scouting days.

These men owe much to Troop 45: John Wolfe, former Hilltop Record editor, now on the teaching staff at Ohio State University; Frank Andrix, research engineer with the Bell Airplane Co., New York; Drs. Jack and Beryl Miles, local physicians; James Matheny, sales manager for the Hutchins Motor Co.; Rollin Eckart, head of physical education and health at Cortland, N. Y., Teachers' College; Dale Jenkins, government research worker in biology; Ralph Harper, West Point graduate, who was killed in the Battle of the Bulge in World War II; Sam Alford, manager of the Hilltop Thrift Finance Co.; Tom Rausch, hardware merchant; Curtiss Allen, Hilltop photographer and portrait artist; Roy Krause with the Hilltop Post Office; Marvin Elliot, identified with the Veterans Administration; Dick and Jim Slager, football "greats", at Ohio State University; Gerald Gefford and Jack Morris, post-graduate students at Ohio State; Dr. Fred March, optometrist; brothers, Bill, George and Dave West, in construction work; Dave Randall, West High social science teacher; Sam Snashall, druggist; Howard Monroe, in industry; Bill Maurer, Lustron engineer; Roy Anderson, Hilltop Post Office; Buel Lorenz (deceased); Charles and John Holloway and many others.

Al Elliott, scoutmaster of the troop from 1924 to 1936 and at present on the West High School faculty, avers that the 12 years spent with these boys, who are now making their marks in the world, was reward enough.

Scoutmasters of the celebrated troop included George Heitz, West High teacher, Frank Mason, Highland Avenue school principal, and Sam Morrison, with Fort Hayes. Present master is Frank Tallman, a former member of Troop 45, who has risen from the ranks to his present post.

One of the projects, begun in 1934, was engineered by personnel connected with Troop No. 45.

It was the purchase of an appropriate building site and the construction of a cabin on the plot, in southern Ohio, near the Boys' Industrial School, an institution in sharp contrast to the Boy Scout program.

Originally financed by six scout officials of Troop 45, George Heitz, Frank Andrix, Ray Gaill, Sam Morrison and Al Elliott, the boys worked hard to pay off the original six proprietors in war bonds.

The cabin itself is a structure approximately 24 by 40 feet and was completed in 1938. Two acres of land were added, bought from the adjoining Ben Borchar farm.

Scarcely a week-end since its construction has the building not been used by the boys and their scout officials.

Jim Brown and Carl Glade, all former members of Troop 45 at West Junior High School.

They told of their varying experiences as young boys, how their mountain size problems as youngsters were ironed out, how they built self-confidence, how they were given a chance to assume responsibility, how they developed physically, how their viewpoints were changed, how they learned to get along with people, how they even then began to think about the work they wanted to take up as adults.

Each young man served with Uncle Sam during the war, each in a different service, each having different experiences, but each related how he had been able to utilize the fine training received as a Scout.

Each in turn reiterated that adults today can be helpful to other Boy Scouts by giving them opportunities, by offering their services as leaders, by being respectable citizens that the young men of today may look up to.

It was a fine program and we couldn't help but feel the pride that certainly comes to fellows like Al Elliott, George Heitz and Sam Morrison as they listen to the experiences of their former students and friends.

"Mush," the Alaskan term, is a contraction of the French "marchons" meaning to go on.

Coming of Spring Once Meant Floods And Suffering To Residents of West Side

By Myron T. Seifert

(Editor's Note: Spring on the West Side used to be marked by the advent of almost yearly floods. Before the city took steps to protect residents living near the Scioto River, loss of human lives and homes was not uncommon.

Following is a chronological record of floods experienced in Columbus and the extent of their severity.)

The first recorded flood of the Scioto occurred when the original town of Franklinton was only a few months old. Lucas Sullivant, in August, 1797, had laid out the settlement just south of the forks of the Scioto and Whetstone (Olentangy) Rivers, where Spring and Mill-sts intersect today. The next spring the site was flooded so the village was moved to higher ground a short distance south.

The first disastrous flood occurred in February, 1832, and in July, 1834, a sudden rise carried away the temporary National Road bridge at Broad-st. The flood of 1847 was far worse than all previous ones. Business houses along the river front stood five feet deep in water.

Other floods came in 1852, 1859, 1860 and 1862, but the flood of 1847 held the record until September, 1866, when the river rose 12 feet in as many hours and kept on rising, driving people from their homes with scant warning and doing much property damage.

In March, 1868, the river rose 15 feet. Inundations of the West Side came again in 1869, 1870, 1875, 1881 and 1883, the latter flood establishing a record that exceeded the high marks of 1847 and 1866.

This high-water mark stood until 1898, when the people, for years relieved of worry, did not regard the rising waters with alarm until they suddenly broke through the levee and flooded the lower portions of the West Side with from three to 10 feet of water. So promptly was rescue work organized and so efficiently was the work carried on that thousands of persons were removed from their homes in boats without the loss of life. But property loss was high.

After this experience the West Side started work on levees. Banks of earth served this purpose with varying degrees of success, until 1913, when the most disastrous flood in the history of the state brought death and destruction to the city.

Thirty-two hundred houses were flooded, many of them above the second floor; 20,000 persons were rendered temporarily homeless and 380 houses were entirely swept away. Ninety-four persons lost their lives.

Bridges at Broad, State and Town-sts were swept away, leaving the old Rich-st bridge, which had been condemned 15 years before, the only city bridge across the river.

As soon as possible after this calamity, the city took steps to protect itself against a recurrence. Experts were employed to work out a plan for flood protection and a bond issue of $3,500,000 was appropriated to restore bridges, deepen and widen the channel and build levees to keep future high waters within bounds.

The election of officers will be held at the party to be held Monday, Feb. 20, at the VFW Hall, W. Broad-st and Wayne-av. All club members, booth workers and their families have been invited.

VET BANQUET PLANNED

Rainbow veterans of Columbus and vicinity are invited to the February banquet in the Chittenden Hotel, Saturday at 6 p. m. Colonel Carlton M. Clifford, U. S. Army Depot, Columbus, will be the principal speaker. Harry Hunter, 539 Columbian-av, is the chairman in charge of the event.

HERE COMES CENSUS TAKER!

This chart shows the amazing growth of Uncle Sam since 1790.

By JOHN JOFFE
Census Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — When Uncle Sam's census taker rings your doorbell some time between April 1st and 15th, he will push the button firmly with a mandate stemming directly from the Constitution of the United States.

One paragraph of that respected document ordains a national census every 10 years, mainly for the purpose of reapportioning membership in the House of Representatives. In addition to this all-powerful fountainhead, the 1950 census has behind it a precedent now 160 years old.

The citizen, therefore, has no legal escape from co-operation with the census gatherer, but for other human reasons, he should perform his simple duty with good grace.

In part, this means not wasting the time of the men and women behind the questionnaire. They get paid according to the number of persons they interview.

At best they can only earn eight to nine dollars a day. Furthermore, their job lasts but two weeks.

Even with this modest remuneration for the quizzers who offer no prizes for the right answers, Uncle Sam's 17th decennial counting of noses will cost every person in the United States well over twenty-five cents of tax-paid money.

GOVERNMENTAL questioning came cheaper when the initial census was taken in 1790. To count the mere 3,929,214 Americans of that early year, our infant government laid out but $44,000, or only 1.12 pennies per capita.

By 1930, however, more than $25,000,000 was expended so that we might boast for the first time of being a nation of over one hundred million, or 105,710,620 by actual record.

Although we all are now deemed free and equal by the Constitution which commands this 17th census, every American will not receive equal treatment.

This year the census bureau introduces a chance element in that every fifth person will be queried about personal income. He may elect to answer then and there or else mail the information in secret to the census bureau.

Failure to respond or to make truthful replies involves fines up to $500 or imprisonment up to one year.

In other ways scattered Americans will receive unequal treatment. For instance, the average city dweller will come off easier than the farmer in the 1950 questionnaires.

He will be called upon to answer between 19 and 33 questions. The farmer, on the other hand, will face an additional 37 on such distinctly rural items as crops, machinery, property, irrigation and drainage, about which Uncle Sam is highly curious.

WHILE he is at this stupendous task, Uncle Sam will use the opportunity to inventory other material factors as well as men, women and children.

Our bathing equipment, toilet facilities, consumption of gas and electricity, and even our mortages, will be toted up.

Current census forms likewise reflect the change in home entertainment. In 1940 the census taken asked about radio sets. In 1950 it will introduce television for the first time into this inclusive what's what in America.

One census taker for every 1,000 citizens will work heavily-populated areas like that of metropolitan New York City, and northern New Jersey.

The results of this colossal counting will not be published in officially tabulated shape for two years, but in the interim, local figures are promised for release about June 30th.

Around Dec. 1 of this year the census bureau will place on President Truman's desk a comprehensive and official report on how far we have grown beyond our 1940 population of 131,669,275.

'Y' Girls, Glenwood Hot Shots Win In Girls' League

The Glenwood Hot Shots and the Hilltop YMCA basketball teams continued their winning ways in the Girls' Intermediate Basketball League, last Saturday afternoon at the Glenwood Recreation Center. The Hot Shots, coached by Pat Matthews, were just luke warm in the first half, scoring only six points, but turned on the heat in the second half and scored 12 points, holding the Burgess Avenue EUB girls to one point. The Burgess team could score only two points in the first half, those coming by a basket by Ambrosia Smith of the Hot Shots. She scorched the nets for 12 points, to be the leading scorer of the game The score by quarters:

Hot Shots	4	6	12	18
Burgess	2	1	2	3

The Hilltop YMCA girls were pushed to the limit to eke out a victory over the Glenwood Basketeers. It was a very close game all the way. The "Y" team picked up a two point lead in the first quarter and never relinquished it. The second quarter was played on even terms with both teams getting six points. In the third quarter the "Y" team managed to make it a four point lead. But the Basketeers were not through as they played hard to overcome that margin. They managed to pick up one of these four points, but the time ran out with the final score of 20 to 17.

Blackburn of the Basketeers was high scorer for the game with a total of nine points. Close behind with eight points was Wesley of the YMCA team. Shroyer of the YMCA team and Conrad of the Basketeers followed closely with six points each. The score by quarters:

Hilltop YMCA	6	12	16	20
Basketeers	4	10	12	17

The league leader for both games was Shirley Sells.

The League standing to date is as follows:

	W	L
Burgess EUB	1	1
Church of Christ	0	1
Basketeers	0	2

The schedule for Saturday, Feb. 25: Basketeers vs. Church of Christ at 2 p. m.; YMCA vs. Hot Shots, 3 p. m. Burgess Avenue EUB drew the bye for this week.

The Girls' Intermediate League is sponsored by the City Recreation Department and supervised by Pat Mathews of the Glenwood Recreation Center and Jack Downing of the Hilltop YMCA.

The Low Down On High Ridgers

By One of Them

MRS. GUS BLAKELY had a lot of glass to pick up after RUTHIE fell with three milk bottles. Good thing they were empty ones. Her milk bill is plenty high as it is. Of course we're glad RUTHIE didn't get hurt.

The PAUL CAMPBELLS had visitors from Jackson, O. MR. AND MRS. TOM PETERS were here for the week-end. THELMA and the Missus reminisced most of the time. They grew up together, went to school together, and now they're watching their families grow up.

JOE ROBINE was glad to see his dad from Pennsylvania. JACOB (SAM) ROBINE dropped in on a surprise visit for several days.

JIM BAKER'S wife had a son. Wonder what they've named him. Haven't heard as yet.

MRS. LEO MASTBAUM modeled at a style show and card party yesterday. She loves to do this type of work.

Pop! went the popcorn popper. Pop went a kernel out of the kettle when POP lifted the lid. Yep, POP SAUNDERS is recovering from a burnt eyelid. He singed an eyelash—the fourth from the end.

Speaking of recoveries — ESTHER CORDRAY is recovering from an auto accident; and LOREN HIGHFILL has returned to work after knitting his hip back into place. Didn't know he knew how to use the needles.

Glad to hear about our new neighbors moving in—the BURKSHEIMERS on Wrexham-av. They started right in redecorating their basement.

It broke her heart after EVELYN SMYTHE spoiled her fingernail. She had just had her nails manicured at the beauty shoppe and came home to peel potatoes, and her knife slipped and clipped her nail. Tch, tch. She had to patch it up herself, so the next time she's decided to do her own.

So many residents on Wrexham-av received anonymous valentines. You know, those large penny ones that are sold. Some of them are really humdingers. I've often wished I had the nerve to buy some and distribute them. Some hit the nail right on the head.

Buccaneers Topple Cowboy Five 60-50 Tuesday Night

A fast, aggressive Pirate five stayed in the winning column last night, beating West's Cowboys 60-50 Tuesday night on the West court. The loss knocked the West team out of any chance at a tie for city league honors. The victory came less than a week after the Pirates had toppled South's bulldogs in the South Siders' first defeat of the season in league play.

Although they had little else to shout about, West fans were able to find some consolation in a 20-point outburst by rapid-firing Bill Thrush. The blond ace's spree boosted him into the lead in the league's individual scoring race with a 175 total, passing up the 168 of South's Paul Ebert.

Thrush's usually high-scoring partner, Phil Young, playing despite the handicap of a badly-sprained ankle, managed to net only five markers, but they, too, were good enough for a one-point edge over the ex-Bulldog star at 169.

The game itself wasn't much of a contest at any time after late in the first period, although there were plenty of ragged edges on both sides throughout the melee.

Central also grabbed the reserve game, 35-25.

West Juniors Beat Mound 34-29 Friday

By Dave Miller

West Junior's basketball quintet took their sixth win in eight outings thus far this season by trouncing an outclassed Mound Junior five by the score of 34 to 29 on the West court last Friday afternoon.

Paced again by their high-scoring center, Bob Thornton, who is the third highest scorer in the league, the Juniors led most of the way with the exception of a few minutes in the first and second periods.

Thornton topped the individual scorers with 12 points, with Guards Jim Kimball and Bill Haire playing their usual brilliant game. Forwards Roger Meyer and Dick Hutchison chimed in with 12 points between them and did a neat job of rebounding. Meyer, who now has scored seven points in each of his last two frays, has been coming along with unerring accuracy in his recent games. The big forward missed but five shots in the recent Mound fray, after missing only three shots at Roosevelt the previous Tuesday in the Broncos' 38 to 30 win of the South End school.

In the Mound fray, West jumped to a quick 4-0 lead early in the opening quarter on hooks by Meyer and Thornton, and after a couple of Mound flubs, the locals came back with another bucket, a longie from mid-court by Guard Bill Haire to send the Broncos into a 6-0 lead.

However, Tom Nowall's Mound quintet was not to be denied as Jack Carmon, Dick Robison, Bob Manuel and Jim Myracks all came back with seven consecutive points to provide Mound with a 7-6 lead. However, Thornton of West came through with another jump-push shot and a free throw to give the West Juniors a 9-7 lead at the first quarter's end.

The offensive tempo of both teams slowed down considerably in the second period, with only 10 points shredding the nets in that period.

In the third period, West was outplayed by the visitors, 11-8, with Bill Adams and Bob Manuel setting the pace for the ultimate losers with seven points between them. West Junior held a slim 23-22 lead at the third period's duration, and it was still anybody's ball game entering into the fourth period.

The final period told the tale as West outscored Mound, 11-7, with Jim Kimball pacing the local juniors' scoring in the final period with two bunnies.

At the automatic time, West held a 33-27 lead, with 52 seconds left in the game. Mound's Jack Robison pushed in a bucket from mid-court, but after some array Mound shots in the final seconds, West managed to stall the ball the remainder of the contest.

St. Aloysius Wins 24-14 Over Holy Family Quintet

The St. Aloysius Grade School basketball team remained undefeated last Friday when they beat undefeated Holy Name 24 to 14.

Captain Bill Nye led the attack with 14 points. At the end of the first half St. Aloysius led 12 to 11.

The second half St. Aloysius tightened its defense and held Holy Name to three points.

St Aloysius has won four and lost none in league play. For the season they have won 11 and lost three.

There are three more league games. St Aloysius won one game by a forfeit. In the league games Bill Nye, high scoring guard, has 54 points for an 18 point per game average.

Halley's comet will reappear in 1986.

What Other Editors Say

This Is Not Fiction

From The Cleveland Plain Dealer

Will the reader pretend that he has an obscure neighbor by the name of Harry Truman? And will he pretend that Neighbor Truman has decided he must borrow money, a decision which many of us ordinary folks have reached at times in the tempestuous course of life?

Neighbor Truman, we're going to pretend, steps into the bank to apply for the loan, and we're going to have the privilege of observing the transaction.

"I want to borrow $500," says our neighbor. (Now most of us will anticipate the next few questions, having been through it.)

"Do you have any debts at the present time?" the banker inquires.

"Yes," says our neighbor. "I owe the bank at this moment about $26,800."

"What is your annual income, Mr. Truman?"

"I have take-home pay amounting to $5,750 a year," says he.

"Hmmmmm," the banker hums. He at once is suspicious of the client's ability to pay the old debt without $500 more added. And aren't his eavesdropping neighbors suspicious, too?

But the banker gives allowance for unforseen circumstances. So he asks Mr. Truman, "Do you think you will be able to save a large portion of your income this year and each succeeding year to reduce your indebtedness?"

"Oh, no," Neighbor Truman replies to the surprise of the banker, and the neighbors listening in. "My necessary living expenses this year will be $4,250. I'll be forced to spend more than I earn."

"Pardon me," the startled banker interjects. "Do you mean that, owing already an amount that constitutes seven times what you'll take in during a year, you're going to spend more than you earn?"

"That's right," says Neighbor Truman. "You see I must provide tuition at private schools for my children. I must help a poor relative set up a new business in which he's going to lose money for a long time to come."

"Just what kind of business is that relative going to sink your money in?" the incredulous banker asks.

"Why," says Mr. Truman, "he's got a wonderful humanitarian idea. He's going to sell milk to the Hottentots at a price they can afford to pay."

"But just those things won't eat up your whole income this year, will they?"

"No, but that isn't all," says Mr. Truman. "I am building security for my children by putting price supports under them. My boys sell newspapers to the neighbors at a nickel apiece, but I give them an extra nickel. My daughters make lamp shades which they sell for $5, but I don't think that's a fair price, so I give them an extra $2 for each one they sell. Besides my wife wants a television set."

The banker now steps aside to get his breath. Here's a fellow who owes more than he can ever repay if he lives frugally below his income seeking to borrow still more, and at the same time boldly proclaiming his intention of carrying out fantastic money-spending schemes.

What will the banker do?

Will he lend the new money? It's silly even to ask the question.

This scene is not fiction. It constitutes a faithful reproduction of the program set forth in regal solemnity by President of the United States Harry S. Truman. Multiply all figures by 10 million and you have the Truman budget, his plan of government, the government's income, and the government's debt.

In this case Congress is the banker. If it makes the loan, Borrower Truman's note will have to be signed by the taxpayers, which is to say by all the people. Who, in his right mind, would voluntarily sign the note of such a profligate spender?

'Think This Over'

By William "Doc" Campbell

Bells and Whistles

As a youth of 10 years, I was intrigued, excitedly, by whistles and bells. Many a time my dad would take me to the Long Island Railroad tracks in Brooklyn and when a train "whistled" for the crossing I was in ecstasy! Of course that whistle was to "scare" you to "STOP, LOOK and LISTEN." Other "whistle moments" were in seeing a train of open sides . . . seats across the car . . . running from Brooklyn to Coney Island, about 10 miles shrieking its raucous tones . . . black locomotives with bright red smoke stacks and brilliant brass tops . . . going fast, it seemed to me. No "under or over passes" 40 years ago in Brooklyn.

To go via "PULLMAN" on a great train in the year 1904 was a deep, unforgettable treat. I have traveled on the railroads about 12 years of my span of life. To lie in the, then, fine Pullman berths and hear the click-click of the train over the rail joints of a splendidly ballasted road-bed in the middle of the night, hearing the deep . . . deep . . . moan-toned whistle of that huge engine far ahead throbbing on its way . . . lay . . . THAT to me was "tops" in adventure! The TONE of that whistle will live forever in my memory! Don't for one second think that trains are the only things that have whistles. For 20 summers our family went from New York City to Albany, N. Y.—150 miles—via the finest river steamers in the world . . . no freight, carriages, or cars; carried only passengers to the number of about 4000. The "Hudson River Day Line" boats are famous even today . . . and when approaching a "landing" the one long and two short blasts of the whistle still thrills me. The "Robert Fulton" (rather new) has the engine and whistle of the old "New York" . . . Talk about romance . . . there it is in whistles.

A great ocean liner leaving the Hudson River on dNew York Bay for the wide, wide ocean . . . the rich-throated (a la Lawrence Tibbet) tone of their whistle . . . musical and beautiful . . . can you beat it?

Now . . . for a SLAM. I must do it . . . these great wonderful DIESEL locomotives, going 75 or 80 miles an hour . . . and then hear their "MOOING COW FOG HORNS. Why a great ocean liner in a deep fog blows its "fog horn" every one-half minute or so . . . but the boat is going ONLY eight or nine miles per hour. These "Diesel" "FOG" horns don't "SCARE" you, in fact they almost "LULL" you into carelessness at a crossing. The old whistles served their purpose better. Get busy DIESELS and get a REAL WHISTLE!

BELLS

At the end of this column read Edgar Allen Poe's first stanza of his immortal "Bells". He did not write all of it. A Mrs. Shaw goaded him on and on even for the several last stanzas . . . but it was Poe's "imagination" that wrote "Bells . . . bells . . . bells."

Fire bells . . . around 1900 in New York, on the "hook and ladder" trucks and "hose carts" . . . My! you got goose pimples waiting for them to pass . . . but this modern SIREN is even more exciting and piercing, with the moving lights, a better psychology of "Attention."

CHURCH BELLS on a beautiful Sunday morn. At camp in the Adirondacks I truly thought that all nature was living that blessed sabbath. All nature seemed so calm and peaceful, only far away the distant sound of sweet bells. The Modern Gothic "Riverside Church" on Riverside Drive, N. Y. (called Rockefeller's church) has expensive imported CARILLONS, easily heard by Columbia University, near by.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY (Ithaca, N. Y.). I was impressed and always stopped to listen to their chimes from their famous tower . . . Why those bells were there before 1900.

"BIG BEN" in the lofty Gothic tower of the British Houses of Parliament in London. I heard this bell the first time it was broadcast in America, about 1923. Our OSU chimes are lovely too. Now I come to my dream! I can see as in a dream . . . a set of chimes in our "Colonial Bell Tower" over West High School.

Come on . . . Boosters Club, Kiwanians, old alumni and class presidents, etc. These chimes could be rung each 15 minutes one tap . . . on the half hour, two taps . . . three-quarter hour a longer tone . . . and on the hour, a full short melody, classic or something like "One Enchanted Evening," for example. These chimes could be regulated by the office clock on records, I believe. What a lovely dream to hear them drawing attention to good old "WEST High" . . . LET'S GO! . . Let's make the WEST HI BELLS dream come TRUE! So I finish my "Whistles and Bells" hoping, dear reader, you will surely and sincerely,

THINK THIS OVER.

Hear the sledges with the bells . . .
Silver bells!
What a world of merriment their melody foretells!
How they tinkle, tinkle, tinkle,
In the icy air of night!
While the stars that oversprinkle
All the heavens, seem to twinkle
With a crystaline delight;
Keeping time, time, time,
In a sort of runic rhyme,
To the tintinnabulation that so musically wells
From the bells, bells, bells
bells . . .
From the jingling and the tinkling of the bells

Edgar Allen Poe.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

FOR THE rest of the way, Kit and Furse each was preoccupied with a section of the newspaper.

The conductor poked his head in the door of the coach and shouted two syllables that the rush of air promptly threw back over his shoulder. Kit smoothed on her gloves and drew her overnight bag on to her knees. As the train slowed down, Furse reached for her bag and stood up to let her pass him.

Audrey was waiting for her on the platform. "Peter's meeting me, want a lift?"

"No, thank you," said Kit in a low voice. "If my father's not here, Mr. Furse will drive me up the hill. It's on his way."

Audrey gave a meaning glance at Furse over her shoulder. Her eyes lingered on him. She whispered back, "I'll see you this weekend."

Furse's car had a musky smell of apples. Kit sniffed delightedly. "It's nice of you to take me," she said as they swung the half are round the station, "It will save Marvell a trip."

"What will you do if he's got home?"

"Ask you for supper!"

"That would be a god-send," he said hopefully.

"Seriously, though, he's never out and if he is it doesn't matter. I'll fix up something and then go out for a walk in the woods. I love them this time of day. But then I like it here—always! You see that's why I had to come home. To give Marvell a surprise and to find everything just the same for myself! We have a dramatic teacher at Holly, she was a great actress once, now she's kind of old and scornful. Once when a few of us had just thrown ourselves in to a scene, she told us, "Don't strain for a great variety of passion—you haven't got it and you don't need it. Remember there are only two emotions to call forth in an audience—the feeling of surprise and the feeling of familiarity.'"

They were almost at the head of the land and Furse was slowing down. "Which do you think is the best?" he asked.

"Don't drive in, just let me out here." She was thinking of an answer. "It depends who you are feeling for. With you..." she smiled and hesitated... "you'll have to guess that. Thanks a lot. Will we see you soon?"

"Yes, I'll be over. Are you sure," again he looked uneasy, "you don't want me to come in with you?"

"Oh, no, we'll invite you specially."

"Soon!" he called above the heavy beat of the motor.

The pale leaning birches welcomed her; the dried ragged grasses murmured a greeting. Through the lacy screen of the budded trees that met overhead gleamed the translucent evening sky. She remained perfectly still for a moment. How can I love it all? she asked herself. There were so many kinds of love—the pity she felt for Audrey, the security she felt with Furse, the impersonal, oh, so tender love she had for this place—the young green trees, the quiet earth, the thin sky ready to burst open with stars. Time was a wave breaking at its whitest crest of foam. She started to run as if she were sure something was waiting for her just ahead.

She saw around the back door and into the kitchen. It was empty. The oil stove thrummed a blue light and the scalded milk pail had been turned upside down on the table. Mrs. Crane must have just left for an evening in the village. Where would Marvell be? Not at Furse's at any rate, I wish he were! How self-conscious I used to be about Furse, Kit thought, I was so dumb in those days. Maybe he's gone to get wood or to see if the brook is filled. I'll go down that way.

Venus had risen upon the naked sky. Kit made a wish and started down the path to the brook. Halfway down, the path dipped suddenly and the heavy branches of a pine tree stretched forth a barrier shutting out the star. She reached to push the silky needles — she heard a laugh. It floated up from the hollow just beyond like the silver notes of a song. It was so joyous and infectious that she laughed silently in answer. Peering between the boughs, she saw Poldi's sweater bright against Marvell's brown jacket. He bent his head to hers and Poldi laughed again. Then his voice, caressing, muffled, came up to her. "You are lovely, Poldi." The light touched Poldi's eager, pretty face for a moment before Marvell's shadow covered it. Kit was hardly aware of Marvell. All she saw was the girl. Suddenly her eyes were filled with tears and she drew back silently. She was trembling a little as if she were chilled but at the same time the heat and heaviness of her body exhausted her. She wanted to throw herself down on the cool earth and cry. You would not know how fine it is, she whispered, seeking wildly for some promise to herself. She ran all the way back to the house and the queer tight pain she felt was not envy but exultation as if she had seen the glory that had long been promised. "Thank you, Marvell," she wanted to say. It was as if he had shown her the way. In the silent kitchen she thought she could hear her heart beating loudly from every corner of the room. Stop it, she whispered, stop it, to her thundering, excited heart. Amazed at her quick, easy movements, she hunted out pots and pans, onions and salt pork. She would have a corn chowder and keep it steaming hot till he came in.

He came in, much later, whistling, but stopped, puzzled by the smell of cooking. "Why, Kit! This is great. What's up?"

She whirled around him—how could she ever keep still again—and kissed him lightly. "I'm making chowder. Does it smell good? And you might give me a glass of sherry while we wait."

"Of course. But how did you get here? I thought you were with Ben and Fanny."

"Mr. Furse drove me."

"Devil or Furse?" asked Marvell. "There's a rumor that he's out early this year picking partners for Hallowe'en."

"It might have been," she grinned at him. "His ears were very pointed and close to his head."

Kit prepared a salad, sipping the sherry Marvell had poured. She hardly took a breath for talking. "There was a wonderful symphony, the Beethoven Seventh."

Marvell cocked his head at her. "And then the smell everywhere was so good and fresh, after the little rain, and I knew it would be better here and, oh, anyway, I had to come home!" She could see he was awfully pleased. "I saw Audrey on the train today. Oh, Marvell..." her voice dropped gravely. She told him the story of the two dollar bill.

"They didn't have much chance, those two, did they?" he said when she had finished. He had thought she might defend Peter, but she skipped right on.

"But the strangest part—she made me feel so wise, suddenly. Just the way—" she paused and then asked—"I suppose the milk's down cellar? I saw Poldi had milked."

"Yes, she came early."

Kit felt that if she did not speak of Poldi again she would burst. She went on with a blush, "I suppose she'd have to leave early, too, wouldn't she? It's a long walk home for her from the brook through the pasture."

Marvell was on the top step of the cellar stairs. He turned around and asked quietly, "Do I, by any chance, make you feel wiser today, too?"

She shook her head and lifted the cover from the boiling pot. If the wave of steam had not engulfed her, he might have seen her eyes fill with sudden tears.

In the night the thin paneled door that separated their rooms became a sounding board for Kit's and Marvell's restlessness. Marvell was worried. She must have seen them down by the brook. He almost groaned aloud. Why hadn't he had the sense to realize she might come home some Friday? Now it looked so secretive, so ugly. He sat bolt upright. She had gotten up, he could hear a board creak. Hunched up, every nerve tense, he listened in apprehension as one might for a sick child's cry. A yellow crack appeared beneath the door. She must be reading. Slowly he eased himself down into the bed. I could talk to her, he thought, punching the leaden pillow into shape, we've never been closer than now. Ever since she took that flyer to Proctor. But it's such a waste, he told himself fiercely, why make more of it to her? We'll be leaving, as soon as Kit's through that school, we're off. That was the trouble. Time was running out and now that he was almost free of the place here, he could see how small and insignificant a world he'd lived in. And waiting made him restless—it always had. Waiting for something to begin. Kit's life, not his. But waiting just the same. And Poldi was the only real thing in it, because she was temporary. She was solace now. Not regret or doubt or sickly impatience. Kit would understand that, but it must have hurt her stumbling up on him that way. Her father and Poldi, almost her own age. If she should think it ugly and never quite forgive him that he had made it so! It was so easy to shock someone unawares, to hurt without violence. He mustn't make anything of it—and she would pass it by. Kit, he cried silently, it has nothing to do with you, nothing at all. When you need to know that, I'll tell you.

This week's question is: What do you think of David C. Warner's idea of moving the State Hospital to the country, and building a new Capitol Center (State House and other state department buildings) on the Hilltop where the institution now stands?

Mrs. Robert Naylor, 369 Columbian-av, housewife: "I think the idea is just a dream. It's out of this world. I don't think we can conceive of the cost of such a project. My first thought would be for the patients. I'd like to see modern buildings for them. I'm all for progress, but I think we should be primarily interested in the patients' greater happiness. We've lived here by the institution for 20 years, and I've become interested in the welfare of the patients."

Joe Worthen, 2405½ W. Broad-st, manager men's clothing at Seiller's: Any move towards improvement should be to move the hospitals to the outskirts, and to use the land for a housing project. The government buildings are already situated, and while we have to pay high rent the state is paying for office space, we would have to pay taxes for the building and moving of the Capitol Center. I believe it would be too great a cost to move the capital buildings out here. I think, however, it would be cheaper and better to have the hospital in the country."

Mrs. H. L. Minion, 1935 W. Broad-st, housewife: "I think it would be nice to live next to the State House. It would be better than saying you live next to the insane asylum. But how would the hundreds of elderly people visit their relatives, who are in the hospital, if the institution were moved to the country. In the 11 years we have lived here I've become interested in the patients' problems. However, there are advantages to having the hospital in the country. The state owns all the land. Why not divide the farm land and build state buildings on some of it. That would eliminate the high rent the state now pays, and the buildings would be fairly handy to the State House."

Richard Liebensperger, 1884 Sullivant-av, elevator service mechanic: "I think the idea is a good, practical one. I don't think it is a dream. The land of the institution is too valuable for farms. By using the land, the cost of moving and building new offices would be offset. The Capitol Center out here would eliminate high office rents for state offices, and parking and traffic problems in the downtown area. The idea and cost are not fantastic considering the national and state budgets."

The longer a sick man refuses to face the truth, the less chance he has to get well. Just waiting to see what will happen, or doing nothing about one's personal health until serious damage is done, is as unreasonable as locking yourself in a room and throwing the key out the window.

Your Doctor cannot get you well without your cooperation. Give your Doctor the facts that will help to open the door. Vital health is worth working for.

Some wise man has said, "you do no good by helping a man up—if he cannot stand on his feet. It is innate that man must do for himself."

The two most important keys to true freedom are: HEALTH that will fully free your brain and body for achievement; WORK, as a free man or woman, to pursue the opportunities so rich at hand.

Put forth the personal effort to make and keep these keys your own.

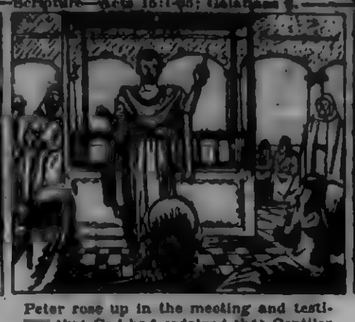
Christian Church Fights for Freedom — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred D. Buescher



Scripture—Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 5

There were certain men who came from Judaea to Antioch teaching that the Gentiles should be circumcised and become as Jews before they could become members of the church, but Paul and Barnabas argued with them about this.

Paul, Barnabas and others were sent by the Antioch church to Jerusalem to talk to the elders there about Gentile members of the church, as there were also those at Jerusalem who thought Gentiles should follow Moses' law.

Peter rose up in the meeting and testified that God had ordained that Gentiles should be received into the church, and He had sent the Holy Ghost to them, as He had unto those of Jewish blood, making no difference.

Letters were written to the church at Antioch, Syria and Cilicia telling them that if they abstained from certain evil practices they should be saved as Jews were. Gentiles read them with joy.

MEMORY VERSE—Galatians 5:1.

New Hilltop Church To Install Pastor

Rev. Gerald L. Thies

Rev. Gerald L. Thies will be installed as pastor of Our Savior Lutheran Church at special services Sunday.

Pastor Thies comes to Columbus from Grace Lutheran congregation in Wilmington, Ill. He was born in Wetaskiwin, Alberta, Canada, on June 4, 1924. He came to the United States in 1934, when his father was called to a pastorate in Chicago. He was graduated from Concordia College, Milwaukee, in 1944, and from Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, in 1948. The Rev. and Mrs. Thies have an infant son. They will reside at 623 Hilltonia-av.

Our Savior Church is at present worshipping at West Mound Street School, 2051 W. Mound-st. The installation service will be held Sunday, Feb. 19, at 3 p. m. Pastor Thies' father, who is head of the religious department at Luther Institute in Chicago, will deliver the sermon. Pastor Richard Jesse, Executive Secretary of Missions and Stewardship of the English District — Missouri Synod, will conduct the installation ceremony.

Our Savior Church was organized in March of last year. The congregation is the outgrowth of a neighborhood Sunday School project begun in September, 1947.

Women of 86 Lands Take Part In Prayer Day

By Mrs. E. C. Cockfield

The World Day of Prayer, to be observed by groups of women meeting together in prayer in over 86 countries, becomes the greatest ecumenical demonstration in the world today. It is the expression of Christian Unity on the part of thousands upon thousands, yes millions, of laywomen; it becomes for over 44 hours a visible expression of the family of women in the church of God in the world; truly interdenominational, interracial and international. On Friday, Feb. 24, unceasing prayers will span the earth beginning as the sun rises on the Fiji Islands near the international date line and continuing westward until the amen is sung in the cold Arctic. Here on the Hilltop we will join in the universal prayer of self-searching at 2 p. m. in the Hilltop Church of Christ Disciples.

Those attending the World Day of Prayer will participate in a universal worship service, the theme of which is "Faith For our Time" and will express that faith through gifts of money that others, less fortunate than they, may be helped. The missionary projects thus become the needs of the people—necessary and important. The United Council of Church Women divides the offering equally between work in this country and abroad. In the United States the money is spent for work among the American Indians and migrant workers, while the foreign projects are Christian Colleges and Christian Literature.

Mrs. Philip Johnson, chairman for the World Day of Prayer for the Hilltop will be assisted by the following women: Mrs. Josephine Herd Johnson, Mrs. Marguerite Colwell; Mrs. Hazel Brunson, Mrs. Walter Cochran, Mrs. Jack Hostetter, Mrs. W. H. Harris, Mrs. Susan Hobson, Mrs. L. L. Ward, Mrs. P. C. Edwards, Mrs. Ray Anderson, Mrs. T. L. Tinsley, Mrs. John Glass, Mrs. John Graham, Mrs. C. M. Barbee and Mrs. E. A. Herd. Ushers will be Mrs. Willis Lindberg, Mrs. Dwight Campbell, Mrs. C. E. Bergman, Mrs. R. L. Gowdy, Mrs. H. M. Hickman, Mrs. Wilbur Kegg and Mrs. S. A. Daugherty. Maurice Bowsher will be at the organ.

Diamonds, sapphires, emeralds, rubies and opals are the five recognized precious stones.

Rev. Crockett Evangelist At Church Revival

Rev. Archie Crockett of Bellefontaine, O., is the evangelist in a two weeks' revival meeting to begin next Sunday evening at the Sullivant Avenue Friends Church, Sullivant-ave at Guildford.

Meetings are to be held each evening at 7:30 from Feb. 19 through March 5. The Saturday evening services on Feb. 25 and March 4 are special young people's meetings and will be sponsored by the Christian Endeavor Society of the church.

Rev. Crockett held a very successful revival meeting at the Sullivant Avenue Friends church some months ago, and, after much insistence by the many friends he made in Columbus, he has consented to hold this 1950 meeting. Special music by the Upperman Sisters and other musical groups will be featured throughout the two weeks.

Colorado has a greater number of high mountain peaks than any other state in the U. S.

Attend Services in your Church

Suppose for a moment, you were on the flying bridge of a large ship plowing through icy North Atlantic waters. Nothing to worry about, even though the seas are running high.

Suddenly, an engineer appears on the ladder, hurries across the rolling, pitching deck and reports to the Captain. There is excitement and fear in his voice. "Sir—the rudder's gone!"

Of course, such an accident is next to impossible today. Big ships just don't lose their rudders anymore.

Yet many who cannot think of such an accident without a chill of fear passing down their spine have managed to lose another rudder without giving the matter any thought. These people have lost the rudder of religious faith—and many of them lost their rudders when they ceased to attend church regularly. Only when disaster looms ahead will they regret their loss.

Churches don't fashion rudders. But they do enable a man to make one of his own that is stout, strong and indestructible. Sometimes there is nothing a man can fall back upon but his faith in his own dignity and his faith that God is with him. His church is his stout keel. His faith is his sure guide.

Mrs. Ann Meddles Is Den Mother To 26 Cub Scouts

CUB SCOUTS OF DEN 2, PACK 86, salute the flag at the beginning of the meeting. With the scouts are Mrs. Ann Meddles, 507 Binns-blvd. den mother, center, and E. O. Johnson, 669 N. Hague-av, cubmaster, right. The den is sponsored by the John Burroughs School PTA. (Columbus Citizen Photos)

THE CUBS BOUGHT A POPCORN POPPER from money received in collecting sales-tax stamps. Jackie Lomano, 8, pops some corn for the den.

Cub Scouts in Den 2, Pack 86, keep plenty busy in the basement of the home of Mrs. Ann Meddles, 507 Binns-blvd, den mother.

The boys, celebrating the 40th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America, are even busier than usual. Among their recent projects has been making valentines for young polio victims at Children's Hospital. The Cubs also made valentines and bought candy for their "adopted mother," Mrs. Barbara Laischer, 82, a shut-in.

On Feb. 23, the boys will hold their annual Blue and Gold banquet at John Burroughs School. Mrs. Laischer will be their honored guest. The den is sponsored by John Burroughs PTA.

The 26 boys in the den meet each week in Mrs. Meddles' basement. Helping Mrs. Meddles in her job is Mrs. Mary Lomano, 321 S. Southampton-av, assistant den mother.

Ordinarily there are only six to eight boys to a den, with a den mother and assistant den mother. Because there are no den mothers west of Hague-av, Mrs. Meddles has 26 boys who meet in her basement.

There are two boys, too young to be scouts, who act as "mascots," two older boys, who are chiefs," the cubmaster, E. A. Johnson, 669 N. Hague-av; Mrs. Meddles, and the assistant den mother, Mrs. Mary Lomano, 321 S. Hampton-rd.

The den is equipped with handicraft tools, table tennis, stove and dishes, Scout exhibits and even a lavatory with shower, basin and toilet.

Their meetings are from 3:30 to 5 p. m. each Friday, but they are welcome at any time. Occasionally they overflow into the kitchen where Mrs. Meddles teaches them to make the cookies and mints they serve at their annual Mother's Day tea.

Behind the Meddles home the Cubs have a garden where they raise the yellow and blue flowers they make into corsages for their mothers on Mother's Day and the plants they give them as gifts.

The Cubs, like all Scouts, are kept busy with the achievements they must fulfill. Among other things they learn how to tie knots and how to build a model boat, Morse code and first aid. What is most important, they learn loyalty, courtesy, obedience, cheerfulness, courage and reverence. They learn they have a duty toward God and country.

Mrs. Meddles has been working with children for many years and feels she understands them. She has five, two grown and three at home. For five years she worked in the State Division of Women and Minors.

Her son, Johnnie, 12, did not make his first Scout initiation but hopes to do so on a second try.

Will You Look In The Mirror?

When we gaze into a mirror it gives back the truth, coldly and impartially. The mirror cares not whether the image be as fair as an adolescent dream of love — or ugly as squalor. It stoops to no flattery, is not moved by compassion, cannot err. Remorseless as Time, it throws back dispassionately the thing that IS.

Most of us have become accustomed to seeing the same old countenance day after day. If it is unprepossessing we've become used to THAT too, and reflecting surfaces hold no terrors for us.

There is another mirror, however, into which few dare look. And that is the mirror that reflects the true state of our financial arrangements for our dependents in the event of death.

It is a happy — and a rare — man who can do so and be reassured by what he sees.

Too many of us are content to insure ourselves for an amount that SEEMS like a lot of money. Unless you translate that sum into terms of income replacement for your dependents in the event of your death, you will not have the true picture. Make the test now. I shall be happy to review your insurance with no obligation whatsoever to yourself. DARE you look in the mirror?

On The Record

By Harry Franken

1918 Edition Of Record Is Found

Chances are that the resident of 458 S. Harris-av picked up the telephone 32 years ago and asked the operator for Hilltop 701 to report they had not received their Hilltop Record.

Mrs. E. H. Gleeson found the Record under the porch of the house recently. The date of publication was Sept. 9, 1918. It was the 22nd issue in the paper's second year of publication.

On the front page of the paper was a news item about Rev. Perry E. Smoke. The same Rev. Smoke conducted a revival at the Hilltonia EUB Church this year in January. He was pastor of the United Evangelical Church in 1918.

Another front page story told that Chief of Police C. E. Carter was going to address the Westwood Lodge, K. of P.

A letter to the editor suggested that a post be established on the Hilltop to give coffee to the soldiers who passed through on their way to camp or to war. The reader suggested that the coffee be kept ready and that someone in New Rome be delegated to phone the news ahead when a motorcade of troops passed through there on the way to Columbus.

One Hilltop war death was reported in the paper that was printed less than a month before World War I's finish.

The lead editorial of the day was on the new Friends' Rescue Home on the Hilltop. It told of how one girl, who had been brought to the city by a man from West Virginia on the promise of securing work for her, had already been saved by the home and returned to her mother. There were about 12 girls being cared for by the home at that time.

Two present day advertisers had ads in the old issue of the Record. They were L. M. Seiller, and the Economy Variety Store.

An establishment known as the Hilltop Undertaking Co. offered service with "everything modern—horse drawn or motor equipment."

The paper was published at 2354 W. Broad-st over the Prior Hardware Store. The publisher was S. J. Westlake and Ruby M. Winget was in charge of circulation.

Correction: I wasn't trying to fool any of the people any of the time in last week's article on the Gettysburg Address, however I did make an error. Rev. A. L. Roth should have been credited with bringing the article to our attention.

Pfc. Harry A. Nairn who subscribes to the Record out in California writes that he would like to hear from some of his friends on the Hilltop. His address is Hq. and Hq. Sqdn., Ninth A.B.G., Fairfield Suisun A.F.B., California.

"My Ad Brought Dozens Of Calls," Says Mrs. Vail

The following ad was placed in the Record by Mrs. Richard Vail, 178 Whitethorne-av:

BABY PARAKEETS. Ra. 8737.

According to Mrs. Vail, the parakeets were all gone within a very short time, and she could have sold literally dozens of them. Such results are commonplace for users of the Record Classified Section.

Last Crossword Puzzle Is In Today's Record

The fifth and final Hilltop Record Crossword Puzzle contest appears in today's Record and it looks as if the judges will have quite a time picking the winner of the RCA Victor television set.

A good entry this week stands a chance not only of winning one of the big weekly prizes, but of also being judged best of the five first place winners.

The prizes offered for this week's solution are a Nesco Electric Ovenette, a radient heater, and a $15 picture order from J. Curtis Allen. First prize winner will have the choice of these three prizes.

The winners of last week's contest must be mailed to the Contest Editor by midnight Monday, Feb. 27. The name of the grand prize winner will be announced in the March 2 issue of the Record.

Hilltop Child To Be Given Operations To Develop Eye

A Young Hilltopper, Billy Edgar, eight-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edgar, 659 S. Richardson-av, may have his full eyesight by the time he is 21 years old, if efforts of experts at Children's Hospital are successful.

Blonde, blue-eyed Billy was born last June 18 with only one good eye. His left eye has only about one-third normal anatomical growth. Through operations performed at the hospital's new eye clinic, doctors expect to make the boy's sight normal.

Mrs. Edgar first contacted her neighbor, George Schaaf, 854 S. Richardson-av, president of the Hilltop Lions Club. Schaaf referred the matter to Dr. Earle H. Wildermuth, 2546 Sullivant-av, optometrist, who is chairman of the sight-saving committee of the local club. Dr. Wildermuth in turn took the case to the county committee of the Lions. The Hilltop Lions will help sponsor the operations.

The operations and treatment, which will begin in a few weeks, will be carried on until Billy's 21st birthday by the Franklin County Sight Saving Committee, sponsored by the Downtown Lions Club.

This arrangement has relieved Billy's parents of a great worry and a heavy burden. "We would have done this," his mother said, "but it would have taken everything we have."

Billy will have the benefit of the complete, new clinic, the only one of its kind in this part of the country for children with eye defects which require either or both orthoptic and surgical treatment.

The clinic was dedicated last Sunday.

Dave Haines is adviser for the Explorer Post. James Walton is scoutmaster with Stan Hughes and Robert Ding as assistants.

School Coal Supply Deemed Adequate

Although coal stockpiles for West side and Hilltop schools are low at the present time due to the national coal situation, there is no danger of such an exhaustion of supplies that might necessitate shutdown of any of the schools.

This was emphasized by an official of the Columbus Board of Education in a statement to The Hilltop Record. He reported that the local school system has contracts with several Ohio mines which are not involved in the national dispute and which consequently keep a continuous adequate supply of coal available.

Begin Work On Westgate Garage Bldg.

Construction work began last Saturday. The building is expected to be completed in about six weeks. The approximate cost of the structure is $15,000, according to Holycross.

Nearly one-third of the 240 students at the Rome Elementary School were absent Monday due to a cold and flu epidemic in that school district, according to James Groves, principal.

Groves said 30% of the New Rome students were absent Monday. Seventy-one pupils were reported ill.

Rachel Smith Returns To Hilliards Farm After Government Service In Germany

Attractive, young Rachel Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, Davidson-rd, just northeast of Hilliards, this month returned to this country after 20 months in Germany.

A civil service worker for the government, Rachel was a stenoreporter in the Army's inspector general's office in Frankfort, Germany. At this job, the Hilliards' farm girl was in on behind-the-scenes doings of the occupation troops.

Rachel was forced to break her 24-month contract and return to the U. S. when her mother became ill in December. As soon as arrangements were completed, Miss Smith flew from Europe to Springfield, Mass. The flight, which usually takes about 15 hours, was extended to 89 hours, due to bad weather in Iceland, the first stop; a blizzard in Labrador; and rain on the east coast of the States. She came by train from Springfield to Columbus.

Visited Paris

On the inside of the uncovering of Germany's black market and the prosecution of other crimes involving American troops Rachel found her job fascinating and interesting. Her job took her to different parts of the country — the post area covered a 200 mile radius—where hearings were heard at army bases.

Rachel did some traveling on her own, too. She found time to enjoy a few holidays in Paris, France, and Zurich, Switzerland. The young foreign-service worker made two trips to Paris—one in November, 1948, the other in November, 1949. The first time she was a spectator at the UN foreign minister conference. The second visit was of a lighter nature. Rachel attended the famous Dior style show and bought a few dresses "that were on sale." Last spring she attended the music festival at Salzburg, Germany.

"Democracy, as we know it," Miss Smith said, "is a long way off. The German people don't seem to be interested in elections.

The young government worker saw an important change take place in Germany during her time there. "When I got there in June, 1948," Rachel declared, "the situation was depressing. Nothing in the stores, and bomb ruins everywhere. But by last Christmas the shops were full, and lights and signs were glowing again."

"Americans," Rachel thinks, are very impressionistic. Many soldiers are absorbing the ways of the Germans. Many have been over there too long," she added.

A graduate of Hilliards High School in 1934, Rachel was born and raised on her father's farm, northeast of Hilliards. After graduation Rachel went to work for the state government. She was a secretary in the office of U. S. Senator John W. Bricker when he was governor. Later she worked for the board of review of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

"As a farm girl," Rachel stated, "I noticed in traveling around the German countryside, the lack of modern equipment on the farms. Milk cows pulled the carts, and women worked in the fields cutting hay. The German office girls, though, are pretty much the same as they are here. They like to talk about men and clothes."

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR SMITH of near Hilliards are happy to have their daughter, Rachel (center) back with them on their farm. Rachel just returned after 20 months with the U. S. government in Germany.

Plan To Negotiate On Memorial Hall

Contributors to the Camp Chase Post 98 American Legion Memorial Hall Fund were asked this week to send in authorization slips granting an extension of time for use of the funds.

Ray McVay of the post said that about 90% of the slips mailed to contributors had been returned approved. He added that many contributors said they would give further when the building was started.

The present extension was to be until Jan. 1, 1951. Construction on the proposed building had been held up due to shortage of materials and high costs.

Those who have contributed to the building fund and have not signed the authorization for the extension are urged to do so as soon as possible. The authorization slip is printed on page 8 of today's Hilltop Record for the convenience of contributors who may not have received one.

McVay said that the post hopes to open negotiations for the construction of the building in the very near future and that they want the list of contributors as near complete as possible at that time.

Hilltop Civil Service Assn. Is Formed

A Hilltop chapter of the Ohio State Civil Service Employees Association has been formed and will hold its first regular meeting tonight (Tuesday) at 7 o'clock in the amusement hall of the Columbus State School.

The charter for the chapter will be presented at this meeting and the officers will be installed.

Officers of the chapter are Dan Wedemeyer, president; George Wilson, first vice-president; Bernice Fox, second vice-president; Helen Adhemar, third vice-president; and Thelma Shouldis, secretary-treasurer. Board members are Albert Hogan, Faye Jauchius and J. M. Sage.

Civil service employees of the state are urged to attend this meeting and become charter members of the chapter.

$3,219 Collected In Hilltop March Of Dimes Drive

The 1950 March of Dimes Campaign on the Hilltop was pronounced a "great success" last week with the report that $3,219 was collected in this district.

The Hilltop territorial boundaries were north including Valleyview, south to the city limits and from Ryan-av to Hague-av on the east and west. Four Hilltop businessmen and 186 women participated in the campaign.

A breakdown of the donations shows $2,155.13 collected in residential collections, $875.75 in business collections, and $188.12 from containers in business places.

We are grateful and wish to extend our thanks to all contributors and volunteer workers in the 1950 Polio Campaign," Mrs. Don Rice, colonel, 112 N. Huron-av; and Mrs. Lawrence Mack, co-colonel, 176 Algonquin-av, said in a joint statement last week.

Hilltop Lions Club Honors Women

The women were honored at the Hilltop Lions Club meeting last Thursday night at Schmelzer's Restaurant.

The program included group singing led by Francis Higgins, accompanied by George Bukey; Jack Sherick's Juniorettes, a dancing team; songs by Dave Tarpy, and a mind-reading act by Blair Strawser, funeral director of near Cincinnati.

Door prizes were awarded to the members' wives.

The firm will continue to handle all types of variety merchandise and will add many new lines thus giving the neighborhood a modern and attractive variety store.

Alert Firemen Avert Fire Damage

Burning trash in the basement of the home of Mrs. Anna Price, 48 N. Ogden-av, brought four pieces of fire equipment rushing to the scene. Mrs. Dorothy Bornheim, 50 N. Ogden-av, a neighbor who called the fire department, said the firemen "got here in record time." "I no sooner called them than I heard the sirens up the street," she added. No damage was reported.

Surgery Saves Grandchild Of W. Jeff. Woman

The young granddaughter of a West Jefferson woman recently caused great concern for army doctors in Japan.

The baby is Darlene Sue Barton, daughter of M.Sgt. and Mrs. Elmer E. Barton. She was born in Osaka, Japan, where Sgt. Barton is with the U.S. Air Force. He is the son of Mrs. Bertha Barton of near West Jefferson.

Thirteen days after the baby was born, doctors discovered the baby had no opening leading from her stomach to the small intestine. When the baby became worse, the mother and baby were rushed 150 miles across Japan where the baby underwent an operation.

She began to improve at once. She then weighed only four pounds, 10 ounces. She now weighs eight pounds, eight ounces.

The trio is due in the U.S. in March. They will be stationed at Wright Field, a letter from them said Thursday.

Hilltop Woman Burned As Heater Ignites Clothing

Mrs. Della Bolenbaugh, about 60, of 787 S. Harris-av, suffered first and second degree burns on both hands, left leg and left side, Friday morning, when an electric heater ignited her clothing.

Mrs. Bolenbaugh, a practical nurse, backed into the heater as she helped the owner of the house, Mrs. Elsie Vanderburg, an invalid. Mrs. Bolenbaugh, with the help of a maid, Lillie O'Dell, ripped away the burning clothing.

A private physician administered first aid and she was taken to Mt Carmel Hospital for further treatment.

Mrs. Ann Meddles Is Den Mother To 26 Cub Scouts

CUB SCOUTS OF DEN 2, PACK 86, salute the flag at the beginning of the meeting. With the scouts are Mrs. Ann Meddles, 507 Binns-blvd, den mother, center, and E. O. Johnson, 869 N. Hague-av, cubmaster, right. The den is sponsored by the John Burroughs School PTA. (Columbus Citizen Photos)

THE CUBS BOUGHT A POPCORN POPPER from money received in collecting sales-tax stamps. Jackie Lomano, 8, pops some corn for the den.

Cub Scouts in Den 2, Pack 86, keep plenty busy in the basement of the home of Mrs. Ann Meddles, 507 Binns-blvd, den mother.

The boys, celebrating the 40th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America, are even busier than usual. Among their recent projects has been making valentines for young polio victims at Children's Hospital. The Cubs also made valentines and bought candy for their "adopted mother," Mrs. Barbara Laischer, 82, a widow.

On Feb. 23, the boys will hold their annual Blue and Gold banquet at John Burroughs School. Mrs. Laischer will be their honored guest. The den is sponsored by John Burroughs PTA.

The 26 boys in the den meet each week in Mrs. Meddles' basement. Helping Mrs. Meddles in her job is Mrs. Mary Lomano, 321 S. Southampton-av, assistant den mother.

Ordinarily there are only six to eight boys to a den, with a den mother and assistant den mother. Because there are no den mothers west of Hague-av, Mrs. Meddles has 26 boys who meet in her basement.

There are two boys, too young to be scouts, who act as "mascots," two older boys, who are chiefs," the cubmaster, E. A. Johnson, 869 N. Hague-av; Mrs. Meddles, and the assistant den mother, Mrs. Mary Lomano, 321 S. Hampton-rd.

The den is equipped with handicraft tools, table tennis, stove and dishes, Scout exhibits and even a lavatory with shower, basin and toilet.

Their meetings are from 3:30 to 5 p. m. each Friday, but they are welcome at any time. Occasionally they overflow into the kitchen where Mrs. Meddles teaches them to make the cookies and mints they serve at their annual Mother's Day tea.

Behind the Meddles home the Cubs have a garden where they raise the yellow and blue flowers they make into corsages for their mothers on Mother's Day and the plants they give them as gifts.

The Cubs, like all Scouts, are kept busy with the achievements they must fulfill. Among other things they learn how to tie knots and how to build a model boat, Morse code and first aid. What is most important, they learn loyalty, courtesy, obedience, cheerfulness, courage and reverence. They learn they have a duty toward God and country.

Mrs. Meddles has been working with children for many years and feels she understands them. She has five, two grown and three at home. For five years she worked in the State Division of Women and Minors.

Her son, Johnnie, 12, did not make his first Scout initiation but hopes to do so on a second try.

Will You Look In The Mirror?

When we gaze into a mirror it gives back the truth, coldly and impartially. The mirror cares not whether the image be as fair as an adolescent dream of love—or ugly as squalor. It stoops to no flattery, is not moved by compassion, cannot err. Remorseless as Time, it throws back dispassionately the thing that IS.

Most of us have become accustomed to seeing the same old countenance day after day. If it is unprepossessing we've become used to THAT too, and reflecting surfaces hold no terrors for us.

There is another mirror, however, into which few dare look. And that is the mirror that reflects the true state of our financial arrangements for our dependents in the event of death.

It is a happy—and a rare—man who can do so and be reassured by what he sees.

Too many of us are content to insure ourselves for an amount that SEEMS like a lot of money. Unless you translate that sum into terms of income replacement for your dependents in the event of your death, you will not have the true picture. Make the test now. I shall be happy to review your insurance with no obligation whatsoever to yourself. DARE you look in the mirror?

On The Record

By Harry Franken

1918 Edition Of Record Is Found

Chances are that the resident of 468 S. Harris-av picked up the telephone 32 years ago and asked the operator for Hilltop 701 to report they had not received their Hilltop Record.

Mrs. E. H. Gleeson found the Record under the porch of the house recently. The date of publication was Sept. 9, 1918. It was the 22nd issue in the paper's second year of publication.

On the front page of the paper was a news item about Rev. Perry E. Smoke. The same Rev. Smoke conducted a revival at the Hilltonia EUB Church this year in January. He was pastor of the United Evangelical Church in 1918.

Another front page story told that Chief of Police C. E. Carter was going to address the Westwood Lodge, K. of P.

A letter to the editor suggested that a post be established on the Hilltop to give coffee to the soldiers who passed through on their way to camp or to war. The reader suggested that the coffee be kept ready and that someone in New Rome be delegated to phone the news ahead when a motorcade of troops passed through there on the way to Columbus.

One Hilltop war death was reported in the paper that was printed less than a month before World War I's finish.

The lead editorial of the day was on the new Friends' Rescue Home on the Hilltop. It told of how one girl, who had been brought to the city by a man from West Virginia on the promise of securing work for her, had already been saved by the home and returned to her mother. There were about 12 girls being cared for by the home at that time.

Two present day advertisers had ads in the old issue of the Record. They were L. M. Seiller, and the Economy Variety Store.

An establishment known as the Hilltop Undertaking Co. offered service with "everything modern—horse drawn or motor equipment."

The paper was published at 2354 W. Broad-st over the Prior Hardware Store. The publisher was S. J. Westlake and Ruby M. Winget was in charge of circulation.

Correction: I wasn't trying to fool any of the people any of the time in last week's article on the Gettysburg Address, however I did make an error. Rev. A. L. Roth should have been credited with bringing the article to our attention.

Pfc. Harry A. Nairn who subscribes to the Record out in California writes that he would like to hear from some of his friends on the Hilltop. His address is Hq. and Hq. Sqdn., Ninth A.B.G., Fairfield Suisun A.F.B., California.

"My Ad Brought Dozens Of Calls," Says Mrs. Vail

The following ad was placed in the Record by Mrs. Richard Vail, 178 Whitethorne-av:

According to Mrs. Vail, the parakeets were all gone within a very short time, and she could have sold literally dozens of them. Such results are commonplace for users of the Record Classified Section.

Last Crossword Puzzle Is In Today's Record

The fifth and final Hilltop Record Crossword Puzzle contest appears in today's Record and it looks as if the judges will have quite a time picking the winner of the RCA Victor television set.

A good entry this week stands a chance not only of winning one of the big weekly prizes, but of also being judged best of the five first place winners.

The prizes offered for this week's solution are a Nesco Electric Ovenette, a radiant heater, and a $15 picture order from J. Curtis Allen. First prize winner will have the choice of these three prizes.

The winners of last week's contest must be mailed to the Contest Editor by midnight Monday, Feb. 27. The name of the grand prize winner will be announced in the March 2 issue of the Record.

Hilltop Child To Be Given Operations To Develop Eye

A Young Hilltopper, Billy Edgar, eight-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edgar, 659 S. Richardson-av, may have his full eyesight by the time he is 21 years old, if efforts of experts at Children's Hospital are successful.

Blonde, blue-eyed Billy was born last June 15 with only one good eye. His left eye has only about one-third normal anatomical growth. Through operations performed at the hospital's new eye clinic, doctors expect to make the boy's sight normal.

Mrs. Edgar first contacted her neighbor, George Schaaf, 854 S. Richardson-av, president of the Hilltop Lions Club. Schaaf referred the matter to Dr. Earle H. Wildermuth, 2546 Sullivant-av, optometrist, who is chairman of the sight-saving committee of the local club. Dr. Wildermuth in turn took the case to the county committee of the Lions. The Hilltop Lions will help sponsor the operations.

The operations and treatment, which will begin in a few weeks, will be carried on until Billy's 21st birthday by the Franklin County Sight Saving Committee, sponsored by the Downtown Lions Club.

This arrangement has relieved Billy's parents of a great worry and a heavy burden. "We would have done this," his mother said, "but it would have taken everything we have."

Billy will have the benefit of the complete, new clinic, the only one of its kind in this part of the country for children with eye defects which require either or both orthoptic and surgical treatment.

The clinic was dedicated last Sunday.

School Coal Supply Deemed Adequate

Although coal stockpiles, for West Side and Hilltop schools are low at the present time due to the national coal situation, there is no danger of such an exhaustion of supplies that might necessitate shutdown of any of the schools.

This was emphasized by an official of the Columbus Board of Education in a statement to The Hilltop Record. He reported that the local school system has contracts with several Ohio mines which are not involved in the national dispute and which consequently keep a continuous adequate supply of coal available.

Rachel Smith Returns To Hilliards Farm After Government Service In Germany

Attractive, young Rachel Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, Davidson-rd, just northeast of Hilliards, this month returned to this country after 20 months in Germany.

A civil service worker for the government, Rachel was a stenoreporter in the Army's inspector general's office in Frankfort, Germany. At this job, the Hilliards' farm girl was in on behind-the-scenes doings of the occupation troops.

Rachel was forced to break her 24-month contract and return to the U. S. when her mother became ill in December. As soon as arrangements were completed, Miss Smith flew from Europe to Springfield, Mass. The flight, which usually takes about 15 hours, was extended to 89 hours, due to bad weather in Iceland, the first stop; a blizzard in Labrador; and rain on the east coast of the States. She came by train from Springfield to Columbus.

Visited Paris

On the inside of the uncovering of Germany's black market and the prosecution of other crimes involving American troops Rachel found her job fascinating and interesting. Her job took her to different parts of the country — the post area covered a 200 mile radius—where hearings were heard at army bases.

Rachel did some traveling on her own, too. She found time to enjoy a few holidays in Paris, France, and Zurich, Switzerland. The young foreign-service worker made two trips to Paris—one in November, 1948, the other in November, 1949. The first time she was a spectator at the UN foreign minister conference. The second visit was of a lighter nature. Rachel attended the famous Dior style show and bought a few dresses "that were on sale." Last spring she attended the music festival at Salzburg, Germany.

"Democracy, as we know it," Miss Smith said, "is a long way off. The German people don't seem to be interested in elections.

The young government worker saw an important change take place in Germany during her time there. "When I got there in June, 1948," Rachel declared, "the situation was depressing. Nothing in the stores, and bomb ruins everywhere. But by last Christmas the shops were full, and lights and signs were glowing again."

"Americans," Rachel thinks, are very impressionistic. Many soldiers are absorbing the ways of the Germans. Many have been over there too long," she added.

A graduate of Hilliards High School in 1934, Rachel was born and raised on her father's farm, northeast of Hilliards. After graduation Rachel went to work for the state government. She was a secretary in the office of U. S. Senator John W. Bricker when he was governor. Later she worked for the board of review of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

"As a farm girl," Rachel stated, "I noticed in traveling around the German countryside, the lack of modern equipment on the farms. Milk cows pulled the carts, and women worked in the fields cutting hay. The German office girls, though, are pretty much the same as they are here. They like to talk about men and clothes."

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR SMITH of near Hilliards are happy to have their daughter, Rachel (center) back with them on their farm. Rachel just returned after 20 months with the U. S. government in Germany.

Plan To Negotiate On Memorial Hall

Contributors to the Camp Chase Post 98 American Legion Memorial Hall Fund were asked this week to send in authorization slips granting an extension of time for use of the funds.

Ray McVay of the post said that about 90% of the slips mailed to contributors had been returned approved. He added that many contributors said they would give further when the building was started.

The present extension was to be until Jan. 1, 1951. Construction on the proposed building had been held up due to shortage of materials and high costs.

Those who have contributed to the building fund and have not signed the authorization for the extension are urged to do so as soon as possible. The authorization slip is printed on page 5 of today's Hilltop Record for the convenience of contributors who may not have received one.

McVay said that the post hopes to open negotiations for the construction of the building in the very near future and that they want the list of contributors as near complete as possible at that time.

Civil service employees of the state are urged to attend this meeting and become charter members of the chapter.

Alert Firemen Avert Fire Damage

Burning trash in the basement of the home of Mrs. Anna Price, 48 N. Ogden-av, brought four pieces of fire equipment rushing to the scene. Mrs. Dorothy Bornheim, 50 N. Ogden-av, a neighbor who called the fire department, said the firemen "got here in record time." "I no sooner called them than I heard the sirens up the street," she added. No damage was reported.

Surgery Saves Grandchild Of W. Jeff. Woman

The young granddaughter of a West Jefferson woman recently caused great concern for army doctors in Japan.

The baby is Darlene Sue Barton, daughter of M.Sgt. and Mrs. Elmer E. Barton. She was born in Osaka, Japan, where Sgt. Barton is with the U.S. Air Force. He is the son of Mrs. Bertha Barton of near West Jefferson.

Thirteen days after the baby was born, doctors discovered the baby had no opening leading from her stomach to the small intestine. When the baby became worse, the mother and baby were rushed 150 miles across Japan where the baby underwent an operation.

She began to improve at once. She then weighed only four pounds, 10 ounces. She now weighs eight pounds, eight ounces.

The trio is due in the U.S. in March. They will be stationed at Wright Field, a letter from them said Thursday.

Hilltop Woman Burned As Heater Ignites Clothing

Mrs. Bolenbaugh, a practical nurse, backed into the heater as she helped the owner of the house, Mrs. Elsie Vanderburg, an invalid. Mrs. Bolenbaugh, with the help of a maid, Lillie O'Dell, ripped away the burning clothing.

A private physician administered first aid and she was taken to Mt Carmel Hospital for further treatment.

Winter Miracles

By BETTY BARCLAY

There are bleak days in January and February when the thermometer registers around zero and the weather is just too bad to venture out, even to do the family marketing. So it's good to have staples, and foods that keep well, on the pantry shelf or in the cellar for just such times.

Mothers will be pleased to have some suggestions for using the apple sauce they canned in the fall or apples from the barrel stored in the cellar. Indeed, the "apple a day that keeps the doctor away" will come in very handy many times during the cold, cold days that are ahead. So here are some recipe suggestions that use apples in a very tempting and inexpensive manner. Two are desserts — the first being the easiest dessert ever. It's:

Apple Sauce Pudding

2 cups wheat flakes
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup sifted flour
¼ cup melted butter
2½ cups (No. 2 can) apple sauce

Combine wheat flakes, sugar, spices, and flour and mix well. Add butter and toss lightly until well mixed. Spread half of mixture in bottom of an 8-inch pie pan. Cover with apple sauce and top with remaining cereal mixture. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) about 30 minutes. Serve warm with cream. Makes 6 servings.

Another luscious dessert:

Apple Chiffon Pie

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1½ cups hot water
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups apple sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 egg whites
3 tablespoons sugar
1 baked 9-inch pie shell or graham cracker crust

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add sugar, salt, apple sauce, and lemon juice. Chill until slightly thickened.

Beat egg whites until foamy throughout; add sugar gradually and continue beating with rotary egg beater until mixture will stand in soft peaks. Fold into gelatin mixture. Turn into pie shell. Serve plain or garnish with slices or cubes of unpeeled red apples.

And now for a delicious entree which calls for plentiful apples:

Sausage and Apple Sauce Roll

1 pound sausage meat
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 cup crushed raisin bran
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ cups fresh or canned apple sauce

Combine sausage meat, onion, and bran. Place mixture between two sheets of waxed paper and roll mixture into rectangle, ¼ inch thick. Remove waxed paper; add spices to apple sauce and spread 1 cup over sausage mixture. Roll as for jelly roll and place, cut-edge down, in shallow baking dish. Bake, uncovered, in moderate oven (350° F.) 60 minutes, or until done. Heat remaining apple sauce and serve hot with sausage roll. Make 6 servings.

Miss Rieg is a graduate of Ohio State University and is associated with the John Deere Co. Mr. Stone is a graduate of West High and is now attending Ohio State University in the college of agricultural engineering.

The wedding will be an event of March 17.

She Rang For The Tang

By BETTY BARCLAY

The table was set to perfection. China glistened. Silver gleamed. Soup slowly steamed before each guest.

The hostess glanced around the table, frowned — then rang for the tang. A bottle of Lea & Perrins Sauce appeared. Ah! There was the needed tang for the soup course. It should have been added before the soup was poured, but half a teaspoon to each cup was not out of order even then, to give that piquant seasoning, tantalising flavor and aroma the hostess insisted on.

Yes, ladies! That bottle of Worcestershire can work wonders — not only for soups, for but appetizers, vegetables, and meat dishes as well. Keep it on the table at all times. It's a "must" like salt and pepper.

Try this meat loaf some day soon and you'll see what I mean.

Meat Loaf
Delicious hot or cold

2 cups leftover or raw beef ground (1 lb.)
2 tablespoons fat salt pork or bacon, minced
2 cups of bread crumbs
1¼ teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons Lea & Perrins Sauce
¼ cup of finely chopped celery or 1 teaspoon celery seed
2 eggs, well beaten
1 minced onion
1 minced green pepper (may be omitted)
Milk to moisten

Mix ground meat with crumbs, salt, Worcestershire Sauce, celery, onion and green pepper. Add well-beaten eggs, and mix thoroughly. Add enough milk to make a compact mass. Pack into a greased loaf pan and chill in refrigerator. Turn out on a roasting pan, containing a little melted fat. Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 1 hour.

Gardening Offers Rewards

About this time of year it is well to urge all readers to consider the possible pleasure to be obtained from flowers, fruits and vegetables. It is also worth noting that, sometimes, such activity can develop a monetary profit.

We are not much concerned, in this article with the economic gains of gardening. There are other values that come to the individual who seeks to develop something of beauty and perfection in accordance with the laws of nature.

There are countless homes in Franklin County on lots that need the charm that can come only from well-appointed surroundings. It may take some years to develop an attractive lawn or garden but the task will bring satisfaction, however long delayed. Besides, what you do with your lot will add to the natural beauty of the place.

When it comes to vegetable gardening, one must admit that the process involves work. At the same time, many business men would be physically benefitted by some exercise. We know, from hearing them boast, that the amateur gardeners take as much delight in their prize specimens as fishermen who talk so much about the "one that got away."

"What do you plan to do with your NSLI dividend?"

Jim Goudy, 264 S. Terrace-av, bank teller: "I'm not going to spend the dividend. I'm going to put in into the bank. I think most vets should think twice before spending the money. But if they all do spend the dividend, I don't believe the expenditures will have much effect on the nation's economy. As a bank teller I, of course, feel that everyone should put the money in the bank."

Ruth Lyon, 2900 Crescent-dr, student: "My insurance dividend money is spent before I get it. I am planning on using it to pay my auto insurance which comes due about the time I expect to receive the check Even though I won't be able to save it, I advise others to save theirs if they can."

The next meeting will be held at the Red Men's hall Feb. 23.

Martin Henry, 91 N. Terrace-av, fireman: "I plan to buy furniture for the home with the insurance dividend money I receive. I think the veterans should use the money wisely. But I suppose some will blow it in no time flat. I didn't send my application in until quite late, so I probably won't get my check for a while, even though my serial number is a low one."

Jeweler: "I'll get more than $300 and I intend to use the major part of the money to convert my GI insurance and pay up the difference in the premiums. What's left, if any, will go in to stock and merchandise for my business. I expect to get mine in June or July. I'd like to see all the vets save the money, or use it some sensible way."

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

KIT WALKED up the road slowly and deliberately, each step a second in time she had allowed herself to reach her destination. Last night at this time, she thought, I was waiting for him. He had just boarded the tram. She talked to reassure herself for it was not reason that had led her on irresistibly, but instinct, until now she found herself in Furse's driveway. Like all farmhouses the front of the house looked uninhabited. The activity was all beyond. Kit, one hand clenched nervously in her pocket, sauntered around to the back shed.

"I don't know why the little buff cow don't give more at night," she heard Piny's worried mumble behind the shed door. "It's just the way she goes sometimes—skittery."

"There must be some reason for it." The calf's over two weeks," Furse was talking. "It's the feed."

Furse stepped out of the shed. Under his worn leather jacket, he wore a plaid shirt open at the neck. He was thinking that Piny always had to have some trouble to keep going. Then he saw Kit and gave an exclamation of surprise.

"Hello, I was just walking by," she said lamely.

"Come in," he invited, opening the kitchen door. "I guess it's respectable enough."

The kitchen was clean but disorderly. Furse washed his hands at the tap with a bar of yellow soap while Kit walked around the room as if she had never been in it before. "That's such a wonderful view from the sink—it must be fun to work here. But you never do, do you? Poldi does, doesn't she?"

He noticed the nervous excitement behind her words and then something struck him. "You found Marvell at home last night, didn't you?"

"Yes, yes, I did," she answered in a low voice. He made her feel like a child, somehow, with his worried questioning.

He turned toward her as he dried his hands. She looked so young and vulnerable that he wanted to put his hands around her without asking anything more. "It's kind of damp," he said. "I'll light a fire in the other room."

"Oh, I can't stay long," she protested hastily, following him into the deserted, dusty room. Poldi wasn't much of a housekeeper, she thought automatically, looking at the unemptied ash trays and the littered fireplace. Now that she was here, she had nothing to say. Shivering a little, she watched him put paper to kindling. She thought desperately it would take more alchemy than she possessed to make him see her as she saw him. As she remembered their brief encounter yesterday, it had been intimate and exhilarating. Hadn't it given her wings on her feet to speed her down the lane and beyond to the brook?

The fire crackled merrily. "How about some homemade wine? It's weak."

She smiled her acceptance. Perhaps the wine would help. If only she could find a crack somewhere to begin. He was friendly, but aloof, almost as inapproachable as he had been the first time she had seen him with Marvell. She took a sip of wine.

"Have you heard the thrush yet?"

"Pretty late for them, isn't it?"

It had gone much better yesterday when they had talked about the country side, but she couldn't ask him to go for a walk at this hour. The silence was broken by a gulping noise as she drank the wine. Her cheeks were getting hot.

Furse held his glass up to the light. He wondered how he could put her at ease. "Have you any influence with your old friend, Nedda?" he asked suddenly.

Kit leaned forward eagerly. "Maybe. I used to. But it's been so long . . . and I haven't kept writing to her as I should. Why?"

"I've made her an offer for the orchards," he said, "and she won't sell."

"But that's not fair," Kit exploded. "They can't mean much to her now. Why you've cared for them and increased their value. They're really yours."

"She may have a good reason—like coming back. But I don't want her house or the acre it sits on."

"If she didn't want to let them go, she should never have left Colcord." That's true, thought Kit in amazement. If she had wanted the orchards or Marvell, she shouldn't have run away. Now it was too late. Frightened for herself, she cried impetuously, "I'll never leave here!"

Furse grinned at her. "You've got one foot out already. The hell of it is that I hate to make a capital investment like an artesian well on rented property. If she comes back and takes over, it's time and money sunk in that will depreciate."

Kit got up. Nedda had given her a reason for coming. "I came to see you about something," she began.

Furse noticed the color in her face. She looked relaxed now where before she had been strained. She walked up and down the room as she talked and he never took his eyes off her.

"You remember the time we discussed the right of way, the time you took me to Uncle Ben's? I—I want to give you the meadow and the spring outright. I won't have any use for it—not for a long time, maybe never," her voice dropped for a second and then she lifted it buoyantly again. "You can expand. And there's water enough to spray and fertilize for a hundred farms, Marvell says. If Nedda won't sell now, you can begin there!" She gave him a crooked little smile and when he did not reply, she cried, "Don't you want it?" She flung out her hand and he caught it in his. He sensed that it was a gift and he must not offer to pay her.

"Of course I want it. I need it badly."

till they stood a pace apart and she was holding his hand up to her breast. He could feel her whole body in the clasp. Then he put one arm around her tightly, lowered his head and kissed her hard upon the mouth. Then he wrenched away. "Is that what you wanted?" he asked harshly. He was angry with himself and she knew it.

She looked at him steadily. "Don't say it," she whispered, "that I'm too young and it's too soon. I know that. I have to wait, I have something to finish first. But it won't be waiting, Andrew, it will be catching up with you!"

She left him so quickly that he could not realize he was alone again. He stared hard at her empty chair as if to bring her back again. But it was not her presence that filled the [illegible] It was Marvell's. He resented him and feared him at the same time. "Nothing happened," he cried aloud, "nothing will. She'll forget it. She's all nerved up." But Furse did not believe that, any more than Marvell would believe that it was not Furse who had made it happen.

The Boston Playhouse where the performance of Jane Eyre by the Society of Maskers of the Holly School was about to begin was small but perfect in every detail. The mouse-colored velvet stage curtains billowed out, concealing the last minute movements of the over-anxious stagehands. A small stringed orchestra was tuning up with the persistency of hungry humming birds. The audience, shimmering in evening dress, was composed of parents, friends, admirers and investors in the school. It was known that two Boston papers had sent professional critics, but until the curtain went up they were of little significance. The radium figures on the face of the clock over the exit were dimmed by the lights of the auditorium although Marvell kept tabs on it, constantly checking it with his own watch. Marvell's eyes now were always on a clock or a calendar. He frowned at the clock, as if by concentration he could hold back the hands should the curtain be late in rising as it was almost sure to be.

On his left sat Fanny whose low cut gown and chiffon scarf, glinting earrings and long white gloves reassured him that his own black and whiteness was solid enough, not something dreamed out of those rare occasions, long ago, when he and the Barlows had attended the theatre or opera. Beyong Fanny sat Ben, the attention he gave to the program suggesting that either he was memorizing the fire exits or checking the seating capacity of the theatre. Ben leaned forward and whispered sharply to Marvell, "Who is that fellow who is coming? Is he going to be late?"

Fanny replied soothingly for the third time, "Mr. Furse, dear, a neighbor of theirs. He still has ten minutes."

Ben sank back uneasily. He was one whose contentment never became complete till his row was solidly filled with chest fronts, the earlier before the first line was spoken, the better.

West Juniors Beat Starling In 43-23 Fray

By Dave Miller

West Junior's basketballers, paced by their ace pivotman, Lanky Bob Thornton, trounced their old rivals of the City Junior High League, Starling, last Friday afternoon in the West gym to the tune of 43 to 23.

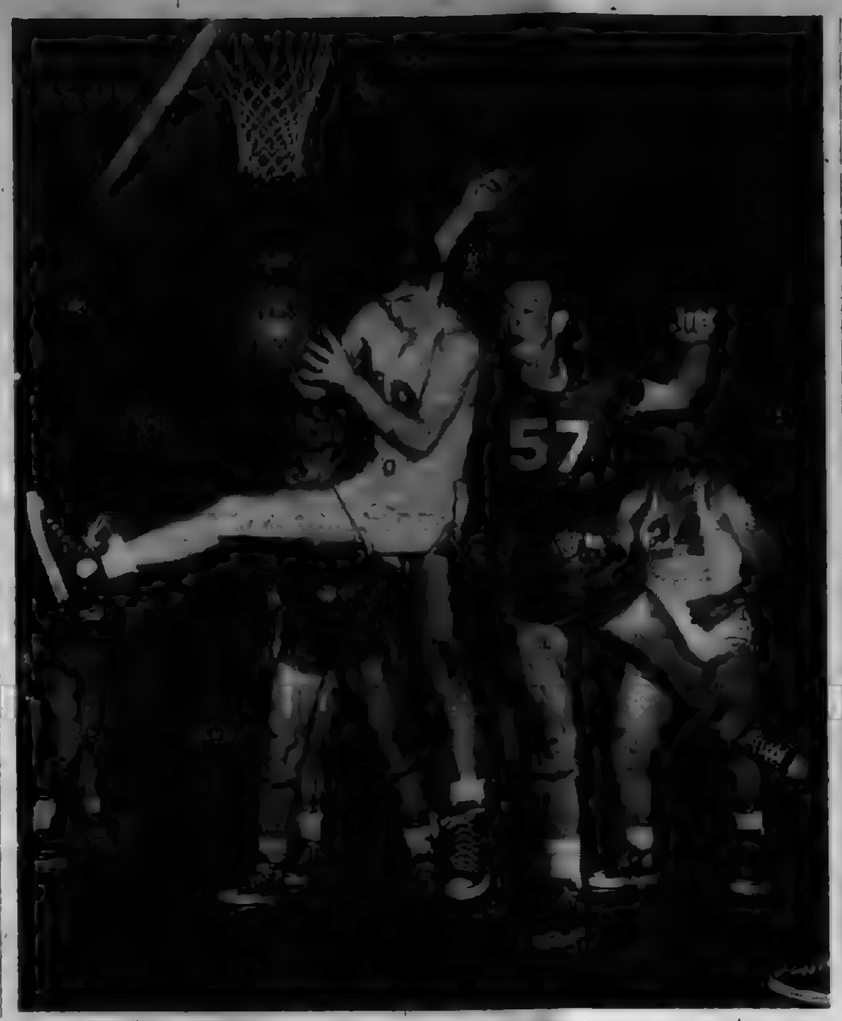
Thornton, who represents the local juniors in the City Junior High League individual race, now third in the loop with 113 points, was "hotter than a firecracker" under the bucket for the Broncos. "Big Bob" as he is oftentimes called, hit the nets for 18 points, and, in fact, had numerous chances to score plenty more but showed his brilliant team play by passing off to someone else who had an easier shot. Thornton's favorite, a fake, fadeway-push was hitting especially good Friday.

Thanks to Thornton and Dick Hutchison along with Guard Jim Kimball, the Broncos held a margin of 9-6 at the first period's end.

The Broncos, who have won seven, lost-two record thus far this season, with one more game to go, hopped off to a quick 5-0 lead, but Starling's Black and White weren't to be denied. Forwards Bob Fiffick and Ray Jahn pushed in two consecutive buckets, but Thornton and Kimball followed with bunnies.

Starling roared back and made a game of it late in the second period, closing West's gap to two points, but Bill Haire hit a drive-in for the locals to give them only a four-point halftime lead. Jim Martin and Bob Fittick both collected two fielders in the second canto to pace the Starling offense, while Thornton, along with Haire and Kimball boosted the Hilltoppers' scoring in the period.

The Cowboys opened up in the third period, tallying 12 points, while holding the Cary Pace coached visitors to only three markers.



The fourth period, also, went very much in the favor of the Broncos. The junior Cowboys outscored Starling again by a wide margin of 13 to 6.

Thornton was high scorer with his 18 markers, while Bill Haire of the locals and Bob Fiffick of the losers had nine apiece. Haire who is among the high scorers of the league, boosted his total to 59 for the season.

The game, in a slight manner, was won at the three throw lane, with West sinking 11 of 20 chances, while Starling hit on only three of 14. In the field goal department, West sank 16 of 46 tries, while Starling sank 10 of 39.

Odd Fact

A mother of three children recently donned the orange cap of a Syracuse University freshman to become a fellow student of her twenty-year-old daughter, a junior.

West Five Upsets Bullldogs 83-73 on Home Court Friday

By Dave Miller

West High's Cowboys put themselves right back into the City League championship race last Friday evening by downing the league-leading South Bulldogs, 83-73, on the West court, before a jam packed throng, yelling at the tops of their lungs from start to finish.

West was again paced by their high scoring aces, Guard Bill Thrush and Center Phil Young in addition to some capable point-making of Forwards Paul Ellingsworth and Jerry Trabue. "Ellie" got 17 tallies, and Jerry 13 points. Jerry Johnson, the other starter, played his usual great floor game in addition to swishing the nets with eight tallies.

The game's two stellar guards fouled out on the same play of the game, a very unusual one. Bill Thrush, West's ball of fire at the guard post all season, and South's Bob Strawser, both with four personals at the time, were involved in a double in which both were out of the game via personal foul route. Dick Wagner, sub guard for Strawser, and Jack Gammon, sub for Thrush, both shot free throws upon entering the game, in a play that will probably not be repeated for a long time.

The Cowboys' win was a marvel. It was simply a story of West's great offensive strength overpowering the scoring machine of the visiting Bulldogs.

The Cowboys held comfortable margins at the end of each period, of seven, 10 and 15 points.

Trabue and Strawser matched shots as the game opened, but the latter followed with another quick bunny to give South a 4-2 lead. Trabue sank a jump-push; Johnson two free throws, and Dave Jones of South a side set to knot the count at six-all.

The tempo continued at this pace until South knoted the score for their final time in the game. Ellingsworth and Trabue sank five quick points for the Cowboys to make it 17-12.

Ellingsworth and Dick Ruh of the Blue and White exchanged set shots, and after the latter's free toss, Thrush hit for three quick markers to provide the Hilltoppers with a 22-15 first period lead.

Thanks to some more timely buckets by Thrush and Young, West shot into a quick and convincing 30-19 lead early in the second cantb.

The Cowboys held a convincing margin at halftime.

Both teams settled down in the second half and played at an even pace, each hitting for 43 points.

Right after the game, Coach George Williams of the West Siders went out on the floor to hail his players, and before he knew it, was surrounded by practically everyone on the team, and rooters also, jumping for joy at the upset of the year.

Phil Young took high scoring honors with 25 points, 17 of them coming in the final half. Bob Strawser of South was runner-up with 24 while Bill Thrush maintained his City League individual scoring pace with a 20-point job. Thrush has 195; Young, 194, in City Loop play thus far this season, with the loop bye going to the Cowboys this Tuesday, and a visit to East on Friday to wrap up the 1950-50 league play.

Students Aid In Dispensing Food In West Cafeteria

Popular periods of the school day for 2000 West High pupils are lunch periods—fifth or sixth—when many of the teen-agers assemble in the school cafeteria daily for food and a social exchange of ideas during their repast.

Many students, who assist in the cafeteria, facilitate in the service of the good food prepared by Miss Emma Uncapher, home economics teacher, and her corps of cooks.

Planning a well balanced diet at reasonable cost to the student is part of Miss Uncapher's work.

West Teacher Helps Organize Guam Boy Scouts

By Myron T. Seifert

Cyrus Sedgewick, 24, mathematics instructor at West High School, had an unusual experience during the last war, in helping to organize Boy Scout troops on Guam.

Sedgewick, during his three years of military service as ensign in the United States Navy, along with 15 other men, succeeded in interesting 500 natives during World War II in scouting ideals.

The natives, Chamorrows of Spanish descent, were products of a ravished people, reduced to servitude by the invasion of the Japs. When the Japs left the desolate island, the Americans moved in and found a subservient people eager to accept the teaching of American scout work.

Sedgewick, a linguist, spent much time in organizing troops and interpeting the scout work for the natives.

Following temporary organization the National Council of Boy Scouts of America recognized officially the troops in which West High's math teacher had a vital part. Native school teachers in Guam now serve as scoutmasters.

A scout since the age of 12 in his native town of Bellaire, O., Sedgewick has never gotten away from the movement completely. He is now serving in an official capacity with the organization.

An Eagle Scout, he served as scout counselor at two summer camps and is identified with the scout fraternity at Ohio State University, Alpha Phi Omega.

He lives at 1739 Gerrand-av with Mrs. Sedgewick and their daughter, Jennifer.

A span is ten and seven-eighths inches.

Reserve Quint Edges South Seconds 36-33 In Prelim

By Dave Miller

Like the varsity, the West reserve team knocked out a contender for loop honors last Friday evening in the prelim to the varsity go, edging South's second place reserve team, 36-33.

Paced by Center Warren Stevens, who was high point man with 11 points, the Broncs upped their City League Reserve mark to six wins as compared to five losses. South's seconds who drew the bye, Tuesday, now drop to third place in the league with a 6-4 league mark, while East's seconds move to runner-up spot behind North's reserve squad.

West pulled to a quick 11-5 lead in the opening quarter, but saw the South seconds come back to finally knot the score as late as the fourth period, but it was too late for South, as Bill South and Russ Friend pumped in a bucket apiece for the Broncos to spell the difference late in the fray.

The game started even, with Stevens and Jim Lang of the winners hitting consecutive bunnies only to find South pull up even at four-all on two lefties by Paul Bass of the losers. Then Russ Friend, Dick Wary and Bill South all tossed in seven quick points as compared to one by the Puppies in the late stages of the opening period to make the period's end 11-8.

West again outscored the Pups, 9-7 in the second period, and thanks to Stevens of the Broncos, who scored seven of those nine for West, the Broncs held a 20-12 half-time margin.

It was South's turn to come back as they outscored the locals, 14-8, in that third period to have West in hot water at the onset of the final period, leading only 28-26.

Some timely follow-up shots by Guard Ken Anderson of the locals in the final period, pulled West to a comfortable 33-28 lead. Bill South of the local seconds hit a Bunny shot to increase the margin of West to seven points, before consecutive points, by George Treneff, Charlie Scuflock and Carl DeBolt cut West's advantage to 35-33, which Russ Friend increased to the final score on a free throw as the game ended.

West Girls Hostesses To City G.A.A.

By Myron T. Seifert

West High School Girls' Athletic Association was host to officers and advisors of this organization from other high schools of the city, including North, East, Central, Linden McKinley, South and University, Wednesday, Feb. 15, in the Powell-av school apartments.

Committee in charge of the city-wide conclave was the local GAA cabinet. They are Shirley Mielke, Shirley Shroyer, Betty Roederer, Sue Glass, Jean Syrtum, Nancy Constans, Sis Ringer and Lois Jennings.

Purpose of the meeting was to exchange ideas worked out among the GAA Clubs from every section of Columbus. Carol Luckshaw, West High GAA head, presided over the panel discussion which elicited many practical ideas from the 39 girls in attendance.

GAA activities in each of the Columbus schools were explained by the delegates, and an oral appraisal of each was evaluated by the girls in attendance.

Social value of the meeting was also in evidence. Meeting and visiting with GAA delegates from every school in the city meant for social solidarity in its membership. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Helen McCormick, girls' physical education director at West, is adviser for the West High Girls' Athletic Association.

Sun Life of Canada Increases Dividends to Policyholders

1949 was a good year for Sun Life. Organization in strong position with nearly 50% of entire assets invested in United States. Total benefits paid last year $114 million.

With $18 million—a substantial increase over 1949—allotted for policyholders' dividends to be paid during the current year, the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada enters its 80th year of public service with a promising outlook for 1950. The Sun Life has been active in the United States for over half a century and today maintains branch office and agency service in 40 states from coast to coast. During the year just past, the total amount of life insurance, which policyholders purchased from the Sun Life, exceeded $372 millions, continuing the unbroken record of selling more new life insurance per annum than any other Canadian life company. Insurance in force with the Sun Life now amounts to $4,187,000,000, an all-time high. The total income of the Company in 1949 was $238,000,000.

The 79th Annual Report of the Sun Life of Canada, just issued, indicates the Company's faith in the United States, where more than 48% of its assets are invested and where $1,690,000,000 or 40% of its total business is in force. Benefits paid to Sun Life policyholders and beneficiaries since the Company's first policy was issued in 1871 have now reached $2,240,000,000. Last year alone over $114,000,000 was paid out in benefits.

At the Annual Meeting held at the Head Office of the Company, the President, Arthur B. Wood, reviewed the remarkable progress of life insurance over the last 50 years. In 1900, with a population of 76 millions, the United States had life insurance in force of some $7 billions, or about $90 per capita. Today the population has almost doubled, but life insurance in force has risen to $215 billions, or $1430 per head. The Sun Life's own business has more than kept pace with this increase, today's total in force of $4,187 millions comparing with only $53 millions in force at the beginning of the century. During these 50 years, too, Sun Life policy provisions and privileges have been broadened, available options increased and many new benefits introduced. Even before 1900 the Company was the first to introduce the "unconditional" policy, following later with the popular Sun Life non-medical insurance plan. The Company also issued the first Group Pension policy written anywhere in North America, an epoch-making event in the history of life insurance.

One of the outstanding features of Sun Life operations during 1949 was the pronounced increase in the Company's Group business. Hundreds of thousands of office, factory and other employees in business and industry throughout North America are today protected by the generous terms of Sun Life Group insurance and annuity plans. The Company's experience and service in this particular field is unsurpassed. Today, the importance of Group insurance is recognized by all those concerned with the encouragement and maintenance of good relations between management and labor, and the welfare and social security of the individual employee.

The Sun Life story for 1949, including the President's address as delivered at the Annual Meeting, is contained in the Report to Policyholders now on the press. Copies may be obtained on request from any of the branch, group or mortgage offices of the Company, or from William R. Withers, 2410 Le Veque-Lincoln Tower, Columbus, Ohio.

SANDER TRIAL CAN BE CLIMAX TO DRAMATIC MERCY DEATH CASES OR DUD AS SETTER OF PRECEDENT

By JOHN F. SIMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—Will the murder trial of Dr. Herman N. Sander of Manchester, N. H., measure up to sensational "mercy killing" trials of the past, or will it turn out to be a dud insofar as shedding light on this problem of the ages is concerned?

Few trials in history have absorbed more completely the attention of the world in general, and of two great professions—law and medicine—in particular, than the proceedings before Superior Court Judge Harold Earl Westcott.

The "human interest" angles are intense: Dr. Sander apparently has the confidence and support of relatives of the woman he is accused of killing to spare her final pains of death from cancer, and it is difficult to find a jury of impartial persons from the community.

Dr. Herman N. Sander

Prosecuting the doctor is his campus classmate and fellow Dartmouth college star athlete, Attorney General William L. Phinney. Even the judge adds color; for it is well-remembered by his neighbors that only a few years ago he was exonerated of homocide in the accidental shotgun death of a hunting pal.

But by far the major long-range implications of the case have to do with so-called euthanasia—mercy killing. That subject has stirred violent disputes among men of most civilized nations ever since the ancient Spartans put weakling babies on the mountainsides to die.

ANNALS of the law tell of other spectacular cases which have aired this explosive issue in modern times. One of the most dramatic was that of Stanislawa Uminska, strikingly beautiful young Polish actress who 25 years ago was on trial for her life in Paris.

Betrothed to Jan Rysmowski, promising young writer, Stanislawa in 1924 accompanied him to Paris where he took radium treatments which failed to cure cancer. Her devotion stirred everyone connected with the case. She nursed him tirelessly, and gave six blood transfusions.

Finally, as he lay dying, Jan handed her a revolver and asked her to kill him, which she did. Jan had written his mother: "God does not want to kill me, but I feel Stanislawa will be my God." The actress testified: "I loved him; I would have given my life if it would have helped."

The jury decided that a life for a life was not proper, and acquitted her. For months, Parisians saw her, wracked with sobs, daily visiting the grave of her lover. Then she dropped from sight.

The case has a parallel with Dr. Sander's, for under New Hampshire law, the jury may recommend death by hanging if it goes against him. What an irony, say many critics including lawyers, because execution for crime also takes life artificially. If the jury finds him guilty but otherwise is silent, it will be life imprisonment.

However, the great effect of the case under Anglo-American common law, in which past cases are precedents for the future, is that the trial may decide whether homicide in one of the United States, under the circumstances by which Dr. Sander injected an air bubble into the veins of Mrs. Abbie Borroto, constitutes a killing that is permissable under law.

Although none of the laws in favor of mercy slaying that have pended before legislatures in the United States has been passed, and the UN has not taken action on several proposals before it, lawyers point out that technically there also are no laws specifically against it, either.

That is, in each case of homicide, it is a question of fact as to whether it was justified or not. Was Dr. Sander justified?

IN ANSWERING the question, the New Hampshire court may decide the law in that state and it will have advisory effect elsewhere in defining whether euthanasia is or is not against the law, because the great oracle of Anglo-American law, Blackstone, once answered his own question, "How are the customs of the common law to be known and by whom is their validity to be determined?" with the statement: "By the judges in the several courts of justice."

Of course, lawyers point out that if Dr. Sander's defense strategy is to maintain that Mrs. Corroto already was dying, as her own daughter maintains, or that he did not inject enough air to kill, the case may be robbed of much of its far-reaching significance. This may not be revealed immediately.

FROM the standpoint of the huge issues at stake beyond the fate of Dr. Sander, such defense would render the trial a dud. On the other hand, if he maintains that he was justified in taking his patient's life, the gauntlet will have been thrown out.

Curiously, he cannot expect more than formal support and sympathy from the euthanists, because they favor legislation being passed before any mercy killings are done, and advocate such laws requiring such formal steps as signed authorizations from the patient and his relatives, and perhaps the independent judgment of a jury of medical experts that recovery is absolutely impossible.

The controversy raging over Dr. Sander's case indicates that the latter would be hard to secure. In the first place, many medical men still take the classic Hippocratic oath, part of which says: "I will give no deadly drug to any, though it be asked of me, nor will I counsel such."

ALTHOUGH there are notable exceptions, some of which have spoken in favor of Dr. Sander and may testify for him at the trial, the doctors generally have lined up against the principle of taking the life of a patient suffering from what appears to be incurable disease.

A famous American case rocked the country in 1915 when Dr. Harry J. Haiselden of Chicago advised the parents of Baby Bollinger that the child was doomed to be a helpless cripple. With the consent of the parents, he simply withheld the scalpel and the child died in six days. Then he duly made entries which were like Dr. Sander's routine reports.

A coroner's jury exonerated him, but his own Chicago Medical society expelled him and he died in 1919 in Cuba.

In a day when medical remedies are rushing forward with a swiftness which amazes even the medicos themselves, many doctors maintain that some new discovery might bob up overnight that would change the entire outlook of a case that had been considered doomed.

"You have to allow for that unexpected turn for the better," says the dean of one of the nation's leading medical schools. "And also the fact that death is so permanent!"

Everybody Pays Taxes

You may think that because you own no property and you are exempted from paying income tax due to your low earnings or the number of dependents you have, you escape the tax collector.

Well, the American Taxpayers' Association says you're wrong, that persons at virtually every level of income pay taxes . . . however, the assessments paid by those in the low level income brackets are hidden in the prices of things, right down to a loaf of bread.

This taxpayers' association is a 22-year-old group, supported by contributions, which endeavors to inform the citizens just how they're being taxed and what is being done with the money.

To figure out what the lower income families are paying in taxes, the association went to three different families and got them to account for every penny they spent through one year.

In each case they took a man and wife, with two children—the average American family. They took men who earned $980, $1800, and $2400 a year. None of them paid income taxes to Uncle Sam; either they earned too little or their exemptions made it unnecessary, but they paid hidden taxes in the following amounts:

The man who earned $980 a year paid out $123.58 a year in taxes.

The man who earned $1800 a year paid out $243.

And the man with a $2400 income paid out $314.76.

The taxes that hit these families were property taxes, (hidden in the rent, where they paid rent), excise taxes, licenses, import duties and taxes included in freight costs. The association tried various things

All Girl Show To Spark Tax Stamp Drive

By Myrna T. Baker

An all West High girls cast, now at work, will stage a novel form of entertainment before the student body Mar. 30.

Admission to the unique show is a minimum of $5 in sales tax stamps, all of which will go to the general school fund.

The show is a sequel to that of last semester when an all-boys cast presented a rollicking series of acts before the student body. Sales tax ducats were then also necessary to gain admittance.

When the bevy of beautiful girls presents its vaudeville acts Mar. 30, much of the "Gay Nineties" will be in evidence, Mrs. Evelyn Hall, faculty member in charge of the show, announced today.

"Miss Prunella Prune's School of Charm for Young Ladies" will be given top billing on the program, Mrs. Hall said.

All costume worn (although not designed by Adrian) will be original and creative, as will many of the songs and dances.

A girls' orchestra (second only to Spitalny's) and chorus line, having the girls in each class of the school, will have a part in the show.

Nancy Miller will MC the show, and Student Directors Sheila Pugh and Barbara Hill will coach the acts in their inimitable manner.

Civic Committee of Rome Business Association Named

Members of the Civic Committee of the Rome Business Association were appointed by President D. J. Kunz at the first regular meeting of the association.

Those who will serve on the committee are: Edwin Distelhorst, Melvin Pfeifer, J. I. Gates, Carl Turner, Dr. H. L. Mitchell, and Alvin Richards. Kunz said that other appointments will be made later.

C. F. Galland officiated at the installation of officers of the new association.

Following naming of the civic committee, William Lamb asked that the committee start action on the sanitary sewer project for the community. Harold F. Cunningham, candidate for county commissioner, spoke briefly to the association on the sewer project and drainage.

Improvement of the storm sewer system in New Rome is also being sought through a petition being distributed.

Officials of the association expressed the hope that the installation of sanitary sewers would be passed soon enough to have the system serve the new Prairie Twp. district school that was approved by the voters Feb. 14. Board of Education officials hope to start work on the school building in the spring.

President Kunz said that the membership books would be kept open to accept new members into the organization until the April meeting. Business men in the community are eligible to become associate members. Associate membership gives the right of a vote on all civic matters up for consideration by the association.

Hilliards Board of Public Affairs Studies Sewer and Water Problems

By Elizabeth Stoll

At its recent regular meeting the newly elected Hilliards Board of Public Affairs considered the matters of interest, the water supply and sanitary sewer.

Some property owners have been having difficulty with their water lines stopping up and for years the sanitary sewers have flooded basements after hard rains.

Two engineers from the state department of health, J. E. Richards and H. P. Cowgill, accepted invitations to be present and to help with the problems.

Cowgill spent considerable time checking the water plant and its operation and he reported to the board that the plant was being operated in a satisfactory manner. He feels that one cause of the formation of lime in water lines is that the village is using such a volume of water that it is impossible to allow proper time in the plant for the processing of the water. He made a few suggestions which he feels should improve the situation.

Richards directed most of his attention to the sanitary sewer situation. He reported that Medina and Wadsworth, O., formerly had the same condition as Hilliards where a hard rain for even a few hours would cause the sanitary sewers to flood basements. In both of these cities surveys were conducted and it was found that almost all of the trouble was due to roof water being run into the sanitary sewers.

The running of roof water into a sanitary sewer is always a violation of law but some residents do not know exactly how their sewer connections have been made and it is necessary to make a survey to determine from which buildings the roof water is getting into the sanitary sewers.

Richards stated that he has found property owners quite willing to change illegal sewer connections and that he was sure that Hilliards residents would be equally cooperative.

Before adjournment of the meeting the board made detailed plans for a survey to check all sewer connections and to take the necessary action to improve the local sewer situatoin.

West Athletes To Be Feted At All-Sports Banquet May 22

The West High All-Sports Banquet, honoring all West High School athletes of the 1949-50 season, will be held at the Southern Hotel on May 22, it was announced today by Joseph M. Briggs, general chairman of the event.

Wesley Fesler, Ohio State University football coach, will be the principal speaker at the banquet. Herbert G. Deems will act as master-of-ceremonies for the program that will pay tribute to the Cowboys.

Joseph M. Briggs

The occasion will honor members of all of the school's athletic teams of the current season. Prior to this year, banquets were held to pay tribute only to the players on the baseball, basketball and football teams. This year the affair will recognize the feats of all teams, including the swimming, wrestling, tennis, golf and track squads.

"This will be," Briggs said, "one of the largest events ever sponsored by this community."

Groups Sponsor Affair

Groups sponsoring the banquet are the Hilltop Business Association, the Hilltop Kiwanis Club, West High Boosters, West High Athletic Association, Hilltop Lions, and the Camp Chase Post, American Legion.

Committees in charge of the event are: arrangements, Wes Edstrom and Dr. R. M. Wilson; publicity, George Williams and Joseph Briggs; programs, Alva Nafzger, Robert Case, and Clarence Bateman; decorations, Frank Morgan, Byrle Stout, and Lee Weigand; tickets, Ed Planck and C. J. McDonald.

Clarence Bateman is treasurer for the affair. Tickets are $2.50 per plate. There will be 200 seats for the players and guests; 300 tickets will be sold to the public.

An attractive souvenir program is being prepared for the banquet.

Observe World Day of Prayer Here Friday

The World Day of Prayer observed annually, as such, since 1927, has behind it an interesting history. Since 1887, when the women of a certain denomination were called together to pray for their own national work, there has been a Pilgrims Progress toward the church on certain special days. Gradually the idea grew to include not only the women of many denominations, races and nations, but concern for missionary work in the foreign field as well.

In 1919 women in the United States chose the first Friday in Lent as the day for their observance. This date was adopted in 1920 by Canadian women and finally was officially designated when the World Day of Prayer was established. Even war-time did not stop the quiet remembrance of the date, although some countries could not receive the universal program.

Tomorrow at 2 p. m. Hilltop worshippers will meet in the Hilltop Church of Christ (Disciples) to observe the 1950 World Day of Prayer. During the half hour preceding the service, chimes and church bells will proclaim the day, welcoming those who will attend and inviting those unable to come to set apart that hour for quiet meditation "Faith For Our Time".

Applications Coming In For '50 Hilltop Minstrel Show

Lee Koontz, chairman of the 1950 Hilltop Minstrel, announced yesterday that applications are already being received for interviews regarding spots in the twenty-first annual show, scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Apr. 12, 13 and 14, in the West High School auditorium.

Koontz added that persons desirous of participating in "The Show of the Century" which he last week said would be the best of the long line of excellent Hilltop minstrel productions, should send in their applications for an interview as soon as possible. The formal audition is scheduled for Mar. 12 in a place to be announced later.

One change has been reported by the minstrel committee of the Hilltop Business Association from plans announced earlier. That change will find Bob Motzer and his orchestra serving as the "pit" orchestra, instead of the band of "Mac" Toolil. The Toolil band informed the committee it could not fulfill the date because of an earlier commitment.

Hoge Undefeated In Church League

By Joe Hutt

Hoge Memorial's basketballers retain their lead in the City Recreation Department's Basketball League. This league is in operation each Tuesday night, with the opening game starting at 7 p. m.

Hoge's coach, Ben Lewis, has again coached a great basketball team. His teams in the last two years have won 38 games while losing four.

On Tuesday night, Feb. 16, Hoge's present team had the toughest battle of the year as it won over Glenwood, 26-22. Hoge's team played as one unit of well trained men instead of each boy trying to show the others up and making himself the star or high point man.

The second game of the evening was do St. Al's as they beat Westgate 42-15. St. John's ran over Hillcrest, 39-9.

The league as of Feb. 23 finds Hoge in first place with seven wins and no losses.
